The "educated tones" of four Willamette University classes will echo through the college gym tonight in the 47th annual Freshman Glee contest.

Income Tax Bill Rejected At Olympia

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A proposal for a graduated net income tax failed to pass the Washington House of Representatives Friday, but will have a second chance Saturday.

The measure went down to defeat with 61 representatives voting for it and 34 against. It needed 66 votes (a 2-3rds majority) to pass as it provides for amending the State Constitution.

Immediately after the vote, Democratic Floor Leader August Mardesch announced he would ask the House to reconsider the proposal Saturday. He had shifted his vote at the last minute to be in a position to ask reconsideration.

The measure calls for a vote of the people at the 1956 general election on a constitutional amendment permitting the Legislature to levy and collect a graduated net income tax of not more than 8 per cent, with the same deductions as allowed for the federal income tax.

On the final ballot 48 Democrats and 13 Republicans favored the proposal. Thirty-three Republicans and one Democrat — Mardesch — voted against it.

The vote came after two hours of debate during which the House removed three amendments tacked on the bill Thursday, then added a new amendment to clarify the measure.

In urging passage of the measure, Rep. Webb Hallauer of Oroville, chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee and author of the proposal, said 33 states now have state income tax laws.

He termed it a "cut rate" tax proposal, because federal income tax payments would be allowable deductions on the state income tax.

R. Mort Frayn of Seattle, former speaker of the House, asked his fellow Republicans to "vote for the bill and give the people the opportunity to vote on it."

He indicated he would fight on the election ballot, saying: "I hope you pass it so we can get it before the people and knock it in the head."

Hallauer called the House's attention to Gov. Langlie's message to the Legislature at the time it convened Jan. 10. The chief executive, while opposing the tax as such, suggested that the Legislature might wish to put it on the ballot in 1956 to see if the people wanted it.

In other floor actions the Senate moved to cut off $15 a day subsistence payments to the lawmakers as of Thursday midnight.

The commons voted 21-21 against acceptance of a House proposal to continue subsistence payments through Sunday.

The measure will be back before the Senate for a second chance Saturday on a move by Sen. Thomas C. Hall, Republican co-floor leader, for reconsideration.

Gov. Langlie signed into law Friday a measure authorizing construction of the 227 million dollar toll road between Tacoma, Seattle and Everett along with numerous other bills passed by the regular session of the Legislature.

Jury Fails to Agree in Trial Of Lumberman
EUGENE (AP) — The trial of lumberman Richard G. Bailey on a charge of conspiring to obtain money under false pretenses ended Friday when a circuit court jury failed to agree.

The jury was dismissed and a new trial was set for May 3. Bailey, president of the Bailey Lumber Co., said he was unaware that bills of lading had been forged to obtain money from banks. His brother, Alfred, pleaded guilty to forging the bills and was sentenced to a three-year prison term.

The jury deliberated nearly 10 hours before reporting it was hopelessly deadlocked.

SKATING ARENA PROPOSED
PORTLAND (AP) — City Commissioner Stanley Earl Friday recommended that the city build a $300,000 recreational ice skating arena on Portland's east side.

CHAMBER HEAD NAMED
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce Friday elected A. Boyd Campbell of Jackson, Miss., as its President.

Man Arrested In Eugene for Illinois Robbery

EUGENE (AP) — Arrest of a man wanted for a Rock Island, Ill., armed robbery was reported Friday by Joseph F. Santolana, FBI agent in charge at the Portland office.

He said FBI agents and local police arrested Arthur Albert Meyer, 36, who said his home was Los Angeles, as he walked up to his car on a street here Thursday night.

Meyer was wanted in connection with a November, 1953, robbery at the First and Last Chance tavern on Rock Island, Santolana said. Bail of $25,000 has been recommended.

Salem Baton Twirler Wins Third Place

LONGVIEW (Special) — More than 100 students took part Friday in the Northwest Baton Twirling Contest here with results including a third-place finish in the senior division for May Jane Wait, 16, of South Salem High School.

First in the division was Sheril Francis, Sumner, Wash., and second was Doreen Morasch, Camas, Wash. Winner in the junior division was Chester Jones, Portland, and in the senior team category top place went to Washougal, Wash. First in the junior team division was Russellville School of Portland, and tops in the elementary division were the Shamrockettes of Walport, Ore.

Survey Shows Farmers Eye Acreage Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers plan to continue large acreages of crops this year—especially feed grains—despite government attempts to curtail harvests.

Results of an Agriculture Department survey of farmers planting plans as of March 1 indicated Friday that the acreage for 16 major spring crops will total 285,550,000 acres, or 3,200,000 more than were seeded last year.

The prospective acreage for all crops to be grown this year was forecast at 353,500,000 compared with 354,000,000 last year. Larger acreages than last year were indicated for corn, oats, barley, sorghums, potatoes, dry beans, dry peas, soybeans and hay. Smaller acreages were in prospect for spring wheat, flaxseed, rice, tobacco, peanuts and sugarbeets.

The department gave no production forecasts inasmuch as the spring crops have not yet been planted and it is too early to foresee weather influences.

Sabotaging of Planes Told

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Damage—branded as sabotage—Friday was discovered to vital flying surfaces of large Air Force transport planes being modified at Hayes Aircraft Co.

The FBI, Air Force and company agents were investigating the damage, which Hayes President Harry Rowland called "a serious case of sabotage."

Ailerons and other flying surfaces of large C119 Flying Boxcars and smaller B25 aircraft were mutilated, according to this executive.

The big C119 is the workhorse of the Air Force, hauling military cargo and personnel.

Furore on Yalta Prompts Ban on Other Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — The worldwide furore over publication of the Yalta papers Friday prompted the State Department to put off plans for publishing this year its record of Big Three meetings at Potsdam, Cairo and Tehran.

There was no sign of any letup in the controversy which has raged since late Wednesday, when Secretary of State Dulles suddenly ordered the American record of the Yalta conference published.

Former Baby Sitter Jailed In Tots Death

EPHRATA, Wash. (AP) — Kathleen Carnaghan, a well-groomed former baby sitter, was locked in the county jail at 3 in the morning Friday, accused of killing a 21-month-old child seven months ago.

Miss Carnaghan, 29 and now a typist, has denied the charge and claims the death last Aug. 7 of little Deena Starzman at Grand Coulee, Wash., was accidental drowning as first reported.

Deena's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Starzman, said that's what they think, too. And Mrs. Marie Baines, the baby's maternal grandmother whose hunch reopened the case, was quoted by the Spokane Chronicle:

"Miss Carnaghan was 100 per cent. We wouldn't have kept her if she wasn't. I have nothing against her personally. If I had, I would have done something long ago. I just got worried."

Deena won honorable mention in a Chronicle baby contest last year. Mrs. Baines, a Grand Coulee cafe owner, was reached in Seattle. She had gone to Prosecutor Paul A. Klazen Jr. of Grant County earlier this year with "suspicions" about little Deena's death. The child was found face down in a puddle of water at her parent's home.

"How could a child drown in two inches of water?" Mrs. Baines asked the Chronicle Friday. "I couldn't believe she had drowned because of the way the ground lay. There was just lawn under the water."

Robert Campbell Jr. was prosecutor when Mrs. Baines came in with her "hunch" in January. He said a letter was written to the parents asking permission to exhumate the body.

"We got no reply," he said. Klazen took over Jan. 10 and got permission from the Lincoln County court to exhumate the body, buried in a Wilbur, Wash. cemetery. Klazen said a doctor ruled that a hard blow on the head caused the death.

Miss Carnaghan was arrested in San Francisco Thursday for first degree murder and is held here without bond. She was flown to Seattle, then brought here by car. She declined to talk with reporters in Seattle.

Believes Child Drown
The Starzman family now lives at Newport, Wash. Mrs. Starzman said she believes her daughter drowned accidentally while Mrs. Carnaghan went around the side of the house.

"Miss Carnaghan was with us almost a year and was wonderful with the children," Mrs. Starzman said. "I can't believe it unless she says she did it."

Mrs. Starzman said she and her husband weren't in favor of exhuming the body. With tears in her eyes, she added:

"We figured there was nothing to be gained, there seemed no reason for it. If Dr. Bonnington said death was caused by drowning we felt there was no reason to exhumate the body just to prove that."

Dr. Donald J. Bonnington signed the death certificate. There was no inquest.

Salem Host to State Meeting Of Engineers

Misconceptions about collective bargaining was the chief topic at a Friday night meeting of the Mid-Willamette section of the Professional Engineers of Oregon held at the Senator Hotel.

Dan N. Hendricks Jr., business manager for a Seattle engineer's organization and main speaker, said paternalism is not the answer for engineers' groups.

Hendricks said his group, the Seattle Professional Engineering Employees Association is so organized that it provides opportunities to present problems before management on a group scale.

The Seattle group is a member of the Engineers and Scientists Association of America, a bargaining organization. There have been proposals that the Mid-Willamette group join the ESA.

About 70 engineers from throughout the central Willamette Valley attended the Friday night dinner meeting.

Woman to End Public Career

HEPPNER (AP) — Mrs. Lucy E. Rodgers soon will end a long career in Morrow County public work to retire in Willamette View Manor, a Methodist-operated rest home near Portland.

She will resign May 1 as county treasurer, a position she has held since 1950. Before that she served many years as county school superintendent.

Sailors Union Chief Linked To Commies

SEATTLE (AP) — A witness before the House Un-American Activities Subcommittee hearings said Friday that Harry Lundeberg, boss of the AFL Sailors Union of the Pacific, once sat in Communist Party meetings.

The charge, immediately denied by Lundeberg as a "lie by the clock," was made by Eugene V. Bennett, a long-time Communist until he was expelled from the party in 1947.

Dennett's naming of Lundeberg came as he was telling the committee of events he said led to the Communist domination of the Maritime Federation of the Pacific, an organization including a half dozen waterfront unions in the mid-1930s.

During the period when the federation was growing in power between 1934 and 1936, Dennett said, it came under top Communist domination, with Lundeberg attending "top fraction meetings." A "top fraction" was defined as a cell of key Communist leaders.

Today Lundeberg is regarded as a leading foe of maritime reds, having led his Sailors Union of the Pacific out of the Maritime Federation in opposition to Communist leadership.

Burned Youth 'Improving'

Richard Weston, 4-year-old Independence boy, was reported in improved condition Friday at Salem General Hospital where he is under treatment for burns suffered recently at his home.

The lot's condition still is regarded as serious but he has been removed from the "critical" list, hospital attendants said. The boy suffered second and third degree burns over a large portion of his body.

Senate Hearing on Hells Canyon Due In Northwest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Murray (D-Mont) announced Friday hearings have been scheduled in the Pacific Northwest April 4-6 to take "grass roots" testimony on Hells Canyon dam legislation.

The chairman of the Senate Interior Committee said he would preside at a hearing in Lewiston, Idaho, April 4. Sen. Anderson (D-NM) will conduct sessions in Pasco, Wash., April 5 and Portland, Ore., April 6.

Police Report Morals Cases

Two complaints involving indecent exposure were received Friday night, city police reported. Officers said both complaints were made by young girls and took place on the 600 and 1900 blocks of Centre Street. Police reported there were indications the offender in both cases was the same man.

In neither instance were there attempts to molest the girls, according to police.
