At Oregon State Students Will Be Delegates To Conference

By JODY RICKETTS
Statesman Correspondent
CORVALLIS — Oregon State's delegates to the Model United Nations are all prepared for this year's conference, which is to be held at the San Francisco State College. Oregon State is representing the Dominican Republic this year. Each year it is held on a different campus. Oregon State will submit an invitation for hosting the Model United Nations conference in 1956. Over 100 colleges are represented.

Each year the freshman and sophomore at OSC have a big picnic where the contests to determine the "better" class are held. This year Bruce Michels, freshman class president, is working with the sophomore class president planning all the activities. Each year the presidents have challenged their classes to win the most points in the different contests.

The penalty has not been decided yet, however. A beauty contest, car parade, burning of the green, canoe tilt, and beard growing contest will be among the events featured.

The burning of the green is the activity that especially interests the freshmen for they finally get to throw away those green ribbons, and rick lids, which have been identifying them on Wednesday's all year. Each class moves up one class "socially." The date set for this big event is May 7th, Saturday.

Women's Recreation Association had a conference at the beach last weekend, and some important revisions were made in their laws. Jo Stettler and Evie Tarem were co-chairman for the conference.

Primaries are over at Beaver State, however, the spirit has not lessened and Wednesday is the day scheduled for final elections. Ginger Lively of Salem is competing for vice-president of the junior class.

All plans are completed for Senior Weekend, which is scheduled for Friday and Saturday. Many events have been planned for the enjoyment of the high school senior's attending.

The Kappa Delta alumnae will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Leo Johnson, 438 Wayne Drive, tonight at an 8:15 dessert supper. Dennis Clark of the Oregon Travel Bureau will show a travel film.

Initiation Held By Sororities At Beach

By MARY JEAN SCHUNK
Statesman Correspondent

PORTLAND—It must be spring! The inevitable sign is students forsaking the weekend mountain trips for the beach. Sorority beach trips took many Lewis and Clark co-eds to the western shores last weekend.

Delta Phi Gamma held informal initiation complete with festivities at Nelscott. Pledge Sharon Robertson and member Shirley Crothers were among the many Del Phi's joining in the fun.

Theta Kappa had a similar excursion at one of the northern beaches. Pledge Rosemary Gilley participated in the initiation, as did Dorna Martin.

Also a little tanner for a day on the sands is junior Marilyn Lorenz. Marilyn's new nickname is L & C's "first lady" as she is pinned to the newly-elected student-body president, Don Loew.

Run-off elections for ASLC offices are being held this week. Still in the running are Jody Ellis for student body secretary, Shirley Crothers for AWS secretary, and Mary Jean Schunk for AWS treasurer.

The Lewis and Clark College tennis courts will be in their glory Friday evening as they are decorated for the annual Delta Phi Gamma tennis court dance. The "Tennis Ball" will feature charcoal burners for warmth and toasting marshmallows.

Mothers Weekend Slated

All mothers are encouraged to attend Mother's Weekend May 6-8. The annual event begins with a fashion show Friday evening, banquet and play Saturday evening, sorority breakfasts Sunday morning and a Mu Phi Epsilon concert of American composers Sunday afternoon.

A new addition this year is the invitation extended to all fathers of Lewis and Clark students to come along too, and stay in Platt Hall, men's dormitory. An AMS Smoker is planned as part of their entertainment Saturday evening. So, Moms, be sure to bring Dad along to share in the fun and opportunity to get acquainted with your expense account!

Quick Whip-Up

Upside-Down Cakes Among Many Desserts Made With Package Mix

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

One struggle we gave up quickly with little resistance was against packaged cake mixes. Just about two tries and we were completely sold. It may have been because we were never good at making cakes, mainly because we prefer to cook things that do not require accurate measuring.

In a word, we are a pinch of this and a pinch of that cook, and have usually preferred to turn our talents to recipes that can be improvised.

Ever since serving some hot gingerbread to a guest whom we consider one of the best known cooks and having her ask for our recipe, we have been sold on mixes.

Take gingerbread then. There's a variety of possibilities for using this one mix. Plain it can be served with any number of sauces—lemon, cherry, grape, orange or custard.

OLD PAIR

Ginger goes with apples and one of our favorite combinations is sliced apples and the mix. Just slice apples thickly into a buttered 8x8 inch pan, sprinkle generously with brown sugar and cover with the gingerbread mix. Bake as usual.

The other day we used frozen pie cherries with gingerbread for quick refreshment when company phoned they were on their way out to our place. We brought the contents of a carton of unsweetened pie cherries to a slow boil with about half as much sugar as needed, and let it boil while combining gingerbread mix and water according to directions. (The cherries would not have had time to thaw and cook sufficiently in the short time it would take for the gingerbread to bake, hence the pre-cooking of the fruit.)

Then skimming the cherries out of the liquid, we arranged them on the bottom of the right sized pan in which we melted a generous amount of butter. Sprinkling with the other half of sugar needed for sweetening the cherries and adding only enough of the juice to melt the sugar (the less the better) we added the prepared mix and baked it for 45 minutes. In the meantime, we thickened the juice slightly with cornstarch and served it over the gingerbread, which was served cherry-side up.

A regular upside down cake with traditional pineapple slices is good when gingerbread is used, too. Make it just like any other recipe. While still in the subject of upside down cakes, we might suggest using such fruits as mixed canned mixed cocktail or salad fruits, assorted slightly stewed fruits, frozen raspberries, bananas, orange segments or caramelized sugar and pecans (the mixture found in a recipe for pecan rolls).

OR RING MOLD

Going into another type of dessert which uses the gingerbread mix, we suggest it be baked in a ring mold and the center later filled with whipped cream or ice cream.

You can bake the gingerbread in a sheet pan, and treat it as any other shortcake, using frozen strawberries now, fresh later.

You can make breakfast bread from your gingerbread by sprinkling the top with butter, sugar and some nuts crumbled together. The batter is rather soft, so it may be wise to add this when the bread is set, giving it enough time to heat thoroughly and adhere to the gingerbread.

Newlyweds To Live in Salem

St. Paul's Catholic Church in Silverton was the setting for the marriage of Miss Alice Amanda Gubbel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gubbel of Silverton and Philander Henry Read, son of Mrs. Philip Masson of San Francisco, on April 16. The Rev. Thomas Gaddbo performed the 10 o'clock nuptial mass. Mrs. Raymond Barton was the organist and Mrs. Lorraine Nelke the vocalist.

The bride wore a floor length gown of lace and satin fashioned with a lace bodice with Peter Pan collar. The skirt was made of tiers of net edged in lace over satin. Her fingertip veil was caught to a crown of pearls and sequins. She carried a white Bible topped with a purple throated orchid.

Miss Edna Gubbel was her sister's honor maid and she wore a blue net and lace gown over taffeta with a lace bolero. Her head-dress matched her dress and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and sweetpeas.

Keith Lowry of Salem stood with Mr. Read as best man and Francis Gubbel, the bride's brother, was the usher.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gubbel wore a two-piece dress with green top coat and accessories to match. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Before leaving the church the

Joan Scharf Tells Troth

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Scharf are announcing the betrothal of their daughter, Joan Grace, to Edmund Vincent Bartosz Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Bartosz of Turner. No date has been set for the wedding.

The bride-elect is employed at the Metropolitan Life insurance Co. and her fiance is engaged in farming.

Credit Women to Attend Breakfast

Guests attending the Salem Credit Women's Breakfast Club meeting Tuesday were Mrs. Elton H. Larson of San Diego, Mrs. Hilmar Anderson, Mrs. Orrin Ottaway and Miss Mary Chambers. Eleven members will attend the Portland Breakfast Club's Bosses breakfast and 25th anniversary on April 26.

William Wylie of Tacoma conducted the lesson on credit sales promotion. Initiation and board meeting will be held April 26 at 8 p. m. and the guest breakfast is slated for May 3.

The Merry Time Club will be entertained Friday at a 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. Horace Bell, 2335 Carlton Way.
