Salem Plant Involved in $60,575 Suit

PORTLAND (AP)—A Teoka, Wash., couple has filed a $60,575 suit in federal court here for injuries suffered at a visit to the Oregon Pulp & Paper Company's Salem plant.

Mrs. Melvin Couch asked $50,000 for bruises and other injuries she said she suffered when pinned against the wall by a rolling log. Her husband asked $10,575 for what he described as mental anguish from seeing his wife suffer and because his wife's injuries made her unable to care for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Couch accused the company of negligence. At Salem Thursday, J. B. Beck, a paper mill official, said he could recall no such injury incident without checking the files.

City Gets 2nd Liquor Outlet

PORTLAND (AP)—The Oregon Liquor Control Commission voted here Thursday to open a second wholesale liquor outlet in Eugene.

The commission approved the wholesale outlet for the downtown liquor store. Previously purchasers had been able to buy no more than two cases of liquor at a time in Eugene.

This brings to 14 the number of wholesale outlets in the state. Commissioners indicated additional new outlets may be created.

Engineers Ask Changes in Flood Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army Engineers Thursday urged approval of changes in the Amazon Creek flood control project near Eugene, Ore., to permit use of reinforced concrete rather than riprap in completing work on the remaining 5,800 feet of channel.

A spokesman said the reinforced concrete would provide protection against the flood "that occurs maybe once every hundred years."

The Amazon Creek modification was one of two Oregon projects the engineers asked a Senate Public Works subcommittee to be included in a forthcoming authorization bill. The other would protect Tillamook Bay and harbor from further damage.

The Amazon Creek work, as now proposed, would cost an additional $350,000 including $56,000 in local contribution.

The Tillamook project would close the breach in the Bayocan Peninsula by building a sand dike 1.4 miles long between Pitcher Point and Bayocan.

The project would cost $1,775,000 of which local interests are to provide the equivalent of about $275,000.
