

Cotton Bowl's 'Goat' Lauded For 'Spirit'

NEW YORK (AP) — "I was just so full of Alabama that I couldn't let him get by."

So repeated Alabama fullback Tommy Lewis to a nationwide television audience Sunday night when he rushed from the bench to make his now celebrated tackle of touchdown-bound Dick Moegele of Rice in the Cotton Bowl football game Friday. Rice won 28-6.

Ed Sullivan, master of ceremonies of the "Toast of the Town" T-V show (CBS), introduced Lewis on the program after flashing on the screen The Associated Press wirephoto sequence showing Lewis making his tackle.

"After Lewis had realized what he had done he got up off the ground and went back to the bench absolutely crushed," explained Sullivan. "I've talked to Tommy's young wife, Mary, and she feels the same way. But there is no reason to," Sullivan added.

"Shows worth of Eamonn and Sullivan's immediate reaction throughout the country to the incident was that any youngster with that much spirit gave proof of the worth of college football," Sullivan said.

Lewis, who is interested in playing pro football and coaching high school athletics, appeared a little nervous when first introduced by Sullivan as "one of the finest boys I've ever met."

But the crew-cut husky from Greenville, Ala., broke into a broad grin when he said "I was just so full of Alabama that I couldn't let Moegele get by."

Sullivan also introduced Moegele, Rice coach Jesse Neely, Oklahoma's end Matt Boydston and halfback Merrill Green and Michigan State Rose Bowl star Billy Wells as representatives of this year's bowl heroes.

NCAA Chiefs Plan 'Teeth'

especially in regard to recruiting and financial aid to athletes.

Since the code was voted out at a tumultuous meeting in Dallas three years ago, several minor provisions of the "sanity code" have been reinstated.

This effort to make the NCAA a real regulatory body drew strong support from the Presidents Committee of the American Council on Education, which threatened action of its own if the NCAA failed to act.

Legislation to be considered at the NCAA general session next Friday includes not only the national eligibility code, but restrictions on the number of regular season football and basketball teams each team may play, a "streamlined" means of enforcing its regulations and means of giving more power to the small colleges, which generally are opposed to excesses in the athletic programs.

for the 1924 season but he left the next year for Detroit.

At Gonzaga, he developed Houston Stockton, regarded as the best back Gonzaga ever had, and three other players, who later returned as head coach at Gonzaga — Mike Pecarovich, Ray Flaherty and John (Puggy) Hunton.

Rockne once told how he and Dorais split up at Notre Dame where they were assistants. Both had been offered the head coaching job and couldn't decide which should take it. They flipped a coin, Rockne recalled, and Dorais lost and came west.

Dorais succeeded at Gonzaga by Clipper Smith, brought his highly rated Detroit team to Spokane for a game in 1940. It drew only about 6,500 fans. The poor attendance at that game has been given as an example of why Gonzaga couldn't afford to return to football after dropping it in 1941.

Dorais coached the University of Detroit from 1925 to 1942 winning 19 straight games at one point. In 1937, he guided the College All-Stars to their first win in the pre-season game — a 6-0 verdict over the Green Bay Packers.

Dorais took over head coaching duties of the Detroit Lions in 1943, stepping out in 1947.

Until he became ill six months ago, Dorais had operated an auto agency in Wabash, Ind.

Tillamook Quint Tops Sublimity

SUBLIMITY (Special) — Tillamook Catholic trailed at the half but came on for a 53-43 basketball win over Sublimity's Saints Sunday in a non-league pre-contest. The Saints were on the short end of a 15-14 count at the end of the first period, but moved in front by 25-24 at the intermission. The Tillamook quint then jumped to a 37-34 margin at the three-quarter stop and never was headed thereon.

Brian Bailey led Tillamook with 16 points, but Sublimity's Jim Lewis was the game's top scorer with 18 markers.

Tillamook also won the JV tilt, 49-45.

Merle Curtis and Fred Karr, two of the most ardent rollers in the city have the distinction of being Salem's oldest, active kegglers. Their ages are 63 and 72 respectively. The story of Merle's ability was run in this column last week. One item we forgot to mention was that Merle in an accident a few years back received a broken leg and there was some doubt if she would ever roll again. Mrs. Curtis, since then has erased all doubt. . . . Fred's ten pin achievements start from a long way back (around 1890 during the days of wooden balls) and are still mounting. It is truly a life full of bowling thrills with more to come. If you were to ask Freddie how long before retirement? the answer would be, "Never," with a big friendly smile. . . .

Last week proved to be one of the highest scoring weeks of last year. Leading the parade with a huge 696 was the Goat of last week's column, Ercei Kay. Eric put games of 200-241-255 in forming the highest three-game series of the year. Another series that deserves special attention was the 611 total rolled by John (Lefty) Doerfler. This 600 series was the first ever in league play for the southpaw. John had consistent games of 200-204-207. . . . Other top rollers for the week were Ed Wilkalis-647, Bob Thompson-600, Bob Reeves-647, Don (Miracle) Lutz-636, Tom Brennan-634, John Irons-842 (4 games), Gene Kitzmiller-622, Bunny Bunnell-602.

Many Honors for Karr's Teams

Just to mention a few of the titles held by Karr's various teams. The 2910 Class B record score (Schief's Clothing Co.) posted in 1928 still stands at the top of the list for Class B title for the Northwest in Vancouver, B. C., 1950. Karr's team the Class B state title at Hillsboro last year. Fred took a team to the Western States Tournament at San Jose last year and came home with the first place payoff of $1,000.00. The Karr's 5 Old Misers won the Major loop crown two years back and today lead the same league by a two game margin. It is truly a life full of bowling thrills with more to come. If you were to ask Freddie how long before retirement? the answer would be, "Never," with a big friendly smile. . . .

New member for the Triplette Club: Jim Debow of the Valley Oil crew. Jim threw carbon copy games of 168-168-168. His average isn't 168, but it is close at 167. . . .

It is seldom a roller who weighs 253 pounds can bowl anywhere near his weight. This rare feat was achieved last Monday night at U-Bowl when Don (263 pounds) Lutz cut loose with a high scoring 256 game. They tell me he had to loose nine pounds in order to accomplish this feat. That 247 game rolled by team mate Gene Kitzmiller was his highest single game score for the last three years. . . .

Trailways Cafe team of the "875" Classic league gave one of the greatest exhibitions of team rolling ever, last Monday night. The team rolled games of 975-924-950 for the highest scratch score ever rolled in league at U-Bowl, a high 2849 total. Team members and scores were Floyd McNeil-522, Gene Kitzmiller-622, Art Upston-565, Don Lutz-636 and John (Low Dog) Riches-594. . . .

Salem Could Field Able Old-Timers Crew

Noticed an article in the paper the other day where a team's average age was sixty-eight years. Well! you may not believe it but Salem could have a team, and a pretty good one too, that would average sixty-nine years. Team members of Salem's Old Slickers would be Fred Karr-72, Elwood Bolser-71, John Rayburn-70, Frank Simons-70 and take your pick from any of the following, Don Poul-63, Ercei Kay-63, Walt Cline-60. Any combination would give you around an 850 team average. . . . Not bad for a bunch of kids. . . .

To often we overlook the most important man in the bowling alley, the Pin Boy. This week we salute one of the best pin-men in the city, John Linn. John who started his pinsetting job at the age of fifty-four, and has been setting them up ever since, celebrated his 62nd birthday on New Year's eve, working at his favorite pastime, pinsetting. Mr. Bob Haugen rates him as a number one pinboy who along with son Henry is always one of the first to complete his league's. . . .

Wild shots from the alleys: Bob Dyer picking the 7-9, 6-7-10 splits during open play action Wednesday night at Capitol. Roy Gunn rolling consistent games of 136-256-147 for a dandy 539. Bob Haugen checking 23 strikes for a high 689 in open play action at U-Bowl. Jack Olney trying to show wife Dot how to pick spares. Dotie rolled three games for 506. Jack scorched the alleys with a 452. . . .

Don't forget gals: The deadline for entries in the City Tournament is January 6. . . .

Washington Gets 2 More Cubans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Saturday traded three pitchers, a first baseman and an outfielder for two Cubans of the Senators' Chattanooga farm club, Calvin Griffith, executive vice president of the Washington team, announced he was sending to Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association pitchers Julio Moreno, James Pearce and Zeke Zeiss, first baseman Roy Hawes and outfielder Glen Varner.

In return, the Senators will get Julio Becquer and Juan Delis.

Saddle Club Holds 2-Day Horse Show

Action finished Sunday afternoon in the Salem Saddle Club's second annual Invitational Horse Show, a two-day affair held at the Fairgrounds arena. Entries were from Salem and numerous riding clubs throughout the mid-Willamette valley.

In the cow-cutting competition, open class, Fred McDonough's Hairpin Hattie and Grant Farris' Silver Flex tied for first, while Bernalou Fleck was first in the novice division. Second in the novice group was Ralph Geise on Bobby.

Louie Torresillas was first in the bulldogging category, followed by Craig Landeen and Laurence Dewitt.

In calf roping, top honors went to Bob Foster and second was Stub Johnson. Ursula Mathias, Salem, was No. 1 in the western pleasure horse class, second being Bernalou Fleck of Oswego and third Vada Carson of Silverton.

The Salem girls team placed first in stake bending. Members are Jean Smith, Bonnie Jenkinson, Judith Seamster, Diane Hickman and Gladys Seamster. The Albany Saddle Club was second and the Salem Saddle Club third.

In the Texas Clover Leaf division, Dale Miller of Albany was first, Bus Youngquist second and Gene Sitton, Albany, third.

The Salem Club's entry of Gene Southwick, Ivan Sutton, Fred Fetch and Wayne Terry was tops in the flag relay. Second was the Oregon Mounted Posse and third was the Albany Saddle Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Fuhl won the matched pairs competition. Second were Gladys and Judith Seamster and third Fred Fetsch and Mel Southwick. Vada Carson was first in the park hack class, Jean Smith was second and Rod Hofstetter third.

General chairman for the show was Ralph Dangeby.

GOLF DANGEROUS

PORTLAND (AP) — Something new in the way of perils on the golf links has popped up.

Judge B. F. Van Dyke, 67, of the third district appellate court, broke his right leg Saturday while playing. The injury was suffered when the golfmobile he was riding overturned.

IRISHMAN DEFEATED HOLLYWOOD (AP) Cecil Schoonmaker, 120, won a unanimous decision over southpaw Irish Jimmy Quinn, 117, in a 10-round main event rematch at Legion Stadium Saturday night.
