

Opposition to Ike's Foreign Aid Measure Dwindles; Final Vote Expected Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — With opposition to President Eisenhower's foreign trade program dwindling in the Senate, agreement was reached Tuesday to limit debate and speed the bill to a final vote possibly Wednesday night.

Sen. Symington (D-Mo.), in a speech supporting the measure, said if it fulfills its promise of improving international trade there may be an opportunity to sell to foreign countries much of the huge agricultural surplus which has accumulated in the United States.

On the other hand, Sen. Malone (R-Nev.) assailed the bill as "an economic Yalta — a sellout of the American working men and investors."

The debate limitation agreement was offered by Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, approved by Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican chief in the Senate, and adopted with almost no discussion.

Both Knowland and Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), floor manager for the measure, expressed confidence that the bill would be approved substantially in the form it came from the Senate Finance Committee.

It would extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for three years from June 12. It would also give the President authority to reduce tariffs up to 5 per cent each year during that period.
