Soldier Tells Robbery by Armed Man

Salem police Monday were investigating a report from a soldier who said a calm gunman had robbed him of $95 and his Army identification papers in downtown Salem.

The soldier, Pfc. Robert Gilchrist, reported the incident Sunday afternoon. He said the hold-up occurred Saturday night but that he hadn't thought it was important enough to report.
Friends later persuaded him to tell police about the theft, Gilchrist said. A resident of 2148 S. Cottage St., the soldier is spending a leave in Salem from Vancouver Barracks, Wash.

Gilchrist told police the gunman pointed a nickel-plated revolver at him and told him to drop his billfold on the sidewalk and walk away. After he had walked half a block, he said, he turned around to find the man was gone. The theft occurred about 10:30 p.m. Saturday in the 200 block on South Church Street, Gilchrist reported.
The gunman was described as being about 30 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds. Gilchrist said the man appeared to be extremely calm while carrying out the hold-up.

City police said it had been more than a year since an armed robbery had been reported in Salem.

3 Questioned In Series of Car Riflings

Two of three juveniles arrested Friday night by state police and questioned about the rifling of some 25 cars in Seattle, Wash., were turned over to the custody of their parents Monday.

The two, both boys and 16 years old, will be questioned by Seattle juvenile authorities, said Dr. James H. Ashbaugh, county juvenile officer.
The other member of the trio, a 16-year-old girl, will be placed on a plane today and sent to Seattle, where she too will be questioned, said Dr. Ashbaugh.

The three were arrested after their car wound up in a ditch on the Salem-Dallas highway near the "Y" junction, said the officers.
In their car were cigarettes, candy and some .45 ammunition, officers added. The three admitted being implicated in a number of the auto riflings, said Dr. Ashbaugh, and admitted taking part in the burglary of a Seattle store, said officers.

The three said they were on their way to California when arrested, according to police. All are from Seattle.

Two Public Hearings May Enliven Meet

Two public hearings, one of them considering the name of B Street, are expected to enliven tonight's meeting of the Salem Planning Commission in the City Hall.

Actually the B Street hearing will be on naming property acquired for extension of the Street east from 18th Street, but a decision on renaming the present B Street may come out of it. B and Fredrick Streets are extensions of Division Street and support for one name for all sections of the street has been heard.

Second hearing will be on requests for variances for construction of three houses in Henning-tracts of North River Road on the north edge of the city.

Moves to rezone the East side of South 12th Street between Leslie and Mission streets are also scheduled for the Commission. The proposal is to change the property, already business, from R-4 residential to C-3 business.
In other action the commission will elect new officers, hear a report of the plat committee on re-subdivision of part of a block of Ewald Fruit Farms addition southwest of the city, and hear a report of Commission Engineer C. A. McClure on the result of his consultation with Marion County Planning Commission on the street numbering project.

New Officers of State Horsemen's Group Named

Society to See Rose Pruning Demonstration

Ollie Schendel will give a demonstration of the proper method of pruning roses, a chore that falls due next month, at the meeting of the Salem Rose Society at the YMCA Tuesday night, at 8:00 o'clock.

Schendel will also describe some of the new varieties he has under test in his own gardens.

As a special added attraction at this meeting Walter L. Wirth, city superintendent of parks, will tell of his plans for developing the city's parks with particular reference to a municipal rose garden. The meeting is open to all persons who are interested in roses regardless of membership in the Society.

Two Fined on Liquor Count

Two men were sentenced to the Marion County jail Monday on charges of giving alcoholic liquor to two girls, 14 and 15 years old.

Chris Van Luven, 23, 902 N. Commercial St., was handed a 90-day sentence and fined $100 by Judge Joseph Felton in circuit court.

David Gipson, 23, of 805 S. Liberty St., was sentenced to 30 days in jail. The two admitted giving beer to the girls on Jan. 11, said Judge Felton.

Women's CD Role Outlined

If women took the precautions of learning home-nursing and stockpiling a few medical and food supplies in their house, an enemy attack against the United States would have far less effect on civilian populations, State Civil Defense Director Arthur M. Sheets said Monday.

Returning from Salt Lake City, where he attended a regional conference on the role of women in civil defense, Sheets said that the degree of individual preparedness could mean the difference between survival and chaos in the event of atomic war.

"Women actually run the millions of households which make up a nation, and they hold the key to personal civil defense plans," he said. "If they do not take such basic precautions as setting aside an extra food supply and wrapping a bundle of clean clothing for an emergency, no one will do it."

The conference was attended by CD officials and 275 women from western states.

Tractor Falls From Truck, Damages Road

A 5,000-pound tractor put a crack in a Salem street Monday after it dropped three feet off the trailer of a moving truck.

The tractor, property of the Salem Heavy Hauling Co., fell off the truck about 2:30 p.m. in the 2200 block of North Commercial Street. Rex Howe, driver of the truck, told city police he was rounding a corner when the tractor slipped.

Only minor damage was reported to the tractor. It was hauled back onto the trailer by a power winch on the truck.
