

Seen and Heard...

By JERYME ENGLISH

IN WELCOME... to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley B. Grove a beautifully arranged reception and buffet dinner was given in their honor Thursday night at the Marion Hotel... Mr. Grove is the new manager of the Salem Chamber of Commerce and Salem Industrial Development Council... a charming and delightful couple to meet... A grand turnout of Chamber members and their wives on hand to welcome the newcomers, who arrived last week from San Diego... Receiving with the Groves were the Chamber president and his wife, the Elton H. Thompsons... Mayor and Mrs. Robert White, just back the day before from a vacation in Las Vegas, where both acquired grand suntans... and Mr. and Mrs. Clair Brown... he representing the Industrial Council.

A punch table... arranged in the green room, where guests mingled before the dinner hour... Palms and greenery effectively arranged about the room... Many ohs and ahs on the beautiful buffet table... the centerpiece of pink and red roses, Dutch iris, stock and anemones flanked by white tapers... On either side a whole turkey and ham decorated with the words, "welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Grove"... even the salads similarly decorated... Guests seated at individual tables for dinner... bouquets of narcissuses and daffodils in the center of each table... The head table with an arrangement of plum blossoms and spring flowers.

Junior hostesses... adding a festive note to the party... the attractive teen-age girls wearing pretty party frocks... Connie Hammond, Glenda McCormick, Nancy Owen, Phoebe Lou Braun, Ruth Mainwaring, Kaye Tomlinson, Susan Todd and Kathy Cook... the girls serving punch and passing the individual cherry pies... Mrs. Lois Kellogg playing organ music throughout the evening.

Among the guests... Rep. and Mrs. A. W. Loucks just home from a quick plane trip to Tucson, where Mr. Loucks spoke at a Republican dinner... sunny and warm in the Arizona city, the temperature in the mid-eighties... The couple flying home by way of San Diego, where they visited a few hours with her mother... Mrs. Joseph A. H. Dodd wearing a perky white chapeau with her gown... a spring print for Mrs. Russell E. Pratt.

Bouquets to... Mrs. Donald Reinke, general chairman of the affair, also choosing a print silk frock... En famille... with the Wallace Bonesteels were their daughter and her spouse, Alan and Marianne Riebel, and their son and wife, the junior Wallace Bonesteels... Rep. and Mrs. Lee Ohmart taking time out from legislative duties to attend the affair... The Denver Youngs busy greeting guests as they arrived... Mrs. T. Harold Tomlinson in a becoming black velvet gown... The honor guest pinning a lavender orchid to her slate blue gown... a red rosebud in Mr. Grove's lapel... City manager and Mrs. John L. Franzen and City Park Superintendent and Mrs. Walter Wirth among the many guests.

SPRING FASHIONS... for the youth blossomed forth at The Fashionette's second annual style revue Wednesday night... The Gold Room of the Marion Hotel the setting... several hundred attending, including dozens of mother-daughter duos... The models entering through a white arbor adorned with plum blossoms... on either side silver trees decorated with red hearts and clusters of blossoms... potted tulips bordering the picket fence...

On the runway... a bevy of young girls modeling adorable cotton prints worn over bouffant, tiered organdy petticoats... the models including Mary Rauk, Carole Pfaff, Charlotte Blum, Joan Seamster, Shirley Coffey, Glenda McCormick, Wanda Blum, Barbara Anderson... the coed Waters twins, Clarice and Claudia over from Oregon State just for the occasion... and adorable brunette Rebecca Adler, who almost stole the show with her sweet dresses, which just matched mothers... even petticoats for Becky... the models carrying long, stemmed red rosebuds, which they later gave to guests in the audience... Mrs. Herbert Adler, the able commentator, who wore a becoming red frock...

The styles... Jumper dresses worn with or without a blouse... miniature prints so popular this season... separates with skirts and blouses matching... pique, buttons, lace and bows for trim... the new, long torso noted in several of the styles with full skirts extending below the hips... scoop, high and rounded necklines... short sleeves and many were sleeveless... The materials... imported Austrian cottons, gingham, imported Irish linen, Shepherdess cotton... matelasse, miron, wool, taffetas and shantung... The party dresses a dream and many a teen-age girl wishing one for her wardrobe... organdies, peau de soie, imported Swiss voile and embroidered organdie and novelty pique... luscious pastel colors... and our favorite the embroidered daisy on white organdie...

A reception... following the show... Stunning was the red and white table accented with green... In the center a large bouquet of red and white carnations flanked by red tapers... a red cloth... a punch bowl at either end filled with green punch... the bowls encircled with the red and white carnations... Pouring were Mrs. Harold Saltzman (Ruth Holtzman), who was down from Portland for the event, and Marilyn Williams...

A FULL HOUSE... for the General Hospital Auxiliary's benefit performance, "The Fourposter," presented a week ago... The Marion Hotel's Gold Room the setting... The guests, resembling a first night audience in any large city, arriving in pretty party clothes and furs... many remaining for the after-show party... A number of the legislative contingent also attending the show...

A grand performance... by Electra Gailles and Dick Fair, who kept their audience's attention for over two hours... for many it was the first time to see a theatre-in-the-round, which is proving more popular each season... the play presented by Alexander Oumansky's Magic Ring Theater of Portland...

The buffet table... for the after-theatre party most artistic and spring-like... flowering plum blossoms and a few deep pink carnations flanked by a large antique gold candelabrum holding white tapers... trays of delicious sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres... Mrs. Ralph E. Purvine, the auxiliary prexy, and Mrs. Samuel R. Haley presided at the punch bowl... Mrs. Charles Heltzel, chairman of the successful benefit, which will net the hospital over eight hundred dollars... Kathi Heltzel and Donna Stone passing out the programs...

LIBERTY—Mrs. Arlie Largent entertained the Ladies Council of the Liberty Christian Church of Christ on Thursday at her home on Boone Road. Mrs. Gerald Knepper was in charge of the devotions and Mrs. Charles Moore conducted the business meeting. The group did quilting and sewing for the McKinley Indian Mission at Toppenish, Wash.

Mrs. Glen Weaver will entertain the Sigma Kappa Mothers at a dessert luncheon Tuesday afternoon at her home, 1854 Park Avenue, at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. R. J. Davey will be the assisting hostess.

Don't Look Now...

but... we're in favor of this checking on jaywalkers by the police. There's another kind of person we'd like to see nipped and that's the automobilist who fails to give right-of-way to a pedestrian on an ordinary street corner. We watched an old couple trying to cross Court at Church. Nobody stopped for them and they made several attempts before finally getting across. Then there's that individual, who brakes for stop streets, but slides across the pedestrian crossing first.

Well suited... A member of the school board says to be a good member of that body you must have a suit with two pair of pants, because you are kicked by the teachers and kicked by the taxpayers.

Own medicine... the dentist who said you can get teeth cleaner with a dry toothbrush than with dental paste would change his song fast enough if his wife took to cleaning dishes after a nice meat and potato menu, with a dry brush.

Know, know... Long ago they told us there is, after all, a carload of coughs in every cigarette carton; this week we found that a mere glance at a tube of toothpaste won't frighten away the germs of decay; we have a feeling soon they'll tell us that one bowl of cereal does not make a champion. But if they ever come out with information that says lovely clear and frothy beer isn't just the thing to pep up Grandma and the kids, we'll scream.

Where the slip begins... Makers of lipstick are now saying that the way to make it stick is to let the lips "rest" 20 minutes after applying. What is this "resting"? A kissless 20 minutes is all too easy for an old maid, but what if they mean no waving them around in the breeze—in a word, no talk. Ah, the price we pay for beauty!

Their alley... Won't the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce have fun with this business of using smoke as a screen against radiation. That city has the world's best, original and never to be dissolved hydrogen bomb shelter, and they'll make it a tourist attraction... Maxine Buren.
