

U. S. Tourists See Indian Dance Show

ABOARD THE S.S. INDEPENDENCE (INS)—A large group of American tourists recently was given a preview of an Indian cultural exhibition which will be presented next year in the United States.

A group of musicians and dancers from the Indian National Theatre was brought aboard the American Export Line cruise ship Independence to perform during the voyage to Bombay.

K. D. Rao, secretary of the INT and the director of the dancing and music activities of the theatre, announced aboard ship that plans are being completed to take a troupe of about 20 artists on an extensive tour of America during 1955.

Accord Enthusiastic
Judging from the enthusiastic accord granted the performers aboard the Independence the American tour should be a success.

In explaining the 1944 Rao movement, started in 1944, Rao says, "It is necessary that we express ourselves to other people in the same manner that we express our feelings to ourselves."

The work of the INT, he stated, is to promote a cultural renaissance at home, now well underway, and also to put the culture of the nation before people of other countries as a means toward a better understanding of India and its populace.

Indian musicians and dancers have appeared commercially in the United States in the past, but Rao says this will be the first time that a state-aided group is going to America with the express aim of international education.

The Indian National Theatre is not a commercial venture, he points out, and its skilled artists participate in its program because of a belief in the movement and do so often at the expense of giving up more lucrative opportunities in the entertainment field.

The secretary describes dancing as an integral, vital part of Indian life and as such, a wonderful insight into an understanding of the people. He says dancing is the Indian's principal way of entertaining himself and passing away leisure time.

Folk Dancing Appeal
Pegging its appeal to this prominence of folk dancing, Rao says the theatre organization undertook a program of revitalizing an interest in classical dancing which was almost completely lost during the period before India achieved its independence.

To date the secretary says the reception of the INT presentations in India itself has been excellent and there has been much interest manifest in the work of the theatre.

The routines presented aboard the Independence actually formed something of an experiment for the group, Rao explains.

They were able to learn what parts of the dance could be easily understood and were appreciated by Americans.

This information will be used in arranging the repertoire for the United States tour next year.

'Weasel' Gets Big Brother In U.S. Army

CAMP HALE, Colo. (INS) — The Army's "weasel" now has a big brother, appropriately named the "Otter."

Troops participating in Exercise Ski Jump at Camp Hale, high in the Colorado mountains, tested the new vehicle.

The Otter is described in military language as a special-purpose, cross-country cargo and personnel carrier. It lives up to the description by going almost anywhere, including places where foot-slogging infantry would bog down.

The new carrier runs on full rubber tracks, which are mounted on pneumatic rubber tires rather than the conventional hard rubber bogies. Instead of dual brakes, it is steered by a bicycle-type handle bar.

The Otter has a completely enclosed aluminum hull. It will carry a cargo of 3,000 pounds, plus ten passengers and two crewmen.

Officers at Camp Hale said limitations of the vehicle "have not been established" by the tests thus far. However, among other things, the Otter will travel over sand, mud, and deep snow too soft to bear a man's weight. It will climb a 60 percent grade — or splash into a stream and plod along for six hours at 4½ miles an hour.

All it needs now, said one officer, is an attachment so it can fly, and another so it can "make like a submarine."

2 Charged With Tool Theft at Pen Appear in Court

Two arrested Oregon prison inmates charged with the theft of power tools from the State Prison Annex on April 3 appeared in Marion County District Court Wednesday.

Harry James Erickson, Portland, was bound over to the grand jury on a larceny charge. Charles Albert Rowley, Dayton, was continued to today on a charge of parole violation.
