John Caughell, Former Salem Zoner, Dies

John R. Caughell, 50, long-time Salem resident and one-time member of the Salem Zoning Commission, died Wednesday at a local hospital.

Death came unexpectedly, the family said. Caughell was born April, 1904, at Waupaca, Wis. and came to Salem as a young boy. He lived here the rest of his life and attended the University of Oregon.

In recent years he was district manager of the Industrial Hospital Association, having been affiliated with that firm since about 1938. Prior to that he was for a time employed with the U. S. National Bank, Salem branch.

He was married in Salem, May 5, 1928, to Lenta B. Baumgartner, who survives. He was a Mason and an Elk and a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, where funeral services will take place. His membership with the Zoning Commission was about three years ago. He was also an active member of the Oregon Historical Society.

Other survivors include a son, John S. of Salem; daughter, Mrs. John Laughery of Medford; aunt, Mrs. Harry Waite of Salem, and a granddaughter, Kathleen Caughell of Salem.

Union School Reunion Picnic This Sunday
The annual reunion picnic of Union School, located east of Woodburn, will take place Sunday at the school grounds, according to Raleigh Carothers of Salem, in charge of the affair.

Former Union students and residents in the Union-Bethel neighborhood are to attend. The picnic starts at 10:30 a.m. with a no-host lunch at noon.

White Radish 12 Inches Long

White radish more than 12 inches long and 10 inches in circumference was found growing this week on the Thomas Garrison place, 4795 Idaho St., east of Salem.

Bud Bare, who was cultivating strawberries for Garrison, discovered the unusual growth. Garrison said he had noted several similar-size radishes from seed of the same brand.

Political mudslinging was literal in ancient Rome, says the National Geographic Society; the candidates wore white togas and people threw mud at them when they were unpopular.

Salem Florists To Decorate at OSC Luncheon

Salem retail florists are in charge of decorations and favors for the graduation luncheon to be held this noon at the Memorial Union Building on the Oregon State College campus as a culmination of the florists sales and management rally being held this week on the campus. Over 400 florists from all parts of the United States are attending the floral designing classes.

Keep Oregon Green is the theme for the luncheon with 12-inch fir trees decorated with white Esther

North River Road Contract Awarded

Contract for 2.8 mile of grading and paving on the Hopmer-Wheatland junction section of the North River road four miles north of Salem was awarded by the State Highway Commission here Wednesday.

The contract went to the Central Paving Company, Independence, on a low bid of $58,271.50. There was one higher bid received at a meeting of the highway commission in Portland June 24.

Reed daisies centering the tables. Port Orford cedars will be given as favors. The Oregon banquet was held Wednesday night with several Salem florists attending.

Meat Dealer Fined $50

Soy products in his hamburger cost Salem meat dealer R. L. McDowell a $50 fine Wednesday in Marion County District Court.

McDowell, proprietor of McDowell's Market, 1190 S. 12th St., had pleaded guilty to a charge of selling adulterated food. The charge was brought by State Agriculture Dept. agents after a routine check of Salem markets early this month.

Soil was set at $50 for another market operator, David Behm, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of offering for sale a misbranded food. Agriculture Dept. workers said they found sodium benzoate in hamburger purchased from his store, Behm's Market, 3910 State St.

District Judge Val Sloper postponed sentencing Behm until July 28.
