Jewish Congregation to Host All-Faith Brotherhood Meet

The Salem Jewish Congregation, hearing its 40th anniversary, will be host to representatives of both Christian and Jewish congregations at a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in the Salem synagogue.

The meeting, in observance of Brotherhood Week, will be sponsored by the Conference of Christians and Jews and will include speakers from both faiths.

Preview of Indian School Show Given

CHEMAWA—A preview showing of the annual Chemawa Indian School pageant was given Thursday night to school employees and students. The public presentation is scheduled at 7:45 tonight in the school gymnasium.

Tickets, being sold for the first time this year, are on sale at four Salem business houses—Stevens and Son Jewelers, Wicklund's Sporting Goods Store, Mootry's Pharmacy and the Keizer Pharmacy. No tickets will be available at the door tonight, school officials said.

The pageant, entitled "Canoe Prophecies," will commemorate the 74th anniversary of the school's founding. In former years admission was free but school officials feel the nominal charge will control the size of the crowd which in past years has all but swamped the school on program nights.

Man, 74, Hit By Car, Not Hurt Seriously

A 74-year-old pedestrian was shaken up but apparently escaped serious injury when he was struck by a car at the intersection of State and Commercial Streets Thursday night, city police reported.

The pedestrian, Harvey Hoffman, 168 N. 13th St., refused medical attention from city first aidmen.

He told police he was walking east across Commercial Street in the south crosswalk when a car driven by James Newell Francis, 1230 N. 18th St., struck him.

Police quoted Francis as saying that he was turning left off State Street onto Commercial Street and did not see Hoffman until his car struck him. Police reported that streets were wet but no rain was falling at the time of the accident.

Paper Firm Adds Director

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Truman W. Collins, Portland lumberman and financier, was elected Thursday to the board of directors of the Crown Zellerbach Corp.

The Collins family has been in the lumber business 100 years. In addition to numerous industrial positions, Collins is a trustee of Willamette University. He was graduated from that school in 1922.

DRIVER ARRESTED
City police Thursday night arrested Pete Tognietti, general delivery, Salem, on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was held Thursday night in lieu of $250 bail.

Panel Talks On Red Cross Slated Today

Educational and safety services of the Marion County Red Cross accounted for a big part of the chapter's activity during 1953, according to George W. Goforth, general chairman of the fund campaign, and whether all these services will continue depends on the outcome of the campaign slated to get underway Monday.

A prelude to the fund drive will be a panel discussion by Red Cross leaders at 3 p.m. today over Station KGAE when questions submitted by listeners concerning the Red Cross will be answered, Goforth said.

Nursing Instruction
Services of the local chapter include instruction in home nursing, water safety and first aid, the general chairman said.

Eighteen instructors are now available for home nursing instruction which is receiving emphasis in the Civilian Defense program, Goforth pointed out, and many of these instructors were trained during the past year.

Lack of Instructors
Lack of instructors in first aid last year limited that phase of the Red Cross program but during the year 60 instructors were trained, 24 classes conducted and 377 certificates issued, he said. The increased number of instructors will make possible more classes this year, Goforth said, if the campaign goal of $40,000 is achieved.

The water safety program, the annual learn-to-swim classes held each summer with volunteer workers, trained 10 instructors during 1953 and 308 students received swimming certificates, he revealed. This number includes advanced students as well as basic swimming students.

Study Set on Forest Access Road Building

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Ellsworth (R-Ore.) said Thursday Budget Director Dodge has agreed to put technical aides to work studying his bill to finance forest access road construction.

He made the statement after a conference in which he said Dodge "appeared to like the general idea" of the legislation.

The bill would set up a five-year 125 million dollar construction program which would permit the harvest of the maximum allowable annual cut from the nation's forests.

The allowable cut is 6,600,000,000 board feet. Present annual harvests are less than 5 billion. Increased revenues from the higher cut, Ellsworth said, would return some 30 million dollars each year to the federal treasury.

Concedes Need
The congressman said that while Dodge conceded the need for increased forest access road construction he objected to provisions of the bill to finance the program by treasury loans to the Forest Service.

Such loans, not to exceed 25 million dollars annually, would be made upon certification that the roads are needed and that sale of timber to be made accessible by them would be sufficient to repay the construction cost.

Agrees to Amendment
Ellsworth said Dodge indicated he felt such a mandatory financing provision could not be supported in view of efforts to keep within the nation's debt ceiling. To meet the objection, Ellsworth said he agreed to amend the bill to require congressional approval of the appropriation.

The smallest bones of the human body are those—three in number—located in the middle ear.

Brain Wash Blamed for Confession

WASHINGTON (AP)—Col. Frank H. Schwable said in a statement introduced at Marine Corps Court of Inquiry Thursday that he signed a fake germ warfare confession after a Red brain washing had reduced him to feeling like an animal in the zoo.

When a person has gone through such an experience, Schwable said, he is so tormented by fears and doubts that he feels as if "the devil is whispering" in his ear.

The court is holding hearings to decide whether to recommend that Schwable go before a court martial on charges of actions detrimental to the United States.

Nude 'March' Blamed in Actress' Suit

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Actor Jess Barker testified Thursday that his twin sons told him that Howard Hughes had called to see his wife, actress Susan Hayward.

Barker was asked by his attorney whether there had been any change in the attitude of 9-year-old Timothy and Gregory toward him since he left the couple's home last July 17.

"They have been quite silent toward me," Barker replied, "but they did tell me that a man who had called at the house to see their mother had been introduced to them as 'Mr. Magic.'"

Children Reply
"And when I asked who this man might be, they said: 'his name is Howard Hughes, and he said he was going to take us for an airplane ride, but mother said we should not tell you his name.'"

The Hughes referred to was not further identified in Barker's testimony. However, Miss Hayward said on the stand afterward that Hughes, RKO studio production chief, had called to take her out.

Earlier Miss Hayward wept after testifying that Barker once beat her and tossed her into a swimming pool.

The swimming pool incident, she said, took place the night of last July 16-17. Barker, she testified, dragged her from the house and threw her in the swimming pool. He ducked her, and when she came up screaming he pushed her under again, Miss Hayward said.

Cloth in Bathrobe
At the time she was clad only in a terry cloth bathrobe, the actress said, explaining: "I sleep in the robe."

The robe became so heavy with water that she discarded it, and when she managed to get out of the pool he marched her to her room in the nude, Miss Hayward testified. It was at this point in her testimony that she broke down.

Salem Soldier Among Freed Adventists

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—The commander of Fort Richardson Thursday ordered the release to regular duty of four soldiers after they had served only three weeks of a six months sentence for refusal to perform duties on their sabbath.

The four soldiers, members of the Alaska Mission of Seventh-day Adventists, were sentenced by a military court martial after refusing to participate in a Saturday morning alert.

They were freed from the post stockade on orders of Col. Barney Daughtry, who said the principle involved has been established and he felt it was unnecessary to continue the punishment.

The men will continue to work Sundays instead of Saturdays, their sabbath, except on special occasions, a military spokesman said.

They are Pvt. Numan Hafner, Harrisburg, Ore.; Harold L. Massey, Salem, Ore.; Robert L. Nelson, Chicago, and Richard B. Spencer, New Orleans.

Edward II of England established the inch as the length of three barley corns laid end to end.

WU Actress Wins Plaudits as Electra

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Staff Writer

If ever student actors deserve the wholehearted support of townspeople, the Willamette Drama department deserves it for the current production of Sophocles' "Electra," which opened a three-day run at Waller hall last night.

From the moment the curtain parted on a greatly enlarged and well-designed stage, until they closed for the last curtain call, the audience was held spellbound by the violent plot and convincing action in the Greek drama.

Completely Convincing
Elizabeth Winslip played the exhausting role of Electra with complete conviction. The daughter of slain Agamemnon, obsessed by revenge for his death, Electra vents hate for her mother, Clytemnestra, scorn of her sister Chrysothemis and finally love for her brother Orestes through almost two hours of violence and passion. Her performance of the role is certainly of professional calibre.

Carl Ritchey as the brother, Clarence Woolery as the sister, Sheila Ryan Laue as the mother and Bruce Fountain as the old Guardian are excellent in their difficult, though less prolonged appearances on the stage. Clytemnestra especially must return her daughter's hate with equal violence. Greek maidens who chant choral odes are Barbara Ruhl, Jean Thomas, Lollie Coffey, Beverly Lytle, Lois Wickersham and Julie Grant. David Findley as Aegisthus, lover of the queen and second murderer of Agamemnon and Robert Kauffman as companion to Orestes make brief but convincing appearances.

Deserves Praise
Robert M. Putnam, editor and director of the production, deserves praise for his work in arranging the text from translations and for his handling of the actors.

The arrangement of the stage warrants special mention. The small stage of Waller hall is given the effect of vast space by the clever use of several levels leading to huge bronze doors set at an angle to provide more depth. Large columns, backed by blue velvet drapes furthered the illusion of space. Jeanne Kimberling designed the very effective doors.

The Salem people, interested in the better known plays both ancient and modern, could find pleasure in patronizing the university's several stage productions each year. It is too bad that the actors must play to only half a house, even when it is as small an auditorium as Waller hall.

Woodroffe's San Shop, Eatery, Sold to Couple From Portland

Woodroffe's San Shop, the big drive-in restaurant on Portland Road, was sold to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kregal, Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Woodroffe, who sold the restaurant, will continue to operate their other business properties in Salem, including the Savings Center markets and North's Restaurant on Center street.

Figuring in the transaction was a modern 18-unit court apartment in Northeast Portland, which the Woodroffes acquired.

The Kregals announced they plan no change in menu, prices, other operations or personnel at the San Shop except for such improvements as may be considered necessary in the future.

They will operate the restaurant. Kregal has been a semi-retired property owner. Mrs. Kregal's family has long been identified with the restaurant industry. The Kregals' son, who has been working for a Portland restaurant, is expected to come into the business here after his military service.

Parties to the deal did not disclose how much money changed hands, because of the extensive personal and real property which figured in the transaction. Both parties were represented by N. G. (Dan) Isaak of the Al Isaak & Co. Salem realtors.

Brief Attire in Korea Caused Monroe Chill

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Marilyn Monroe, who returned Wednesday night from Japan and Korea with a possible case of bronchial pneumonia, was reported "feeling better" Thursday.

The latest report was that she probably will not have to go to a hospital for treatment as husband Joe Di Maggio had feared.

She contracted the possible pneumonia by appearing before troops in icy Korea wearing a low-cut purple dress, and little else.
