BOY'S LEG BURNED
Two-year-old John Marker, 2170 Startz St., received burns of the right leg Friday afternoon when he attempted to stamp out a small trash fire at his home, apparently started as a prank by his older brother, according to city firemen. The boy's pants caught fire and he suffered first and second degree burns. He was taken to a doctor by his mother, but first aid men said the burns were not serious.

REHABILITATION OF TILLAMOOK BURN JUDGED
Just over $2 million was spent by the State Forestry Department in the past four years on rehabilitation of the 354,000-acre Tillamook burn.

Department officials said Friday the improvements have included 54 miles of snag-free firebreaks, 121 miles of access roads, firebreaks, 348,000 snags cut down, 141,000 acres surveyed to determine if reforestation is necessary, 36,000 acres of aerial seeding by helicopter, and 14,600 acres hand-planted seedlings.

Officials said other state lands, in addition to those within the Tillamook burn, also have been rehabilitated and started on the way to continuous timber production. These operations include 40,000 acres surveyed for planting in Clatsop County, 5000 acres seeded by helicopter and 2500 acres hand-planted and surveys to determine how much reforestation is required in Klamath, Polk, Benton, Lincoln, Linn, Marion and Clackamas counties.

Logging in the Tillamook burn continues one of the major activities, forestry officials said. Revised estimate of the timber recovered from the big burn since 1940 has been decreased from 6,000,000,000 to 8,000,000,000 feet to slightly more than 5,000,000,000 board feet.

Approximately 2,000,000,000 board feet of timber remain that can be economically salvaged, foresters said.

Forestry officials reported that Tillamook, Washington, Columbia and Clatsop counties established the best forest fire record this season since 1911 with a burned-over total of only seven acres.

New System To Cut Cost Of Pamphlets

Substantial savings in labor costs, in connection with addressing and mailing voters' pamphlets, will result through a mechanized system of addressing prior to future primary and general elections, David O'Hara, in charge of the state elections bureau, predicted Friday.

Under the proposed new system pamphlets in Multnomah, Washington and Clackamas counties, will be printed in Portland and mailed from the state office building there. Also expected is savings in pamphlets which are now wasted because the persons to whom they are mailed have moved without leaving a forwarding address.

Previously the pamphlets for Multnomah, Washington and Clackamas counties were printed in Portland and delivered to the statehouse in Salem for addressing and mailing by a crew of women.

Cost of the new equipment was estimated at $14,000 by Secretary of State Earl T. Newby. Pamphlets for the remaining counties will be addressed and mailed in Salem.

One law requires that registration books be open until 30 days before the elections and another law requires that pamphlets must be mailed to voters at least 20 days before the elections.

Election department records, O'Hara said, show that many voters move or change their party affiliation during the last few days of registration. This situation, he added, results in non-delivery of thousands of pamphlets with a heavy financial loss to the state. But machine addressing will permit starting the mailing task later.

Cost of printing the pamphlets at the last primary election was $78,000 and at the last general election $119,985. Cost of addressing and mailing the pamphlets during the last biennium was $30,000.

Non-Propertied Bond Votes Target of Farm Bureau Move

A move to prevent non-property owners from "burdening down with heavy taxes" those who do own property, was started Friday by Oregon Farm Bureau delegates in their annual convention at Senator Hotel.

One of the first resolutions passed pledged the bureau's "full membership" support to bring about declaring unconstitutional the voting of bonds and taxes upon property by non-property owners.

The Oregon Farm Bureau, which began its annual state meeting here Wednesday will not complete business until sometime Saturday afternoon, indications were Friday night. Election of officers will be the final business of the four-day session.

A number of changes proposed in the general farm policy, submitted at the Friday afternoon delegate's meeting, delayed procedure and finally sent the policy back to a committee for further study.

The morning was devoted to addresses, chiefly on power, land and water issues.

"Many people," C. C. Butler, land and water specialist of the American Farm Bureau, told the general assembly, "who are interested in the phosphate developments in Idaho have felt that the government dam is preferable to the Idaho Power Company dams because power for electric furnace operations could presumably be obtained at a lower rate."

But this is not correct, in the opinion of Butler, who pointed out that the present power policies of the Interior Department require that electric power be sold under rate schedules that will provide for the cost of producing and transmitting the energy and return to the treasury the capital investment together with interest over a period not to exceed 50 years.

Almost directly in opposition to Butler's statements, was that of Charles Baker, Pacific Supply Cooperative, who was the next speaker. "We need low cost power and about the only place it can come from is such dams as Hell's Canyon."

Thomas Delzell, Portland General Electric, said he believed the "recently announced Federal power policy is entirely sound." He did not believe the policy should be made one of public versus private power, nor yet a political issue as "all parties are interested in resource development."

"People have found us," he said as he spoke of the rapid growing population in the northwest. He urged that federal appropriations be "kept on schedule," that encouragement be given private and public utilities to "do a better job" and spend more toward necessary improvements.

County's Tax Returns Top Three Million
About half of the 47,970 statements issued recently by the Marion County tax department have brought in payment of $3,184,441, County Sheriff Denver Young reported Friday.

Receipts totaling 22,761 (effective 5 p.m. Wednesday) were received by the department. Total county tax roll for 1933-34 is $6,459,009.

Sheriff Young said that this return is about normal. Last year at this time a total of 21,380 receipts had been issued which accounted for $2,648,394. Last year's tax roll was $5,412,688—about one million dollars less than this year.

"The total as of Wednesday does not include mail which has come in since that time," Young explained. Taxpayers who paid a portion of their tax before Nov. 15 took advantage of a percentage reduction.

Prep Writers Aid Seal Sale
Over $2,000 was received by the Marion County Tuberculosis and Health Association in the first week of the annual Christmas seal sale in the county.

The annual School Press Project begins next week wherein high school and junior high school publications are invited to participate in advertising interest in the tuberculosis seal sale.

Advertising is achieved by the use of news and feature stories, editorials and art work in their November and December issues. Subjects for the competition are "How Our Town Fights TB" and "What You Know About TB." A $25 prize is offered to any student who receives national recognition in this project.

But this is not correct, in the opinion of Butler, who pointed out that the present power policies of the Interior Department require that electric power be sold under rate schedules that will provide for the cost of producing and transmitting the energy and return to the treasury the capital investment together with interest over a period not to exceed 50 years.

Almost directly in opposition to Butler's statements, was that of Charles Baker, Pacific Supply Cooperative, who was the next speaker. "We need low cost power and about the only place it can come from is such dams as Hell's Canyon."

Thomas Delzell, Portland General Electric, said he believed the "recently announced Federal power policy is entirely sound." He did not believe the policy should be made one of public versus private power, nor yet a political issue as "all parties are interested in resource development."

"People have found us," he said as he spoke of the rapid growing population in the northwest. He urged that federal appropriations be "kept on schedule," that encouragement be given private and public utilities to "do a better job" and spend more toward necessary improvements.

County's Tax Returns Top Three Million
About half of the 47,970 statements issued recently by the Marion County tax department have brought in payment of $3,184,441, County Sheriff Denver Young reported Friday.

Receipts totaling 22,761 (effective 5 p.m. Wednesday) were received by the department. Total county tax roll for 1933-34 is $6,459,009.

Sheriff Young said that this return is about normal. Last year at this time a total of 21,380 receipts had been issued which accounted for $2,648,394. Last year's tax roll was $5,412,688—about one million dollars less than this year.

"The total as of Wednesday does not include mail which has come in since that time," Young explained. Taxpayers who paid a portion of their tax before Nov. 15 took advantage of a percentage reduction.

Prep Writers Aid Seal Sale
Over $2,000 was received by the Marion County Tuberculosis and Health Association in the first week of the annual Christmas seal sale in the county.

The annual School Press Project begins next week wherein high school and junior high school publications are invited to participate in advertising interest in the tuberculosis seal sale.

Advertising is achieved by the use of news and feature stories, editorials and art work in their November and December issues. Subjects for the competition are "How Our Town Fights TB" and "What You Know About TB." A $25 prize is offered to any student who receives national recognition in this project.

Mrs. L. S. Shuford is chairman of the school project.
