Inside TV . . . Calculated Appeals Find This One Cold

By EVE STARR

HOLLYWOOD—CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME — VIA TV? They've calculated things, these charity pitches around Christmas time, when hearts are mellow but pocketbooks, unfortunately, are already squeezed. We're allergic to a requested buck for charity or any other purpose when we know we're being systematically exploited, so we would appreciate the hat's being passed at any time other than during the holiday

Solicitors for donations to a worthy cause knocking on our holly-wreathed door at this time of year receive nothing but a promise, and not even that if they look like they're slyly working us for a sucker. But there are two notable exceptions.

Tired as the public might be of charity drives of every sort, especially when the Christmas spirit is supposed to make you an easier mark, you must admit that the Red Cross drive for blood donations right now is fully justified. This is the time of year that even the eager and regular blood donor is so busy buying and wrapping gifts and trimming a tree that he forgets. So December's the month in which the Red Cross blood bank always suffers.

For this reason, and also because no cash is requested, we excuse the current campaign, headed up by Ray Bolger's ener-getic push via his far-reaching TV show. He points out that now is when donations usually slacken but accidents increase, that while we're giving presents we should give a life saver as well. He's doing more than his bit, so we all should do at least a part of ours.

Another and also most worthy campaign just launched is for the benefit of our Olympic team next year-financing the sending of our sportsmen abroad to vie for honors and spread good will at the same time. While every red blooded American - red blooded enough to donate a pint to the Red Cross too?-should want to help our Olympic teams span the Atlantic and join the games, it strikes us this was an unfortunate time to kick off the fund-raiser, via Sacramento's KCCC-TV just concluded tele-

We're all for its lofty purpose, but we have our fingers crossed for its immediate success. You'll do yourself and your country a good service by lending a second ear right after Santa Claus' bills have been paid.

HOLLYWOOD-CRITICS COR-NER: Latest of Mickey Rooney's serialized antics was in the same impossible groove which is wearing son thin the show's liable to be yanked any time. There was a chuckle here and there during Mickey's improbable involvements with a beauteous damsel loaded with cash, both her charms and money under his dubious guardianship. Technically, there is everything here for a good string of shows and Mickey's as loaded with fans as his heart in-terest was loaded with dollars, but both his popularity and that rather overworked situation failed to hold an audience which probably trickled or rushed over to or back to Jackie Gleason and Art Carney.

"Hey, Mulligan!" has from the first delivered a mush impact with action best described as helter-skelter. We lay most of the blame to weak scripting but must admit some of "Mulligan's" low rating is due to the opposing Jackie Gleason powerhouse.

There's a Saturday night situation here much like the Monday evening struggle NBC has against CBS's "Lucy." It's going to take a far better show than "Mullito dent CBS's consistently good Jackie Gleason show. That it could be done, however, is indicated by slow but sure rise of Monday's "Medic" against the gradually declining "I Love
