Staff Writer, The Statesman Five inmates of the Oregon State Hospital explained to nearly 90 Oregon ministers here Monday why they had become alco-

Earlier, the ministers heard that an alcoholic is loved by God, but in his condition is of no use to Him or to anyone else.

Occasion was a pasotral conference on the clinical aspects of alcoholism, held at the hospital. Speakers included the Rev. Otis R. Rice, Episcopalian pastor, New York; Dr. Dean K. Brooks, superintendent of Oregon State Hospital, and Cecil Farnes, Salem business man who has worked with alcoholics.

First inmate was a man of 27 who said he had been consistently intoxicated since the age of 19. He was cured several times, only to succumb to the torment of "needing a drink."

He defined his problem as primarily a "spiritual one," but said that he had never been able to find satisfaction in Christianity. He added that religion had become nearly "repulsive" to him, but still he felt the need for a

The second was a distinguished looking man of nearly 50, once a musician. He had been a social drinker for years, he said, only to succumb to the temptation to constantly imbibe, after the death of his wife. 'Over the Urge'

He too had taken the "cure' that this time he was "over the urge." He blamed only himself for his alcoholism and said he reads the Bible daily. But from 40 on, he added, "I have been a problem drinker.

He commented that alcohol was a body need, not an emotional or mental problem, and that he just couldn't stop when his body was satisfied. He had to drink everything in sight, he said. A once prominent Salem business man next appeared, whom Dr. Brooks described as a case of chronic alcoholic deterioration. 'Sworn Off'

The man said that he had "sworn off" drinking several times, had been cured before— "one time it lasted for three years"-but always returned to heavy imbibing. Dr. Brooks said that the man had been arrested more than 70 times on intoxication charges.

Ministers were impressed with the man's personality and appearance. But, said Dr. Brooks, he presents the hospital with one of the most difficult handling probiems it has ever confronted, and once tried to burn down his

The man said that a drug recently developed, chloropromazine, has helped his condition, and that of many other inmates. Last two inmates to be presented were organic cases, both of whom had memory defects brought about by "extensive use of alcohol over a long period of time," said Dr. Brooks. Neither could remember for more than 30 seconds what he had been told. One insisted that he had been at the hospital for 25 or 30 days. Actually, he had been at the hospital for more than eight years, and was told this by Dr. Brooks. A few sec-
