The wife of Oregon's State Treasurer is Mrs. Sigfrid Benson Unander, pictured with their two children, Astrid, who is just six weeks old, and Sigfrid Benson, Jr. The Unanders are popular members of Salem's young married set and will be attending many of the social gatherings during the legislative session. (Kennell-Ellis Studio).

Mrs. Edward A. Geary of Klamath Falls, above, whose husband is the new speaker of the House of Representatives. The Gearys are well known among the legislative set and will be among the hosts during the current session. The Gearys have taken an apartment at the Lee for the ensuing few months. (Jesten-Miller Studio).

Mrs. Paul Linton Patterson, at the left, Oregon's first lady, whose husband was inaugurated as Oregon's governor for a second term at the opening of the legislature on January 10. The Pattersons moved to Salem two years ago and have made a host of friends in Oregon's capital city. The Pattersons are planning several social events to take place during the current legislative session. (Gladys Gilbert Studio, Portland).

Mrs. Elmo E. Smith and daughter, Janice, of John Day, above, who are making their temporary home in Salem during the legislature. Their son, Dennis, will join his parents here later this month. Senator Smith is the newly elected president of the Oregon state senate. The Smiths have taken the Max Landon home on North 24th street during the session. Senator and Mrs. Smith will be among those entertaining during the legislature. (Kennell-Ellis Studio).

At the right is Mrs. Earl T. Newbry, wife of Oregon's Secretary of State. The Newbrys have a wide circle of friends in Salem and throughout the state and have planned several parties during the legislative session. (Jesten-Miller Studio).

Mrs. Harold J. Warner, wife of the new chief justice of the Oregon Supreme Court, is pictured above. The Warners divide their time between Salem and their Portland home. Mrs. Warner expects to be in the capital part of each week during the legislative session. (Portrait by Putnam).
