

Russian Encyclopedia Paints Harsh Picture of Dulles, Eden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Russians who look up the Western foreign ministers in the new Red reference book may think their own Vyacheslav M. Molotov will be little better off at the Berlin Big Four conference than Daniel in the Lions' den.

Biographies in the latest edition of "The Great Soviet Encyclopedia" list the United States' John Foster Dulles, Britain's Anthony Eden and France's Georges Bidault as diehard reactionaries. This Russian work says of the U. S. secretary of state: "Dulles, John Foster, born 1888—Reactionary U. S. politician, belonging to the Republican Party. One of the most reactionary representatives of American imperialism, which tries to achieve world domination . . .

Demos Delay Vote on NLRB Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats on the Senate Labor Committee Wednesday forced a two-day postponement of a committee vote on President Eisenhower's nomination of Albert C. Beeson to the National Labor Relations Board.

The nomination, subject to Senate confirmation, drew critical fire from Senators Lehman (D-NY), Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Douglas (D-Ill.). All demanded more information on Beeson, and Lehman called Beeson "a company man." Republicans on the committee expressed complete confidence in Beeson. Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), committee chairman, said he was certain Beeson would be approved. Both senators Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and Purtell (R-Conn.) said they were certain he would do an excellent job and indicated that the fact he has held several high management jobs should not be a bar to his confirmation.

Sharp Questions
The Democrats did not question Beeson's integrity, and there was no indication they would vote against him on the final tally, but they did question him sharply. Kennedy said Beeson was the first man ever named to the board to come "direct" from either management or labor.

In response to questions, Beeson said he thought the NLRB under former President Truman had administered the Taft-Hartley Act more in favor of labor than management.

"Very frankly," he said, "I think it has been stretched to meet some people's ideas" and that "the attempt was to continue the bias of the Wagner Act, which the Taft-Hartley Law sought to balance."

Act Amended
The Wagner Act of 1935 was amended by the Taft-Hartley Act in 1947. The Wagner Act outlawed "unfair labor practices" by employers.

Beeson's appointment to the NLRB would give the Eisenhower administration a clear majority on the five-man board. Referring to this, Kennedy said Beeson might "change the whole attitude of the board."

The board, lacking one member for several months, has been stymied in several important cases by tie votes between the present four members. This stalemate has also extended to possible revisions of a whole series of board interpretations and administrative rulings.

Kennedy and Lehman asked the committee to put off action until Friday so that they could investigate more fully Beeson's past record in labor-management relations.

Beeson is 47 years old. His present job is industrial relations vice president for the Food, Machinery and Chemical Corp. of San Jose, Calif.

Asked by Sen. Murray (D-Mont) if he was "free from any bias" in the field of labor relations, he said: "I certainly hope so." At another point he said he "would not dare accept this appointment to the board" if I did not think I was free from bias.

4-H Awards Presented at St. Joseph's

Several awards were presented to 4-H Club members Wednesday night during a Parents' Night program at St. Joseph's School.

The 4-H part of the program recognized the children's work during 1953.

Mary Ann Meyer and Carolyn Hamstreet, champion cooking demonstration team, received certificates of award and $10 half-scholarships to 4-H club summer school, presented by Carlos Lagerfeld, manager of Safeway stores.

Members to receive first year pins presented by C. A. Loe, First National Bank, were Mary Ann Meyer, Geodell Herberger, Carolyn Hamstreet, Nancy Hiron, Kenneth Pavelek, Richard Saalfeld, Thomas Alley, Mickey Gallagher, Vern McFarland, John Hamann, Patricia Hoffman.

Second year awards: Susan Hamstreet; third year, Gerald Pavelek; fourth year, Joanne Gray and John Hamstreet.

John Hamstreet received a silver belt buckle from Sears Roebuck Foundation for second award in vegetable growing.

Leaders recognized by James Bishop, city extension agent, were Mrs. John Hamstreet, cooking; Mrs. George Hamann and Mrs. John Gallagher, camp cooking; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Douris, rabbits.

Leaders in 1954 projects include Mrs. Frank Pavelek, bachelor sewing; Mrs. Howard Steen, clothing; Mrs. John Hamstreet, clothing.

As a representative of the American monopolies he played a great role in the re-creation after the First World War 1914-18 of the German war potential, in the financing of the Hitlerite party and the incitement of German-Fascist aggression." Outlines Activities

Describing Dulles as one of the creators of the Marshall Plan and of the "aggressive North Atlantic bloc," the Soviet encyclopedia offers its readers this outline of his more recent activities: "He supports the resurgence of Fascism in West Germany and its inclusion into the aggressive North Atlantic bloc. He takes an active part in the remilitarization of Japan and its transformation into a base for an attack upon the USSR and the Chinese People's Republic."

Dulles is also termed "one of the initiators and organizers of the American armed aggression against Korea and China, launched in June, 1950."

"Eden, Anthony (born 1897)" appears in the encyclopedia as a "reactionary politician and diplomat" who, in Russian eyes, is a former appeaser of Hitler and Mussolini, and embraced aggressive imperialism after World War II.

Tracing Georges Bidault's career in French politics, the book declared among other things: "He joined the resistance movement in 1942 in order to limit its scope . . . by his active participation in the creation of the aggressive Western bloc (1948) he trampled under his feet the pact of friendship and mutual assistance with the Soviet Union, signed by himself December 10, 1944."

Citizenship Trial Includes Blood Tests

SEATTLE (AP)—Four Chinese were given blood tests Wednesday by order of a federal judge hearing the claim of three of the men that they are United States citizens.

Federal Judge William J. Lindberg ordered the tests for Ma Chuck Moon, 28; Ma Chuck Woon, 20; Ma Chuck Wun, 19, and Ma Tarn Sun, 45. The first three claim to be sons of Sun, a Seattleite, and consequently entitled to U.S. citizenship.

The claims of the three Ma Chucks are disputed by the government and Judge Lindberg ordered the blood tests at the request of Assistant U.S. Attorney John E. Belcher.

Sun says he married the mother of the three boys in China in 1924 while visiting there and that he has made some 10 subsequent trips to the homeland, resulting in the birth of the three.

The government contends the youngest of the trio is not 19 but more, and has submitted tests taken by the United States Public Health Service which purport to show his age is under 15.

The blood tests asked by Belcher cannot prove paternity, the court was told, but it can disprove it if the results show a blood type which Ma Tarn Sun could not have fathered.

The case is being tried under a provision of the Nationality Act of 1940. This permitted Chinese to come to this country to prosecute court actions started by friends. In this case, Ma Tarn Sun started the action to prove the citizenship of the three sons and they were permitted to come from Hong Kong to participate in the trial.

The Nationality Act no longer is in effect but actions started during its life still are being tried. Belcher said there are 65 such cases pending in Seattle and 800 in San Francisco.

Results of the blood test will be made known later.

Actor's Loan to Congressional Prober Studied

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Velde (R-Ill.) of the House Un-American Activities Committee arrange a conference with movie actor Edward G. Robinson to get his version of a $300 loan the actor reportedly made to a committee investigator.

Robinson appeared as a friendly witness before the House group during an inquiry into Communism in Hollywood.

The investigator, Louis J. Russell, told the Washington Star he borrowed the money long after Robinson testified as a witness before the House Committee.

He said he needed the money to pay medical bills for his family at a time when he couldn't borrow from a bank. The loan, he said, had not been repaid.

Chairman Velde, who fired Russell last week from his $11,600-a-year post as the committee's chief investigator, declined to say whether the dismissal was prompted by the $300 loan from Robinson.

Ritchie Denies Knowledge of Reuther Case

DETROIT (AP)—The key police witness in the Walter Reuther shooting case Wednesday told newsmen he had no knowledge of or connection with the 1948 shotgun attempt on the life of the CIO president.

The unexpected statement by Donald Ritchie was released by his attorneys just 24 hours before United States authorities were to go into court at Windsor, Ont.

and seek his extradition. He had refused to return to Detroit voluntarily.

Ritchie's story to Wayne County (Detroit) authorities earlier this month led to the issuing of warrants against four men accused of taking part in the attempt to slay Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers.

The repudiation of previous statements made to Wayne County

Prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien Jan. 6, was expected to make the extradition proceedings harder for Michigan authorities.

O'Brien previously stated that Ritchie's statements were the basis for conspiracy warrants against four men implicated in the shooting.

The four are: Carl Renda, 35, Santo (Sam) Perrone, 56, Clarence Jacobs, 48, and Peter Lombardo, 51.

C. of C. Officials to Speak at Conference

Two Salem Chamber of Commerce officials will speak at a conference of Oregon and Washington chamber executives in Portland Feb. 7-9.

President William H. Hammond will address a Feb. 8 session on "By-Laws are Important." Manager Clay Cochran will be on a Feb. 9 panel on "What's New in Chamber Programs."

Rare Blood Type Sought

PORTLAND (AP)—The Red Cross asked Wednesday for the names of people with a rare blood type, RH negative 2-B, who would give it when called upon, to help save the life of a four-year-old girl.

Assurance of a steady supply—it needs to be fresh—for the child is sought.

The girl, Susan O'Lander, has been in a hospital here nearly two months with an ailment not yet diagnosed by doctors. They said it resembles leukemia in some ways and in others it doesn't.

She does require constant transfusions of the rare type, of which the supply is small.

Susan was born in San Francisco while her mother, Mrs. Raymond O'Lander, was in an iron lung with polio. Mrs. O'Lander still is confined to a rocking bed.

Although whales are mammals they have no external hind legs.
