

McCarthy to Confer With Subcommittee On Tiff With Army

By WILMOT HERCHER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said Monday he will call his Senate Investigations Subcommittee together Tuesday and invite its members to decide whether they want to pass judgment on his bitter fight with the Army.

Chamber Eats At Moore Firm In South Salem

The Moore Business Forms plant in South Salem, now undergoing considerable expansion, was the scene of Monday's noon lunch of the Salem Chamber of Commerce, more than 150 members attending.

Claude A. Miller, manager of the plant since its inception nearly six years ago, detailed the history of the parent organization and paid tribute to Salem men whom he said had been particularly helpful.

Introduced by Miller were Clay Cochran, manager of the Salem Chamber; Harold Walling, builder of the Moore plant; Carl Heinlein, manager of Oregon Pulp and Paper supplier; Sidney Stevens, the Moore plant's first customer in Salem; Frank Test, Salem sales representative of the Moore firm; C. A. Schaefer, general manager of Western Paper Converting Co., and C. A. Sprague, president of the Statesman Publishing Company which sets type for the Moore forms.

The Moore firm was started at Niagara Falls, N. Y., by Samuel Moore in 1884, as producer of manifold forms. Similar production was started in Oakland, Calif., 10 years later, and in 1904 the Pacific Manifold Book Company was formed. Then, in 1945, affiliated firms organized under the single name of Moore Business Forms, which now has 23 plants in the United States and Canada.

Most of the chamber members accepted an invitation to take an extended tour of the plant following the luncheon.

Low Bidder Awarded Tiller Rock Project

Contract for the Tiller Rock Production project on the Tiller-Trail Highway east from Canyonville, Douglas County, Monday was awarded to Vernie Jarl, Gresham on a low bid of $31,590.

There were 10 higher bids received by the State Highway Commission at a meeting in Portland Feb. 24.

The Wisconsin senator rejected suggestions by two leading Republican colleagues that he cancel speaking engagements this week and let the controversy be brought to a quick showdown.

Up for subcommittee review is: 1. An Army charge that Roy Cohn, chief counsel of the group, high-pressured the Army in an attempt to get special privileges for Pvt. G. David Schine, a former member of the subcommittee staff, and 2. McCarthy's countercharge, with ramifications, that the Army was using Schine as "a club" to discourage the subcommittee from pressing its probe of alleged Reds in the Army.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) took the same position, saying "a senator must never let public speaking engagements and things of a semi-private nature interfere" with his public duties. Dirksen is a member of the subcommittee.

McCarthy disclosed that Sen. Potter (R-Mich), another member, had formally asked that the subcommittee consider the whole question Tuesday. McCarthy said he would yield the chair to Sen. Mundt (R-SD) but would take an active part in this and any future hearings, reserving the right to question all witnesses.

Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.) took the same position, saying "a senator must never let public speaking engagements and things of a semi-private nature interfere" with his public duties. Dirksen is a member of the subcommittee.

State Elections Bureau Okehs 5 More Filings

(Story also on Page 1.) Filings of five additional candidates for the primary election, May 21, were accepted by the State Elections Bureau Monday.

Dave O'Hara, registrar of the elections bureau, said these filings were postmarked before midnight last Friday, the deadline for filing for the primary elections. All five of the candidates are for legislative posts. They were:

Former Senator Earl E. Fisher, Beaverton Republican, for state senator.

Verna D. Coffinberry, Pendleton Democrat, for state representative.

Dorothy Lowell, Klamath Falls Democrat, for state representative.

Erick A. Enquist, Troutdale Democrat, for state representative.

Thomas C. Kidder, Portland Democrat, for state representative.

The filing of Otis John Ritter, Cottage Grove Republican, was withdrawn. He filed for state representative from Lane County. Ritter wrote O'Hara that the salary for representative would not provide him with sufficient money to support himself while in Salem.

County School Leaders Begin Meeting Today

The 26th annual meeting of the Oregon Association of County School Superintendents will begin this morning at 9:30 o'clock. All business sessions will be held in Room 309, Capitol Building.

Officials at the State Department of Education estimated that about 45 persons would attend the instructional meeting, including representatives of the state department.

A statement of the purposes of calling the conference will be given this morning by Rex Putnam, superintendent of public instruction. This is to be followed by the president's report of Velma Buckingham, Deschutes County.

Marion County Superintendent Agnes C. Booth is chairman of the auxiliary service group for the association.

Election of officers for the new year will be held during the business session at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Interment will take place at Dallas Cemetery under direction of Bollman Funeral Chapel.

West Salem Baptists to Build Church

Construction of a new church is proposed by the West Salem Baptist congregation which is now making plans and raising funds for the project at Eighth St. and Rosemont Ave.

Church leaders will appear before Salem Planning Commission at 7:30 tonight at City Hall to seek permission to build the church in that location, which is an R-1 residential zone where church construction requires special sanction.

The Conservative Baptist congregation formed in West Salem last May, meets now in the West Salem City Building.

Fund raising for $20,000 to finance the first of three units in the church building plan is now underway. The church has acquired the Eighth St. property extending a full block from Rosemont to Arthur Way.

The first unit would be T-shaped, of concrete slab construction, with an auditorium seating 220 and education rooms. It would be eventually the education wing of the church. Harold Derksen is building chairman and the Rev. Elvin Fast is pastor.

Other business before the zoning commissioners at City Hall tonight will include the controversial request in the Highway Ave. area for less restrictive business zoning; requested alley vacation in the block where Meier & Frank store is to be built; committee reports on pending legislation relating to sidewalks and variance hearings.
