The editorial cartoon isn't quite as popular a newspaper feature as once it was when the best of the crop used to be reprinted in the Literary Digest and the Review of Reviews. The shift has been to strips and to cartoon panels which usually are a-political because they are sold to papers of differing political complexions. However the art of cartoondrawing is not dead, and some of today's work ranks with the best of Tom Nast and Homer Davenport. Those who are rated tops in the profession are David Law of London. Fitzpatrick of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and Herbert Block (Herblock) of the Washington Post. The Beacon Press, Boston, has just brought out a book of the latter's cartoons under the "The Herblock Book." While title cartoons are as perishable as a cut flower we are still close en's th to the events which spurrea Herblock's crayon to "hold a mirror up to nature" that the points of those reprinted in the book still are sharp to one's consciousness

· By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister Churchill hurriedly summoned his Cabinet into a special session Monday. Informed sources said The same source said Red China the government would consider again whether to join in taking united action against Communists in Indochina should the Geneva peace talks fail.

British sources made it clear the problem of supporting any projected united action was but one aspect of several issues which the Cabinet would consider. The government leaders will undertake a full scale review of Britain's position in the Far East crisis as diplomatic and military events move toward a climax.
