

Senators Hit, Spank Rooks In Camp Game

Altogether the Salems hit safely 16 times in the game, with Perez, Tansell and Scrivens each contributing three blows, as Petersen went four and a third innings for the Senators, in rather rough fashion. He was knocked out in the fifth, bringing on the strong-armed young Briggs. The right-hander via option from Sacramento was very impressive in his debut, yielding no hits during his tenure.

Wildness and the inability to get either Johnny Fredericks or Phil Jantze out eventually wrecked Petersen, although he was in front by a 5-4 count when he left.

The phenomenal Fredericks, who smashed out four straight hits in the first game here a week ago, added three more yesterday to make it 7-for-7 before Briggs finally got him out. Even at that the young third sacker with the famous baseball father crashed a long, high liner to Connie Perez in left field for the out.

Jantze, another Salem High "ex", had a double and single, made an unassisted double play at first base and started another after fielding a sharp ground ball off Petersen's bat.

Coach Paul Valenti of the Rooks didn't want to pitch young Sylvester Johnson in the game, as the Rooks play Oregon's Frosh Friday and Johnson will do the hurling in that one.

Tansell played second base in both contests Monday, and what with the impressive way Bellotti has been performing it's likely that Gene will stay at the key-stone bag until further notice.

Tuesday's entire workout, including the games, lasted over six hours. Which is actually a double dose, as spring training workouts generally go. But Storey insists that the long drills while the weather is good are the best tonic there is for getting his gang in shape for the fast-approaching opener April 23.

Neither Pitcher Ernie Domenicelli or Outfielder Pete Estrada, optioned by Sacramento, signed in Tuesday but will no doubt be along one of these days.

7th Horse to Be Withdrawn . . . Derby 'Jinx' Continues As Errard King Injured

NEW YORK — The "jinx" on leading Kentucky Derby candidates continued Tuesday when Joe Gavegnano's fleet Errard King was sidelined indefinitely with an injured right front foot.

The colt's trainer, Irish-born Tom Barry, announced the casualty — a serious quarter crack — after he had galloped the son of Errard for a mile at Jamaica.

It was the same sort of injury suffered by the great Equipoise on the eve of the 1931 Kentucky Derby. Equipoise didn't return to action for a year.

Errard King, who had been made an 8-1 choice in the Louisville classic May 1, not only is lost for that spectacle but also probably won't be able to go in the other features of the triple crown for which he had been nominated — the Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Barry said the colt would be out of action until he could grow a new foot.

This was just another in a series of mishaps which have befallen topflight Kentucky Derby contenders in recent weeks. In all, seven candidates — including the heavily favored Turn-To and Porterhouse — have been withdrawn.

Orioles Trail Braves in Attendance Race

BALTIMORE — Baltimore is off to a slow start in its race to "beat Milwaukee" in baseball attendance.

In its first three games at home, the Orioles have played before 75,966. Milwaukee drew 79,142 in its first three dates last year.

Baltimore officials publicly declared they were out to beat Milwaukee's record of 1,826,397 for the season of 1953. They had a couple of advantages.

Transfer of the Braves from Boston to Milwaukee came shortly before last season started and there wasn't time for a long selling campaign.
