Statesman Food Editor To Attend Conference

In keeping with The Statesman's policy of being first with the news, in all departments, arrangements have been made for Maxine Buren, Woman's Editor, to attend the annual Newspaper Food Editors Conference October 3 to 8 in New York. ALSO ON DISPLAY AT STATE FAIR IN OLD FLORAL BLDG.

SUNNY SKIES... and a grand crowd greeted the opening of the Oregon State Fair on Saturday... The gay circus theme used throughout... Clever painted wooden figures of clowns, ring masters, and all kinds of animals adorning the lamp post down the midway... several of the exhibits using the circus theme... and the circus idea prevailing in the individual floral entries at the flower show... the concession stands along the midway all painted pretty pastel colors... A few hours... after the fair opened the teen-age contingent, as well as their elders, were sporting the usual fair souvenirs... tall, wooden sticks for canes, circus hats, stuffed animals (seemingly larger than ever), and parakeets in little cages... More entries... than ever in the foods division... Mrs. James Turnbull and her assistants busy assisting the judges for two days and making room for the dozens of cakes, breads, cookies and sweets... many of the women vying for "queen of the kitchen" and entering as high as 30 different items... Outstanding... the flower and garden show (ideally located near the Silverton Road entrance)... a mass of color and bloom... the large trees providing just enough shade... An ideal arrangement this year... with paths bordering all the club and single entries... in the center the "Varieties Revue" featuring outdoor gardens and patios... Ernest Inker winning the grand sweepstakes in this division... a knoll with a little house atop and a water wheel with water gushing down the side of the hill forming a pool... Ohs and ahs... for the beautiful begonias, fuchsias, dahlias and gladioluses... hanging baskets from many of the trees adding a festive note... The begonias some of the largest we have ever seen... many, many more single entries this year... and the garden clubs also entering attractive table arrangements... also floral divisions for different colors... pink, lavender, white, blue, etc... and outstanding was the green division... dozens of original ideas and amazing the number of green leaves, vegetables, seeds and shrubs that can be arranged so attractively from one's garden... just a little imagination is all that it takes... bouquets to Mrs. Jack Bartlett for the wonderful flower show... and she tells us there will be new entries every other day by the various clubs... So attractive... the Marion County booth in the main exhibition building... painted a shocking pink... window boxes of hydrangeas in shades of blue, pink and lavender... hanging baskets of fuchsias... a stunning bouquet of gladioluses on a patio table... and artistic arrangements of Marion County fruits and vegetables... Right across... the way from the Marion County booth is the Harney County exhibit with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Maple of Burns, formerly of Salem and Bend, in charge... Mr. Maple is with the Burns Chamber of Commerce and they are enjoying the Eastern Oregon county... they recently moved into a lovely home at Burns... their daughter, Marcia, to enroll for her sophomore year at Oregon State this fall... The Maples are house guests of Dean and Mrs. Melvin Geist this week... The Geists having just returned from a trip to Kansas, where they attended the 80th birthday celebration of Mr. Geist's father, James Geist, in Kansas City... Accompanying the Geists to Kansas was her mother, Mrs. L. B. Campbell, who will remain in Miltonville with her sisters for several months... The new information... booth on the grounds creating much interest... only something went wrong during its construction... the windows too high for anyone to use and the Ladd and Bush bank employees, who are taking turns at the booth during the week, having to stand or sit on a high stool outside to give out information... Mrs. P. Dixon Van Ausdell Jr., in a smart fall sweater and skirt ensemble assisting at the booth on Saturday... a register for each county for all fair guests to sign and some of the remarks are really priceless... Several new rides... for the kiddies as well as for their older brothers and sisters... some grand acts at the circus... especially the acrobatics... trap-axe, and tight rope walking, and the trainer with his dozen tiny dogs... Jo Ann Hoover, Joan Lewis, Barbara Anderson and Arda Lien among the ushersettees at the circus... the girls all wearing bright colored clown outfits...
