"Young in Art", Exhibit

The festival air in Salem this week is to be heightened by the opening today of the "Young in Art" exhibition of paintings and drawings at the YWCA. Teen-age Salem artists, at present under the leadership of the Paleticera, senior high school art club, are arranging this first show in the large downstairs recreation room of the new YW building.

Water color landscapes, oils, portraits and figure studies in pencil, charcoal and pen as well as abstract work and opaque water color show the versatility of the young artists. The work demonstrates the keen powers of observation of the teen-age painters, as well as their inventiveness and imaginative interpretation of moods and ideas.

Many of the pictures are drawn from the folders of the senior students who sent them in application for scholarships, and some are examples of work done this summer with no teaching supervision.

Exhibit Opens Today
The exhibition will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, September 3 and 4, and remain in the building for a six-week period. It is hoped that with the formation of a second art department at the new South High this fall new talent will be developed to aid the effort of presenting student art work in the downtown teen-age headquarters at the YWCA.

The large recreation hall at the YW provides ideal gallery space for this use. The ceilings are lofty enough to drop mobiles, those wide flying art forms seen in colorful motion in most of today's art display. The well lighted walls are a clean soft yellow, making a perfect background for color or black and white pictures. The main use of this part of the YW building is for teen-age dancing and games, so the addition of a rotating collection of art for the walls, drawn from the user's own school mates is an especially appropriate type of interior decoration.

Displayed on Modulators
The unique method of hanging this first art exhibit employs "modulators," or boards of equal width but varying heights on which are hung pictures of different sizes. For example, one large modulator displays a very sensitive pencil portrait of a young Negro, a gaily colored, stylized rooster, and a deft architectural sketch in dominant blues.

Another section of the show consists of work shown in Philadelphia at Carnegie Hall during June, when several of Salem's younger artists won significant honors and scholarships. Particularly interesting in this group are the quick sketches with Japanese simplicity done with a broad stroke brush pen.

Three dimensional work is also represented in a small way with some engaging black wire sculptures of animals, and the show is topped off with a brilliantly colored mobile, rather symbolically displayed over the recreation room's juke box.

Mrs. James R. Ellis (Patricia Ann Sundstrom) who was married August 22 at the First Methodist Church in Montesano, Wash. The newlyweds will make their home in Salem. The bride is the daughter of the Roy Sundstroms of Montesano and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Ellis of Salem. (Flower Studio, Aberdeen).

Jodelle Parker is Married to Theodore Roake on Thursday

Miss Jodelle Lee Parker and Theodore Chester Roake Jr. exchanged their marriage vows at a beautiful ceremony Thursday night at the First Congregational Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil L. Parker and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Roake.

Dr. Julian Keiser officiated at the 8 o'clock rites before a setting of coral and yellow gladioluses accented with aqua bows to carry out the color theme of the wedding. Coral candles marked the pews and the altar. Miss Norvada Smedley was the soloist and Miss Gladys Blue the organist.

Of white imported embroidered Swiss organdy over satin was the waltz length gown, fashioned with a four tiered skirt worn over a satin hoop. The gown was designed with a strapless bodice, and bolero jacket edged in lace with the long sleeves and Empress collar also adorned with the lace. Her fingertip illusion veil cascaded from a Juliet cap of satin interlaced with pearls. She carried a white orchid and stephanotis on a prayer book and for "something old" her grandmother's white lace handkerchief.

Miss Dawn Jones, the honor maid, wore an aqua embroidered net gown over taffeta, fashioned with a tiered skirt, bolero jacket and matching linen pumps. The bridesmaids, Miss Betty Crum, Miss Dolores Koutny of Portland, Miss Margaret Aynes of Monmouth, and Miss Jenette Roake, the groom's sister, all wore gold embroidered net frocks styled identical to the honor maid's. They also wore matching gold linen pumps. The attendants carried cascades of bronze and yellow pompon chrysanthemums and wore tiaras of the flowers in their hair.

The candle lighters, Mrs. Gene Fieck and Mrs. Arthur Bean of Woodburn, wore gowns similar to the attendants, only of coral red net over taffeta with tiered skirts and boleros. In their hair were tiaras of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and their shoes matched their gowns.

Kathy Medinger was the flower girl and wore a yellow frock. David Roake stood with his brother as best man and seating the guests were Robert L. Sharp, Robert M. Gordon, Kenneth W. Hamilton Jr. and Royal A. Wenig. Mrs. Parker selected a dusty rose taffeta gown with silver accessories for her daughter's nuptials. In her hair was a tiara of pink carnations. Mrs. Roake wore a rose pink crepe gown and corsage of pink carnations for her son's marriage.
