Watts Found Guilty of Rape
A trial jury in Marion County Circuit Court convicted Daniel D. Watts, 35, of 260 Hood St., of a charge of rape Tuesday. Watts was arrested July 26 on the charge. Judge George Duncan will impose sentence Friday.

The trial began Monday and the jury deliberated approximately one hour Tuesday before bringing in its verdict.

Involved in the case was a 14-year-old girl.

CARS COLLIDE
A collision at the intersection of 13th and Court streets Tuesday damaged automobiles driven by Dorothy B. Martinson, Hubbard Route 1, and Laura Ethel Holder, 396 Holder Lane. There were no injuries. The accident occurred about 2 p.m.

Paychecks at Record High In Oregon

Weekly earnings of Oregon's production workers reached an all-time high in October when over-time work increased the average pay of those in lumber and logging, plywood mills, furniture and fixtures, printing and publishing and machinery manufacturing, the State Unemployment Compensation Commission reported Tuesday.

Because of extra pay for over-time, the hourly scale also established a new top of $2.19, but the 40.1 hour-a-week average was the main factor in the record.

Loggers and sawmill workers received $95.24 for a 40.1-hour week comparing with $86.73 a year ago when the week averaged 38.5 hours. Employees in plywood and other wood working mills were paid almost as much, $94.15, but their week extended to 43.2 hours.

Construction workers were getting $98.36 for a 37.3-hour week, about $2 more than a month or a year ago. Best pay checks, however, went to those in printing and publishing, $99.37 for a 37.9 hour week. Machinery employees averaged $91.14 for a 40.4-hour week, while furniture and fixture workers increased $2.66 from September to $74.73 a week.

Employees of canning and preserving plants averaged $63.42 a week, slightly more than the month before but $5.59 below October, 1953, mainly because of shorter hours this year.

New C of C Directors Told; Meeting Tonight

Salem Chamber of Commerce's new 30-member board of directors was completed Tuesday with the announcement of directors who have been chosen from several Salem business districts.

Nine of the board have been chosen by merchants' associations or service clubs representing the districts.

These are Ben Higashi, Keizer; Myron F. Butler, South Salem; C. A. Vibbert, South Commercial Street; Elmer Berg, Capitol Shopping Center; John Moore, East Salem and Four Corners; Junior Eckley, West Salem; G. Carroll Meeks, Hollywood and Portland Highway; R. J. (Dick) Schlup and Virgil Duff, downtown Salem.

The new board will meet for the first time tonight at 7:30 in the chamber offices at the Marion County Courthouse, along with the retiring directors who are completing their years' work.

After orientation from the old board, the new directors are slated to elect chamber officers and otherwise prepare to start their year's work in December.

Other board members, under appointment or election as set by a new chamber by-law, include 15 elected by the chamber membership and six ex-officio directors seated by virtue of their positions as mayor, county judge, immediate past president of chamber, and heads of Junior Chamber, Cherrians and Industrial Council.

Currently these are Alfred W. Loucks, Rex Hartley, William H.

State Building Costs to Reach $23 Millions

Oregon will need about $23 millions to pay for buildings in the next six years, the Board of Control learned at its meeting Tuesday. The board is preparing a list of building needs for presentation to the State Legislature in January.

Included in the $23 millions estimate is $14 millions for the over-all cost of the proposed mental hospital approved by the voters at the recent general election. This hospital will be located within a 20-mile radius of Portland. A previous legislature appropriated $250,000 for this project. The Board of Control indicated it would ask the 1955 legislature for an additional million-dollar appropriation to get the project under way.

Officials said several years would be required to complete this hospital as it would be constructed in units as funds are available.

There also will be a substantial building program from the State Board of Higher Education.

Board members agreed to relinquish 30 feet of state property to be used in providing a street to Salem General Hospital.

Approval was given payment of $9980 due Erwin E. Batterman, Salem contractor, for work performed on the state motor vehicle garage. State Treasurer Sig Unander mentioned leaks in the roof of the structure following approval of the payment. State Finance Department Director Harry Dorman said these leaks apparently resulted from an error of the architect and had been largely corrected.

"I believe that when an architect makes a bobble that results in extra cost we should hold him responsible," Unander said.

E. J. Ireland, Molalla, who will take over as secretary of the State Board of Control Dec. 1, Allen, Joan Marinucci, Margaret Huson, Judy Hitte, Merth Loring and Millicent Tower.

Minke Wins Dairy Honor

August Minke Jr., of Mt. Angel, has been chosen Marion County's Dairyman of the Year by the county Dairy Herd Improvement Association and will be honored at a meeting of the Salem Chamber of Commerce Monday.

Minke raises Guernseys on a 60-acre farm on the Monitor road. His herd was adjudged to be the top milk producer in the association.

Minke has lived in Marion County for about six years, having come from Linn County. The chamber meeting will be held at noon at the Marion Hotel.

Board to Study Action on Pen Site Purchase

Some action with relation to purchasing a site for the $1,250,000 intermediate penal institution may be taken at a meeting of the state emergency board Friday, state officials indicated Tuesday.

The emergency board recently recommended consideration of the Keppinger farm near Gervais as a site for the institution but this was rejected by the state board of control. The board of control has twice recommended purchase of the Williams and Hart farm three miles south of St. Paul.

A group of farmers living near the Williams and Hart ranch has filed petitions protesting its purchase for an institution site on the ground that such an institution would decrease the value of their lands. Similar petitions also were filed against purchase of the Keppinger farm.

Cost of the Williams and Hart property is $70,000 as compared with $173,000 for the Keppinger farm and four adjoining tracts.

The law provides that any recommendation of a site by the board of control must receive approval of the emergency board before actual construction operations can start.

Razing Causes Conjecture

The razing of two buildings on the northeast corner of Church and Center streets' intersection has created speculation as to what the property will be used for when razing is completed.

The property is part of the H. L. Stiff estate. Frame dwellings are being torn down which formerly housed apartment units.

It has been indicated that a drive-in restaurant may be constructed on the vacated property. Herbert L. Stiff Jr. declined to comment Tuesday on the matter. He is the son of the deceased.

Students Plan 'Clothes for Needy' Drive

Willamette University students will call at Salem homes Dec. 1 to pick up used clothing suitable for sending to the needy overseas.

The project, arranged by the campus chapter of UNESCO under chairmanship of George Chambers, will start at 5:30 p.m. when student residence groups pair off for dinner functions. After dinner the students will go out canvassing in boy-girl couples throughout Salem.

Students on the committee representing the residence groups are Paul Geisel, Robert Taylor, Paula Pruis, Marilyn Hanthorne, Carolyn Milner, Don Burney, Ronald Kingsley, Gino Picchetti, Duane Atkin, Roy Malby, Ellen Allen, Margie Swanson, Margery Huson, Judy Hitte, Merth Loring and Millicent Tower.

Parents Plan Clubs at South Salem High

Two separate parents clubs are being planned for the parents of South Salem High School students.

These two clubs are the Mothers' and Dads' clubs and the Parent-Teachers' Association with Edward Taggers and Dennis Patch representing the two clubs respectively.

Meeting with the parents for the explanation of these clubs for South Salem High school parents will be held Nov. 29 in the Little Theater of South Salem High School.
