Science Truth Stranger Than Science Fiction

New Science Film

into a future that could very well be tommorrow. The stories are thus made entirely believable-and because truth is always stranger than fiction, the stories

The first episode deals with flying saucers and an Air Force test pilot's fight to make his superious beleive he could actually saw one during a faster-than-sound test flight of a new experimental plane. Bill Lundi-gan plays the lead, in one of his first appearances since taking on the emcee for "Climax!" and

"Shower of Stars," and by the time he gets through, you believe every word he says. So, for that matter, does the Air Force.

The second film has to do with mental telepathy, a subject that has been under exhaustive study for many years at Duke University. The personnel of an Army weather station at the North Pole suddenly find themselves able to read one another minds.

Poker games become pointless because everybody knows what cards everybody else is holding.

An expert is sent up from Washington to find out what is causing the phenomenon, and that's where we stop telling the story.

The "Science Fiction Theater" casts include such well-known names as Lundigan, Tom Drake, Bruce Bennett, Ellen Drew, Luis

Jean Heydt and Walter Kingsford. Truman Bradley serves as narrator, introducing each episode in a calm, factual manner that lends a surprisingly authoritative flavor to the proceedings.

"LUX VIDEO THEATER," which specializes in adaptations of successful movies, comes up with a 15-year-old hit Monday with a reprise of Paramount's fine off-beat comedy, "The Great McGinty." Back in 1949 it was a on Sturges as a director and definitely made Brian Donlevy a star. Now, 15 years later, Donlevy will do it again, this time on TV.

"Science Fiction Theat e r' bears no relation to any of these Neither does it bear any relation, thank heaven, to the routine pattern of most science-fiction stor

We saw the first two episodes at a special private screening last week and are delighted to report that they are intelligent, suspenseful, exciting, thought-provoking entertaiment. Right off the bat, the producers have avoided the mistake of projecting the show into the remote future. There are no men from Mars, no space creatures, no Earth hero leading his space squadron around the universe.

Instead, the show deals with phenomena about which scientists already know a good deal, and it projects this knowledge
