The doldrums of the dairy industry were sort of reflected at the sale with 19 high bred animals selling for a total of $2,245 and an average of $118.15. Four animals were not sold, three receiving no bids and one with an offer of $55, not acceptable to the owner.

It was recalled that last year's sale also brought out 19 animals for an average, however, of $167. The 1953 high was $282 with the Saturday high price at $220, a two-year-old consigned by another production could be larger. A reduction of 1,400 acres is indicated for Oregon in 1954, says Thomas. This will be partially offset by an increase of 1,000 acres in California. No change is anticipated for Washington. "Trends in acreage suggest that recent prices have been more attractive to California growers than they have been in Oregon and other important strawberry states," Thomas explains. California's acreage increase could result in a West Coast crop 10 per cent greater, if yields hold to 1953 levels. California's yields are much higher than Oregon's, the economist points out. Competition from other fruits and leveling-off in consumer incomes are apt to have adverse effects on the purchase of packaged strawberries, however, the economist reports.

Supplies of frozen fruit in the nations' cold storage warehouses Feb. 1 were about a fourth larger than year earlier. Out-of-storage movement during January was two-thirds greater than during the same month a year earlier. Should this continue during the next three months, carry-over at the start of the 1954 season will be smaller than last spring. Reports show that during 1953, the Pacific coast states produced more than half of the nation's strawberries. Oregon supplied approximately 15 per cent of the national supply, and California 32 per cent.

Oregon growers sold 96 per cent of their production to processors and California sold 60 per cent, selling the remaining amounts on the fresh market.

Roving Hill Causes Railroad Trouble

EUREKA, Calif,-This is a part of the 500-foot section of the Northwestern Pacific railroad main line near Eureka, Calif., that has to be straightened as much as 40-inches a day because a moving hill, right, keeps pushing it towards Eel River, left of the tracks. The hill has been giving the railroad trouble since the line was built in 1916. Recent heavy rains are the cause of the current "push." In 1938 the hill really got out of hand and the line was tied up for 73 days. (AP Wirephoto to The
