Sales Tax Finds Backing At Mt. Angel

MT. ANGEL—Members of Mt. Angel Business Club spent considerable time Monday discussing the proposed sales tax for Oregon. Some favored it, declaring it would take the load off the farmer and other property owners and that it was a fair tax "since it had to be paid by everyone."

Others objected, declaring it made the man with a large family pay more tax on food than the man with no family. Another argument advanced was that there was no guarantee that the proposed tax would offset the taxload on property holders.

The club finally agreed to back a sales tax law provided it would exclude groceries and that there would be some assurance that the sales tax would reduce property tax.

Members also voted to wait table for the annual parish dinner in two dining rooms of St. Mary's School on Sunday, March 13, from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Plans are being made to serve 1,500. Fried chicken and the Mt. Angel brand of sausage and home made sauerkraut will be featured.

Members whose family names start with letters N to Z are expected to be on hand to serve the first two hours. President Harold Bourbonnais stated, and others from 1 to 3 p. m.

MEHAMA—At least three elk are roaming in this area, is the report of several different persons who have seen them recently. No herd of elk is known to be closer than Breitenbush. One is said to have been seen grazing with cows on the James farm by Ralph Hurst, school teacher and bus driver.

Three were spotted above Fox Valley. The next day three were seen above Mehama by Jerry Coffman, while still more reports say some have been seen in the Stayton area.

As snowfall in higher altitudes is less this year than usual, people are surprised to see elk down so low.

Detroit Lake Safety Patrol Organized

MEHAMA — A safety patrol to prevent accidents and drownings at Detroit Lake this summer is being organized in this area.

Sponsored by the North Santiam Chamber of Commerce and promoted by Jerry Coffman of Mehama, boat owners are being enlisted to take turns on weekends patrolling the lake.

There were several near accidents last summer caused by sudden roughness on the lake by unexpected windstorms.

Boats too small for rough water often were too far from shore with a storm brewing. Speed boat owners whose capers sometimes threaten safety of others, will be advised by the patrol.

Coffman referred to Shasta Lake where the Coast Guard enforces rules and regulations to eliminate accidents. "Boats and owners must all meet strict requirements before being admitted to that lake," he said.

GREENLAW DISCHARGED — Warren Greenlaw has been discharged from the Army, and returned home this week after two years service. He has been stationed at Ft. Lewis.

1,500 4-H Projects Slated In Linn County During 1955

ALBANY—A review of Linn County 4-H Club work shows that club members have indicated intentions of starting 1,500 projects this year.

The largest single enrollment is in the clothing project where 386 girls and boys are enrolled. The overall livestock program has 465 members currently carrying projects, while 281 are in cooking.

The health project has attracted 250 members.

Breaking the livestock total down finds dairy the largest with 116 members. Next is sheep with 83, followed very closely by beef with 70. The swine project has 57, while 25 are in poultry and 14 have rabbits.

Twenty-six members have started the entomology project. There are 17 in tractor maintenance and 18 in electricity. The woodworking project is the largest in the history of the county with 66 members enrolled. The arts and crafts program has attracted 42 members, while 30 are planning flower or vegetable gardens.

The deadline for enrolling in 4-H club work is May 15. The projects still available for youngsters to enroll included all phases of livestock, forestry, floriculture, vegetable gardening, entomology, and food preservation.

All of the projects except livestock are well suited for urban youngster as well as rural.

To form a group requires five youngsters nine years of age or older with an adult willing to serve as leader. Anyone interested in learning more about 4-H work should contact the extension office at the Linn County courthouse, Albany.
