State 'A' Cage Tourney To Start Tuesday Night

Sunday sorties:

The town Senators haven't shouldered their spring training chores here at home for years 'n years, being fearful of the April rains. But now that a field-covering tarpaulin is to be added (at long last) at Waters Field, the management feels that just as much can be accomplished here as in California, Arizona or Florida . . . Speaking of spring Florida ..., Speaking of spring training, the more patriotic Sena-tor fans are already undergoing their potion. They're sitting up nights on their back porches, getting in trim for the early-sea-son evenings at the ball park ... The regular season schedule may or may not have had something or may not have had something to do with Seattle U's demise in last week's playoff with Idaho State. At any rate, of the 27 games on the Chieftain slate, 21 were played at home. Road trips were to Portland, Spokane and Tacoma. So chances are the Seattle lads missed their home cooking at Corvallis. Chances are home schedule like the last one, too . . . Leave it to the U of Kentucky to keep itself in the warmer waters. Adolph Rupp's outfit impressed no one with its most recent move, that of winning the Southeastern Conference by beating Louisiana State, and then im-mediately pulling out of the NCAA playoffs. Rupp may have felt that losing his three graduated stars for NCAA play was too much of a handicap, and withdrew. But wouldn't it have been much better for Kentucky had Adolph charioned, "Well, we can't use our three best men because of the rules. But we're going in anyway, and do the best we can with what we've got." We're sure most other schools would have played it that way ... But then the guy must be still Grade A-1 in the hearts of the Blue Grass folks. Kentucky alumni presented him with a new car the other day, and it wasn't because he needed one. Rupp is actually a wealthy man who need not worry about the figures on his pay check . . . He doesn't get to make good his boast, however. You'll recall that when Kentucky was reinstated this year after being suspended from basketball competition for a season, Rupp remarked that all he wanted to and would do, was accept the national championship trophy from the president of the NCAA. He'll not do it this year . . .

Who Has Won Two National Cage Titles?

Are you up on your NCAA tournament champions? If so you'll know which school, and the only school ever to win two NCAA basketball titles. Kansas, Kentucky, Indiana, Oklahoma A&M, City College of New York? If you say Oklahoma A&M you're right.

Hank Iba's Aggies nailed two straight national championships, the only school ever to accomplish it. And in 1949 the Oklahomans came close to making it three, but lost in the final game to Kentucky at Seattle . . .

Two of the three officials who tooted in the Class B tournament at Willamette should have been easily remembered by haskethall fans. Both had their own big moments as players in bygone Class A tournaments when they were played in the same of WU arena. Jim Bartelt was named to the "All State" team in EUGENE - (Special) - Ore-gon's annual Class A high school basketball tournament gets started at McArthur Court on the University of Oreon campus here Tuesday night, with a double-header at 7:30 o'clock. Six more first-round games will be played on Wednesday, starting at 9 a.m. All 16 teams are now qualified for the playoffs which will run through Saturday. First round pairings were announced by the Oregon Schools Activities office last week following a drawing in their Portland office.

Defending state champion Marshfield is again an entry, and has another strong team, one that was rated highly in the weekly Associated Press polls during the season. But the Pirates happened to draw Milwaukie High's Mustangs for their first opponent, and Milwaukie led the AP poll practically throughout the season. And Jim Bocchi will go down in history as one of those who was given a raw deals in the 1943 tournament. Jim played with Klamath Falls that season, and if you'll recall the Pelicans played Baker in the final game. The "All State" team had been selected that afternoon, which turned out to be a very foolish move.

All Bocchi did in the big finale was to personally put the Pelicans 11-0 ahead of Baker in the first few minutes of the game, scoring seven straight points in a minute and 15 seconds after the opening tipoff! If anyone ever deserved a berth on the mythical star teams, Bocchi did. But he wound up on the second team despite his brilliant, game-winning surge . . .

Mr. Enright Heavyweight Emil Piluso

Speaking of basketball officials, spectators at the NCAA playoffs in Corvallis got an enormous bang out of one Jim Enright, a 20-year veteran out of the Big Ten Conference. An extremely rotund 250-pounder who puts plenty of holler and color into his calls, Enright is a Chicago sports writer who has been assigned to cover the Chicago Cubs spring training camp at Mesa, Ariz., for his paper. He took time off to come to Corvallis for the regionals.

The bulbous Enright picked up all his extracurricular gestures and blah-blah while working in the Eastern pro leagues many years, where the officials are a big part of the act. He's an Emil Piluso with a size 60 waistline, you might say, and who can ever forget the morthful antics Piluso used to go through when he was top tooter in the Northwest for years 'n years . . .

BATON ROUGE (P - Promising | seven under par 65, the tournanewcomer Bud Holscher and baldment's low round so far, to bring veteran Chandler Harper his third round total to 208.

> The 42 year old Harper, playing out of Chattanooga, fired a 66 to join in the lead.

A professional less than nine months, Holscher equaled his oneday-old nine hole course record by coming in with another 31, a stroke better than Harper's come home score.

The veteran Ted Kroll, a frontrunner for the first two days, fell far off the pace with a 75.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, pre-tournament favorite and coholder of the second-round lead with Kroll, went over par for the first time in the tourney with a 73 and slid to 211.
