

Planners Approve Of 83-Lot Addition

By THOMAS G. WRIGHT Jr.
Staff Writer, The Statesman

Plan for an 83-lot addition northeast of Salem near Silverton Road and Lancaster Drive won final approval Tuesday night from the Salem Planning Commission.

The 23-acre tract east of Lancaster and half mile south of Silverton Road was one of four sub-divisions approved by the commission. They also oked a 12-lot Bagley Addition at Hawthorne Avenue and D Street, a six lot Bella Vista Court addition just off Liberty Road and south of Madrona Avenue, and a 15-lot Jensen addition west of Liberty Road and south of Salem Heights Avenue.

A petition to vacate an unnamed street leading north off of Pine street between Brooks street and Cherry, avenue was denied by the commission which heard arguments of all four property owners involved.

Fear Assessment
The request was filed by Mrs. H. McAdams and W. W. Woodruff who dedicated the street to the city in 1950. Owen McAdams representing the two property owners said they feared major improvement of the dead-end street would be assessed against them.

Eugene Carey, who owns interior property on the street, said he had purchased a house from the Salem school system and planned to move it to the site. Gabriel J. Marsh, another property owner on the street, announced plans for development of the area if the street was kept open.

Both Marsh and Carey said they were willing to dedicate property to the city to continue the street which now runs 155 feet.

The commission made its recommendation of denial stating the street would ultimately be extended to the north and that the present street was the only access to a large area between Pine street on the south and Johnson street some five blocks to the north.

Request Wins Favor
A request by Samuel L. Tripp and Ray Rabenau for permission to build a single family residence on an interior lot at 321 Cascade Drive with less than a 20-foot driveway was reported on favorably by the commission's variance and zone change committee. A public hearing is scheduled for the April 19 meeting on the request for a 12-foot access driveway to the property.

Reasoning consideration for an area recently annexed to the city in the Park avenue and Market street area was promised by the commission which authorized a letter to property owner George Wagonblast of The Dalles stating that the area would probably be rezoned to conform with its present use. Annexation regulations require the new areas to come into the city as residential classification pending consideration by the commission.

A recommendation to the City Council that Reservoir street be renamed Rio Vista Way was approved by the commission after hearing a request of ten residents along the street for the change. The petition listed difficulty of many to spell Reservoir Street as the reason for the request.

A second petition which sought to change the name of Bolton Boulevard in the Candalaria area to Westview Terrace was tabled at the request of petitioners who said they would seek another name meeting approval of the post office.

Priest Turns Over to FBI Loot From Holdup

DENVER (AP) — An unidentified Roman Catholic priest, whose lips are sealed by his vow not to reveal anything heard in the confessional, Tuesday turned over to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents $6,850 he said was part of the loot taken in a Denver bank holdup last February.

Donald E. Kelley, U. S. district attorney, said the priest "asked that he (the priest) not be named and I respect that confidence."

Don Townsend was nominated for president of the Oregon State Employees Association shop and field chapter 38 at its meeting Tuesday night.

Other nominees are Thomas Simpson and Sam Gudmundson, vice president; George Kayser and Earl Henricks, secretary-treasurer. Also nominated as delegates to the OSEA general council in November were Lyle Sacre, Harold Lehman, F. W. Farrar and Don Townsend.

Salk Report Sets Mark in Polio Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tuesday's report of the high effectiveness of the Salk vaccine in preventing paralytic polio marks the most outstanding development so far in the 196 year old fight against the disease.

Here are some highlights of the war on polio as prepared by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis:

1789—Polio was first described by Michael Underwood, a British physician, who asked other doctors "to pay attention to it."

1840—Dr. Jacob Heine, a German bone specialist, learned that symptoms of polio result from damaged or destroyed nerve cells.

1880—Dr. C. Medin gave a "comprehensive description" of symptoms of the malady, and called polio an infectious disease.

1908—Dr. Karl Landsteiner, an Austrian researcher, showed that polio may be transmitted to a monkey, thus giving scientists an experimental animal in which to study the disease. Landsteiner also demonstrated that polio is caused by a virus.

1927—The late Franklin D. Roosevelt, a polio victim, founded the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, first institution exclusively devoted to polio victims.

1938—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis was incorporated to "unify and direct" the fight against polio.

1940—Doctor John F. Enders, Thomas H. Weller and Frederick C. Robbins of Harvard found that polio virus can be grown in cultures of non-nerve tissue in test tubes. "This discovery paved the way for growth of the virus in quantities massive enough for use in a vaccine."

1951—Research costing $1,190,000 in March of Dimes funds determined that all known strains of polio can be classified into three broad types — "this showed that a successful vaccine would have to immunize against all three types of virus."

1952—Dr. William McD. Hammon of the University of Pittsburgh showed, through the use of the blood derivative "gamma globulin" that "relative small amounts of antibodies in the human blood stream can protect against paralytic polio."

1953—Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh reported hopeful results in preliminary vaccine in investigations involving the inactivation of the polio virus with formalin.

1954—Approximately 1,830,000 school children participated in a nationwide program to evaluate the Salk vaccine.

And Tuesday — April 12, 1955 — came the historic report from Ann Arbor on results of the field trials.

Dr. Pinson Elected by Parrish PTA

Other officers elected are: Walter Batliner, first vice-president; Karl Thelen, second vice-president; Mrs. W. E. Greif, secretary; Mrs. Carl Priem, treasurer.

All officers, Sorick and his wife are delegates to the convention.

It was announced at the meeting that parents of all sixth-graders in the Parrish district will be invited to next month's meeting to acquaint them with Parrish PTA.

Salem School Budget Vote Due May 20

The 1955-56 Salem school budget will go to voters May 20.

The budget will be ready for review by the Salem school board next Tuesday and will be studied by the budget committee and the board at a joint meeting April 26.

Other budget matters occupied much of the board's time Tuesday night, including approval of a $28,500 item in the budget for a revision of office business procedures.

Acceptance Approved
The board also approved final acceptance of the School Administration Building and Grant School, the latter to be dedicated Thursday night at 8 p.m. Speaker for the dedication will be Joy Hills Gubser, state department of education. Special guests will be living former Grant elementary school principals.

The city was given right-of-way by the board to a narrow strip of land on the west side of the Candalaria School site for street building purposes.

Two other matters before the board included granting a five-day vacation to 12 persons employed nine months of the year, and a decision to have the board's health and education committee study the question of what drives, in addition to United Fund, should be allowed to solicit or distribute literature through the schools.

Eight Resignations
Eight resignations effective in June this year were accepted, and 17 teachers were elected for the 1955-56 school year.

Superintendent of Schools Walter Snyder said he has now completed all hiring for Salem elementary schools.

Also approved was the hiring of Howard A. Grimms to teach blueprint reading and interpretation and John Moore to teach inside wiring during spring term in the adult vocation education program.

Graduation exercises at South Salem High School will be held, as planned, at the Leslie Junior High auditorium although some students at the new school had expressed a desire to have the ceremonies at the school's gymnasium.

MAN IN CRITICAL SHAPE

Harry Corn, 83, 525 S. Winter St., late Tuesday was reported as being "critically ill" at Salem Memorial Hospital.

Death Takes 90-Year-Old City Resident

Mrs. John W. (Minnie C.) McKinney, 90, died Tuesday at 2320 Hazel Ave., where she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Archil E. Pressnell. She had been ill for some time.

She had lived here and in Turner for about 80 years.

Born Jan. 12, 1865, in Comanche, Iowa, the former Minnie Colwell moved with her parents to Moingona, Iowa, and then in 1875 to Salem.

She attended Sacred Heart Academy and the Old East Salem School and, as a girl, worked in Gilbert Brothers Bank in Salem.

She married John McKinney in 1897 and moved to Turner where they lived until his death in 1934.

She was a member of the Knight Memorial Congregational Church in Salem.

Besides her daughter, she leaves one son, Attorney W. W. McKinney, and a grandson, William C. McKinney, both of Salem. Dr. D. C. Burton of Salem is a nephew.

Services will be 1:30 p.m. Friday at the Clough-Barrick chapel.

Boat, Trailer Topple, Hospitalize Salem Man

Lamar Hobbs, 2390 Haden Ave., was recovering Tuesday at Salem General Hospital from injuries incurred Sunday when a boat and trailer fell on him at his home, breaking his arm. His condition is described as "good."

Hobbs and his son, Ernest Hobbs, were in the process of lowering the boat and trailer from its winter storing place in the garage when tackle gave way.

Dixie States Demand Time to Evolve School Desegregation

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Virginia and North and South Carolina lawyers told the Supreme Court Tuesday public schools in their states may be destroyed if the court orders an immediate end to separate schools for Negro and white children.

Negro attorneys called upon the court to use a "firm hand" to prevent interminable delays in putting school integration into effect.

Spokesmen for the three states argued that enough time must be allowed to work out local problems and win public acceptance for mixed schools. Otherwise, they said, white parents will hold their children out of the school and withdraw their financial support of the school systems.

Cases from Virginia and South Carolina are among those on which the Supreme Court based a decision last May 17 that segregated schools violate the Constitution.

Tuesday it was in the second day of arguments on how and when the decision should be carried out.

The decision and the final decree, when it comes, will affect Virginia and South Carolina directly, along with Kansas, Delaware and the District of Columbia. Also affected, however, are 17 other states, not involved in the cases before court, which require or permit segregated schools in some form.

Atty. Gen. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. of Virginia told the court that: "We are facing the bleak prospects of serious impairment or possible destruction of the free public school system. And I measure my words."

Archibald G. Robertson of Richmond said "Virginia schools may have to be closed" until plans can be devised for complying with the decision outlawing segregation.

Thurgood Marshall of New York, counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told the court once more it should order an end to segregated schools by next September, or at the latest by September, 1956, if it feels that time is required to work out administrative problems.

Marshall said there is no semblance of legal authority to say "if you don't give me what I want, I'll close up the public schools."

Columbia River Span 'Feasible'

ASTORIA (AP) — A 4 1/2-mile-long bridge across the Columbia River here is feasible, although actual construction cost would be $5 million dollars and the bonded debt could not be retired in less than 50 years.

That was the report of the Port of Astoria Commission received in a public meeting Monday from Adm. Carl Drexel of the Tudor Engineering Co. of San Francisco, which has been studying the bridge proposal 10 months.

A financing plan is to be worked out in the next 60 to 90 days for discussion.

Rural Mail Carrier's Car Hit Into Ditch

A rural mail carrier and his car were knocked into the ditch Tuesday by a flatbed truck as he was delivering the mail in the 1200 block of N. Lancaster Dr., state police reported.

Somewhat shaken up was Milton Blackman, 2232 Lansing Ave., whose car received extensive rear-end damage.

Driver of the truck was Arthur Schwab, Mount Angel. State Police-man Verlin Combs said the blow from behind showed Blackman's car about two lengths into the ditch.
