

Mothers' 'Little Helpers' This Summer . . .

EVEN though Stuart VanWynyarden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce VanWynyarden, has two older brothers to help mother and daddy with the lawn chores, he can hardly wait until he is big enough to push the power mower. At the rate he is growing it won't be long.

HELPING mother cook is one of the first things little girls like to do as soon as they are old enough to mix the batter for simple cookies, cakes and pies. In the upper picture Katrinka Johnson, daughter of the Stewart Johnsons, always makes cookies when her mother is baking, and here is just finishing a batch of drop cookies.

Little girls enjoy setting the table for dinner and lunch. Directly above in the circle, Elizabeth McCargar, daughter of the Donald McCargars, is shown setting the table, which is one of her daily duties during the summer months.

WASHING and drying the dishes is one of Julie Price's summer duties each day to help her mother. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Price and also has twin brothers, who assist with the yard work and heavier chores.

JOAN and Mary Griffith, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. John Griffith, take turns vacationing and dusting during the summer vacation, which are part of their chores each week. They also enjoy ironing and cooking for their mother.

SHARYN, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Otto J. Wilson, is a great help to her mother during the summer. Besides assisting with the ironing and other household chores, she often takes care of her three younger brothers and sisters.
