

Rice Festival in Louisiana Nets Many Recipes for Oregon Readers

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

They really go for rice down in Louisiana and no wonder, it is an important crop in that state.

Today we received a 112-page section from the Crowley (La.) Daily Signal, in celebration of the National Rice Festival...

Maybe a quick once-over of the section (as we clip the parts we want to keep) will be interesting. First of all there's a recipe for how to prepare fluffy white rice...

Use exact measurements and time for cooking the rice to get proper results. Originality certainly wasn't a point in judging the rice recipe contest, but perhaps taste was.

APPLE, RAISINS, PECAN PUDDING

2 tart apples 2 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar 4 tablespoons sugar for meringue
1 cup cooked rice 2 eggs, separated
1/2 teaspoon vanilla 1/2 cup raisins

Cook sliced apples in water with sugar to taste and with a taste and with a little butter, until done. Heat to scalding and add slowly to egg yolks that have been beaten with the sugar...

While we are concentrating on rice desserts, let's look at this one that includes dried apricots, a fruit in market during the winter months and one that bears more usage.

APRICOT RICE PUDDING

3 tablespoons uncooked rice 2 eggs, separated
2 cups milk 1/4 cup cooked dried apricots
1/2 cup sugar 1 1/4 teaspoons lemon juice

Cook rice in boiling water to cover for 5 minutes. Drain, combine with milk and 2 tablespoons of sugar in top of double boiler. Cook covered for 50 minutes, stirring occasionally...
