NEW YORK (AP) — More than 2,000 New Yorkers and scores of diplomats viewed the body of Andrei Y. Vishinsky Tuesday before the start of his last journey home to Moscow and a hero's funeral.

Once an obscure diplomat and later the chief prosecutor of a Stalin blood purge, Vishinsky in death was surrounded by a pomp more often seen at the bier of royalty rather than of a proletarian.

The body later was taken to Idlewild Airport and placed aboard a four-engine Stratocruiser chartered by the Russians for about $17,000 to take it to Paris on first leg of the trip to Moscow.

The big plane took off at 7:09 p. m., EST, after a solemn ceremony at the airport in which about 200 U. N. representatives took part. It was due to land in Paris at 11:30 a. m. (Wednesday), French time.

Accompanying the body was Vishinsky's widow, Mrs. Kapitolina Vishinsky, and their daughter, Zinaida.

Sec. McKay Lauds Private Enterprise

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay said Tuesday night in scoffing at public power and social security theories: "I'm proud to stand up and say I'm a product of private enterprise."

The secretary departed from his prepared speech before a Manufacturing Chemists' Assn. dinner to denounce public power as a "federal monopoly."

He said "the governors" in the Pacific Northwest had "beaten" moves to get up a public power authority in that area.

In his home state of Oregon, said McKay, "We don't want bureaucrats coming out and telling us how we're going to live — we'll tell them."

Saying the country "is being handed a lot of socialistic propaganda," McKay declared that the idea of "security from the cradle to the grave" is "impossible" and "hogwash."

"If the nation ever reaches the point where individual security becomes a primary objective," we're headed for the rocks," he added.

"Off the Record"

The secretary said after completing his prepared address: "That was for the press. Now I want to talk to you a couple of minutes off the record."

When questioned by a reporter later, he said, "what I meant was not off the record but off the cuff."

Also in his unprepared remarks, he expressed sympathy for the nation's coal miners and described the industry as "sick." He said a prime reason is the replacement of coal burning locomotives by diesels.

Cites Indian Costs

In another observation, he said it costs $8 million dollars to keep American Indians on reservations, and asserted:

"The sooner we start treating the Indians like citizens, the better off the Indians will be and the less it will cost the taxpayers."

In his prepared address, McKay held out hope that the "next few years" may see the domestic water supplies of coastal cities augmented by use of desalted sea water.

He cited research into the conversion of saline and brackish water as one of the fields in which chemists and other scientists "have worked zealously with department people in painstaking efforts to devise an economical and efficient method which may well revolutionize the agricultural and industry economy of certain areas of the world."

Ike Creates Rail Dispute Study Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday created an emergency board to investigate a strike - threatening labor dispute between most of the railroads and the railway conductors and brakemen.

The White House order forestalls any strike for the next 60 days.

The President said the dispute, chiefly involving wages, "threatens substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation services."

Members of the three-man board will be announced soon, the White House said.

The dispute involves railroads represented by the Eastern, Western, and Southeastern Carriers' Conference. Committees — more than 80 railroads and about 30 subsidiaries.

The independent union had announced it was preparing to get a strike date over a demand for new pay rates based on the size and weight of locomotives pulling the trains on which they work.

The union asked for a sliding scale pay basis like that presently used for computing pay of locomotive engineers and firemen. The conductors now have uniform pay rates which take no account of difference in size of locomotives.

It has been a union argument that workers should be paid more because of the greater efficiency of larger locomotives.

Kimonos Imported

LONDON (INS) — The first kimono imported from Japan since before the war are now on sale in London and moving like "hotcakes." Leading the field in popularity is a jewel-colored satin kimono with a dragon motif boldly embroidered across the back in gold, scarlet and emerald.

Board to Call New Auburn School Bids

(Story also on page one.)
Bids for the construction of the new Auburn elementary school will be called for by the Salem District School Board on Dec. 21, it was decided at the board's meeting Tuesday night.

The school will be located on a site next to the present Auburn School. It will have eight classrooms.

William Williams of Williams and Groom, architects for the new school, presented sketches of the proposed structure which received the board's approval.

Cedar-fencing is planned and a bicycle shed from the old school will be retained for use.

A transportation problem was aired by two couples from "our Corners. They complained that their children must walk over a mile to catch a school bus, which takes the children to Four Corners School.

Bus Stop Requested
The parents requested that the bus, which now stops at Elma Avenue and at Four Corners, extend its route to the Kenwood Addition, returning and picking up their children there.

The board's transportation committee agreed to study the problem.

The board also appointed a committee to meet with representatives of Barrington Associates, Inc., to study the group's operations.

The action followed a request made at the last meeting of the board by Dale Merrill, president of the Salem Classroom Teachers Association.

Merrill asked that the board consider an exploratory conference with the Barrington representatives, relative to the latter conducting a survey of salaries paid to school district employees.

The board also:
Heard that the Spring Valley School District had been declared abandoned by the Polk County Court, and that "to all intents and purposes the area is now a part of the Salem School District."

Spring Valley district had earlier voted to join the Salem district, but court action brought by several residents of the area blocked the move when the election was declared illegal.

The group fighting the action contended that the Spring Valley district had simply suspended operations. The decision of the Polk court, by declaring the district abandoned, merges the district with the Salem School District, it was understood.

Development Group Seeks Tariff Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major business group Tuesday called for a "gradual and selective" five-year tariff reduction program even more liberal than President Eisenhower's unsuccessful proposals of last spring.

The Committee for Economic Development (CED), a non-profit research organization embracing many of the top names of industry, issued a policy statement supporting long-term extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act.

Philadelphia banker Howard C. Petersen, head of the CED subcommittee which drafted the study gave his "personal speculation" that there is "quite a good chance" of tariff liberalization when the new Democratic controlled Congress convenes in January.

Petersen emphasized that CED does not lobby. But he told a news conference he thinks the Democrats probably "will want to join in and take the credit" for removing tariff barriers to trade.

Conference Blasts Commercial Santas

LONDON (INS) — The Conference of the National Chamber of Trade passed a resolution blasting the appearance of Santa Claus as a sales attraction in shops earlier and earlier each year. Delegate after delegate deplored the tendency of shops to "damage the spiritual and traditional significance of Christmas" and regretted "the commercialization of Santa Claus to the extent to which he is commercialized today."

"We love each other...need each other, but we're no good for each other!"
