Average Salem Driver Pays $908 Yearly to Operate Car

NEW YORK—How much does it cost residents of Salem to own and operate their passenger cars?

An estimate, based on figures produced by the American Automobile Association, shows that it is about $566 a year in fixed expenses and 3.5 cents for every mile driven.

Applying this national average to the local scene, where the latest registration figures show 17,051 passenger cars in use, we get $15,500,000 as the annual cost in Salem. Per car, the cost is $908.

9,700-Mile Average

This assumes that local drivers travel 9,700 miles a year, which is the national average. There is little variation in this respect between urban and rural residents.

The fixed cost, equal to $1.55 a day, covers depreciation, license fees and insurance—fire, theft, property damage and liability ($15,000 and $30,000). This expense piles up daily, even if your car isn't used.

As to the 3.5 cents per mile figure, it covers gas, oil, maintenance and tires.

If you are a 10,000-mile-a-year driver, your operating costs total $350 and your fixed charges $566. The total, $916, is equal to nearly 9.2 cents a mile.

Some Fixed Charges

The 5,000-mile-a-year driver fares worse on a mileage rate. It costs him 14.8 cents a mile since he has the same fixed charges to meet.

On the other hand, cars driven 20,000 miles cost only 6.5 cents a mile on an annual basis.

The fixed charges vary for different parts of the country. The range, according to data presented by the AAA, is from a low of $1.38 a day to a high of $1.88.

Any estimate of driving costs should take into consideration the recognized added expense of driving in congested urban traffic, notes the AAA. Such costs, according to a recent study by the Los Angeles city government, are 15 per cent above normal.

Going higher 100 feet is equivalent to going north about 70 miles.

Hit and Run Case Involves Motorcycle

City police investigated a hit and run accident Saturday involving motorcycles.

G. W. Kaehler, 1375 N. Summer St., told police a car brushed his motorcycle while he and a passenger, Dennis Frost, 840 St., were stopped at the traffic light at 12th and State Streets.

When the car failed to stop, Kaehler said, he chased the vehicle and obtained the license number. Neither he nor his passenger were injured, police said, and the motorcycle apparently was not damaged. Officers identified the owner of the vehicle allegedly involved through the state registration office. No complaint was signed Saturday night.
