

Rain-Swollen Rivers Maroon Packed Streamliner

LANGTRY, Tex. (U) — Rain-swollen rivers tore away railroad and highway bridges Sunday and marooned a packed streamliner train in this famed West Texas town. Helicopters began evacuating the 266 passengers.

Rains as heavy as 10 inches on the watersheds of the Pecos and Devil's Rivers sent both streams out of their banks. The Rio Grande into which they empty appeared headed for record levels. Some ranchers and motorists also were marooned.

The Southern Pacific's Sunset Limited, a plush Los Angeles-New Orleans streamliner, was marooned here about midnight because the rains had washed out railroad bridges both to the east and west. Highway bridges also were washed away, preventing evacuation by highway.

Langtry is a little town of about 100 people on the Rio Grande. It was here that Judge Roy Bean established himself in pioneer days as the only law west of the Pecos. Bean named the town Langtry after the actress Lillian Langtry and a visit to his combined tavern and "court."

Thirteen helicopters carried the passengers from Langtry to a five-mile strip on U. S. Highway 90 eighteen miles west of here, where five Greyhound buses waited to take them to railroad connections. The railroad originally had planned to send the buses on into Langtry but discovered the Highway 90 bridge over the Pecos near Comstock was washed out, cutting Langtry off completely from land traffic.

Southern Pacific also arranged with the Air Force to drop 1,000 pounds of food on Langtry Sunday night or Monday night in event darkness, or renewed rains, delayed the evacuation. The railroad expressed confidence, however, there was enough food aboard the double-dining car streamliner.

The Red Cross sent doctors and nurses to Laughlin Air Force Base at Del Rio, 60 miles southeast of here. Laughlin AFB was operating base for the helicopters.

CLOSES OWN POSTOFFICE

DAPHNA, Va. (U) — When the post office was discontinued here the doors were closed by Mrs. Daphna Chenault, postmistress. She was an infant when her father, then postmaster, persuaded the postoffice department to name the postoffice for his daughter. She is the only woman to hold the job in the office's 126-year-old history. Before it received her name it was known as Cowan's Depot and Bowman's Mill.

Autopsy Ordered In Death of Tot, 1 1/2

PORTLAND (U) — An autopsy was ordered Sunday in the death last Friday of Horace Coburn, 1 1/2.

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Coburn, Beaverton, said they thought the child had drunk some weed poison which he found in their home.

Students estimate that Americans spend an average 10 per cent of their incomes for the operation of automobiles.
