Nice recognition for St. Paul's Sam Smith in being named as a member of the West B grid squad for next summer's annual Shrine clash at Pendleton . . . Sam, a ripping, snorting ball packer was the shining light on the Buckaroos' six-man aggregation which gained the State playoffs in the fall-and he showed so much stuff in the six-man sport that he's bound to be a big help to the Wests in that coming eleven-man fracas . . . Also selected for the squad is Rudy Herr of Brownsville, another sixman whizz, who staged a sterling duel with Smith in the playoff quarter finals. Walter O'Malley, prexy of dem Dodgers, says Brooklyn will have a new ball park in five years. Does that mean O'Malley will follow through on his talk about an edifice that's include such ultra features as an adjustable roof for playing area and all? . . .

This O'Malley idea created quite a stir when it hit print a couple of years ago. Most scoffed and said such an eye-opener wouldn't be much sooner arriving than a trip to the moon . . . But what a heaven-sent thing such a stadium would be in erasing schedule trafife-jams caused by rain- 1,500 entries to shoot for the ap- and it was simply a matter of the outs. The adjustable roof would make rain-checks a thing of the past . . . Open the roof on the sunkist days and the balmy nights; shut it tight when the rain drops come . . .

JACK KRAMER

M'Gosh! Same Old Game of Week Policy

The NCAA people, evidently not overly blessed with the ability to see the masses' side of things, aim to stick to the same old pattern in next fall's Game of the Week television schedule. That means schedules rigidly set up far ahead of time -and more griping like last season when most of the TV'd contests had no more national interest than a game of mumblypeg down in Pumpkin Corner . . .

Why doesn't pro tennis have the lustre of its amateur brother? Several reasons and firstly being what does it prove? You beat me one night and I beat you the next night-and that goes on for maybe 150 nights . . . Secondly, the current barnstorming troupe includes 38-year-old Don Budge. Now Don was one of the greatest of 'em all in his heyday, but it has been quite a few moons since his heyday ... Thirdly, somebody will be named the champ when the extended tour is at an end-but he'll be a cheese champ since the best of 'em all. Jack Kramer, isn't even participating. Jack has tossed the racquet aside in favor of promotional duties . . .

Maybe, as with race horses, that Kentucky bluegrass also works wonders with the guys that tramp up and down the maple courts. Most everyone relishes the hope that Kaintuck's Wildcats get knocked off one of these nights-but it wouldseem to be an idle hope . . . The Wildcats seem to have the magic formula once again . . .

Sublimity's Townie cage club—they're called the Hawks—has played a couple of doubleheaders this season. That's a practice not overly common among basketeers. Where do the boys get that extra Valenti, Oregon State college

Boston Ted's Ego Ranks Behind Others

The ego of Ted Williams has always been played to the skies, but that Korean stint must have mellowed Ted or else it was nothing but hot air in the first place . . . Whatever it be, Ted's name is not among those picked by baseball's scribes as the most conceited in the Majors . . . Some of the names might surprise you. There's Jackie Jensen, slated to be a new teammate of Williams' at Boston next season (and won't Jackie's ego suffer embarrassment at comparison with Williams 'exploits). And there's Bob Lemon of Cleveland and Ted Gray of the Tigers and Saul Rogovin of Cincinnati.

And then there are three names that bring no surprise at all-Billy Martin of the Yanks; Buck Newsom, the old warhorse who's played with virtually every club in the Big Show and Russ Meyer, the hot-tempered Brooklyn pitching man . . . Martin, Newsom and Meyer never have been known as blushing violets . . .

Bevo Francis, who jumped Rio Grande College from a nonentity into a name, remains in the stratosphere of pointmaking (43.5 average) and does it despite playing some bonafide and tough competition . . . Bevo's field goals are manufactured almost entirely to a jump push shot as contrasted with the hooking done by the bulk of the big scorers nowadays. If Bevo had a Houbregs style hook to go along with his present equipment, think of the possibilities . . .
