

Jr. Red Cross Students Make 'Hogan Kits'

Forty-one "hogan kits," the products of a Junior Red Cross project in many Marion County schools, will soon be in the hands of pre-school Navajo Indian children attending boarding schools on reservations.

The kits, which contain about 26 items for the children including play things, crayons, sewing items, pencils, notebooks, and animal and alphabet blocks, have been made by students at such schools as Leslie Junior High School, Pratum, St. Paul and Cloverdale.

The kits are really brightly covered bags made from washable material.

This is the first year Marion County has participated in the program. Indian authorities have requested about 3,000 of them from Junior Red Cross chapters.
