Deputy Bee Inspectors Appointed

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
Farm Editor, The Statesman
Western Oregon bees are doing fine, A. Burr Black announced Saturday as he also named the corps of deputy bee inspectors for the season.

In Eastern Oregon some of the bees did not fair so well this spring as late frosts hit locust blooms in Eastern Oregon and worked a hardship on bees. Some owners will need to feed their bees for prime condition to work alfalfa and sweet clover for proper pollination, Black said.

So far this year about 1,000 beekeepers are registered with the department. This is ahead of the same time year ago, but 500 short of the total registration on the state books at the close of the last license year.

Black warned that beekeepers should post owner identification of yards operated away from their home base. They also should notify the state department of agriculture at Salem when and where they move bees, even though an official permit is no longer required to transport bees.

Deputies assigned for inspection of bee colonies west of the mountains this season include Floyd Adams of Bellfountain, who will cover Benton, Lane and Linn counties; Harry Gamble, Portland, who will cover Multnomah County; S. P. Shinkle, Salem, who will be in Washington, Yamhill and Polk counties; and Robert Williams, Salem, who will assist Shinkle in Yamhill and Washington counties; Guy Wood, Salem, in North Linn, Marion and Polk.

The department of agriculture also announced the appointment of Vincent Roth as survey entomologist. He will reside in Salem and will divide his time between the department of agriculture and Oregon State College.

With the department his work will tie in with the state plant pest and disease survey program set up by the legislature several years ago. This survey is to discover newly introduced pests, those not of general distribution in the state, and pests against which regulatory action may need to be taken.

At the college his work will take another line as it will be devoted to problems of the economic build-up of pests and the gathering of information upon which control recommendations are based.

In making the announcement of Roth's appointment, E. L. Peterson, state director of agriculture, said that "was another link in warfare against plant pests in Oregon. The federal and state departments of agriculture will cooperate in obtaining current information on insects which effect the economic welfare of the country."

Snow High In California

WASHINGTON (AP) — California reported three inches of snow Sunday—in an isolated mountain section, that is—and unseasonably cool weather was the rule along both coasts.

Warmer air moved into the plains states but cooler readings were common in the East and the Pacific Northwest.

The California snowfall was at Blue Canyon, in a northern mountain region. A few weather stations at high elevations in Montana also recorded snow.

Dinosaurs became extinct about 60 million years ago.

SAVE WITH SAFECO!

QUESTION: It's about time for me to renew my auto insurance. I've been paying an increased rate because our son is only 19 and he sometimes drives our car. Now he is in the service and comes home only now and then. Do I still have to pay the higher rate? My son does drive the car when he is at home.

ANSWER: You pay the lower rate. For insurance rating purposes the National Automobile Underwriters Association has stated that persons under 25 but in the Armed Services shall not be considered residents of the insured's household unless they are close to home and drive the car regularly.
