Water Use Study Slated In Polk County

DALLAS—Feasibility of using Willamette River water for irrigation, industrial and municipal purposes in central Polk County will be studied in a survey to be made this year by the Bureau of Reclamation.

Lee McAllister of the bureau's regional office in Salem this week told members of the Polk County Water Development committee that the survey had received federal approval.

The survey, due for completion in the spring of 19, will investigate the cost of irrigation per acre, total cost of the project, number of acres that can feasibly be served, possible routes of the canal and other factors.

The survey was requested earlier by the water committee in an effort to solve the problem of a water shortage during each dry summer.

One proposal is for a canal to originate near Buena Vista following a winding course north and then branching to Rickreall and Dallas from Orr's corner on Highway 99W. Glenn Hogg is chairman of the Polk committee.

Willamina and Sheridan Face Possible By-Pass

SHERIDAN — Willamina and Sheridan may be the next valley towns to be by-passed.

The state highway department is pondering whether to recommend that Highway 18 be relocated from a point one mile east of Sheridan to a quarter-mile east of Ft. Hill.

Such a route would miss Willamina by two miles and Sheridan by nearly a mile. The route would be south of both towns.

The new route would eliminate numerous curves and the bottleneck bridge across Willamina Creek in that city.

Merchants in both cities are expected to protest the by-pass if proposed.
