Daffodils are a sure sign of spring and what is more appropriate for this season than a pretty girl in a cotton print out picking daffodils. The girl is Gail Lohead, coed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lohead, a junior at the University of Oregon.

When the sun shines in the spring-time down come the convertible tops and the girls let their hair blow while they go riding. Left to right are Carol Svinth, Anita Tanning and Justine Lewis, Willamette University coeds.

After a few sunny days in the early spring out come the lawn mowers, whether they be power or hand mowers. This is the time of the year when the entire family takes to gardening and cleaning up after the long winter. Above, is Mrs. John M. Fitzmaurice, an ardent gardener, who works right along with her husband in the garden, even doing the heavier chores. (All photos by John Erickson, Statesman staff photographer).

Feminine golfers anticipate the spring golf season when the sun shines and they can go out for a round of golf during the week and join their husbands on the weekend. Above are Mrs. Chester Loe and Mrs. Charles Musser, who are a frequent twosome on the golf course.
