88 Keys for a Fuller Life for Clark and Phil . . .

How the Jacksons picked a piano . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Holly Jackson's main interest in life is their sons' future happiness. They want to provide lasting things to assure it for Clark and Phil (and little Ralph, who was asleep when this picture was taken). With the thought of music and a piano comes the thought of The Stone Piano Company and its reputation built on handling the great names in keyboard instruments . . . the finest quality that money can buy, no matter how modest or how unstinted the family budget.

. . . So the Jacksons came to Stone Piano Company for counsel. Quite naturally their choice was an exquisit Acrosonic Piano by Baldwin.
