Cpl. Dickenson Called 'Rat' by Fellow POW

WASHINGTON — Army Sgt. Lyle W. Jacobson testified Thursday all loyal Americans in a Korean prison camp knew Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson was "a rat" who squealed on his buddies.

Jacobson glared fiercely at Dickenson as he made the accusation at the four-day-old court martial of Dickenson on charges of collaborating with the Communist enemy and informing on his comrades.

Dickenson, 23, of Cracker Neck, Va., is one of two American GI's who originally chose to stay with the Communists after the armistice but later had a change of mind and came home.

Jacobson, who hails from Butte, Mont., told the court martial that he and seven other POW's spoke among themselves in terms of ridicule of their Communist captors while plotting an escape from the prison camp last April.

As the talk went on, he said, he spotted Dickenson just outside the billet "looking at the ground."

"The next day," Jacobson continued, "I was taken to a Chinaman we called 'The Skull' and was put under interrogation. He began throwing everything we had said back in my face."

The manor is to be located on a 20-acre site two miles south of the Portland city limits. Mummary said founders' fees ranging from $5,000 to $15,000 a month and life care payments of $100 a month per founder will pay for the project.

Nixon Says Ideological Drive Needed

LOS ANGELES — Vice President Richard M. Nixon told 4,000 Republicans at a 100-a-plate centennial dinner Thursday night that "the mounting of a great ideological offensive will make it clear to all the world that the United States associates itself with the aspirations of all peoples for peace."

He said such a program is "the long range answer to defeating the Communists without a war."

The vice president, in his first California speech since his 1952 campaign with President Eisenhower, blamed "the Acheson policy of weakness, inconsistency and surrender of principles" for the fall of China.

He said that therefore those policies were "directly responsible for the war in Korea and the critical situation we face in Indochina today."

"This administration believes those policies were wrong. I believe that the American people indicated in 1952 that they had enough of the Acheson-Truman policy," he added.

Building Set For Alteration

Eisenhower Asks Free World Cooperate for Peace

By MARVIN ARROWSMITH NEW YORK — President Eisenhower told the Free World Thursday night to build a cooperative peace or face "an imposed peace, now sought by Communist powers, as it was by Hitler."

"Aggression is still a terrible reality," the President said at a dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

More than 2,000 persons applauded as the President, ruddy-faced from his Georgia vacation and dressed in white tie and tails, called for domestic unity and international cooperation.

Comment Aimed At Press He asked the press not only to report but to "achieve perspective with respect to facts" in the interests of international understanding.

More than 1,000 policemen were stationed along the President's route from La Guardia Field to the hotel following his arrival from Augusta, Ga., via Washington.

Eighty-eight detectives and almost 200 uniformed policemen were stationed in the area of the Grand Ballroom as the President delivered his address.

The precautions, described by police as the greatest ever taken to protect a public figure in New York, were prompted by attacks, of Puerto Rican Nationalist fanatics against American public officials.
