"No Favor Sways Us, No Fear Shall Awe" From First Statesman. March 28, 1851

Statesman Publishing Company CHARLES A. SPRAGUE, Editor and Publisher

Published every morning. Business office 280 North Church St., Salem, Ure., Telephone 4-6811

Entered at the postoffice at Salem, Ore. as second class matter under act or Congress March 3, 1879.

Member Associated Press The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper.

No U.S. Citizenship for Churchill

Senator Smathers of Florida has said he would introduce legislation to make Sir Winston Churchill an "honorary" citizen of the USA. In the discussion attending the suggestion a precedent was cited, that of Marquis de Lafayette. Researchers in the State department, however, failed to find any confirmation of this report, though it was found that Maryland conferred state citizenship on the Marquis who had fought under Washington for American independence, and on his heirs "in perpetuity." Virginia also extended its citizenship ot Lafayette. But not Congress.

There just is no such thing as "honorary citizenship." One is a citizen of one country or another, unless his country has been washed out leaving him "stateless" as has been true of thousands in the late years of war and revolution.

It is true that Churchill is one-half American, his mother having been born in this country. As he remarked in an address in the U. S. Senate in wartime had it been the other way round, and his father an American, he might have been a member of that body.

Churchill will not miss the distinction of becoming an "honorary citizen" of the USA. He knows he is held in high esteem here; and we know the affection he holds for this country. In fact he counts as one of his greatest achievements the obtaining of assistance for his country from the United States through the active cooperation of President Roosevelt. As he smokes his seegars and sips his brandy he can feel that the United States served him and his country well in the critical years, 1940 and after.

Passing of the Third Avenue El

Eyes of denizens of Third avenue, New York, soon will blink as the sunshine comes straight through after the lapse of threequarters of a century when it was filtered through the tracks and trestles of the Third Avenue Elevated. The last train has made. its run from lower to upper New York City. The antiquated structure with its quaint overhead stations will come down. Motor buses will replace the El for local transit.

The El started down in old Chinatown, crossed the famed Bowery, came uptown past flats and shops and stores and on into the Bronx. A trip for its length gave one a "bedside" picture of how many of New York's citizens lived, and an overhead view of the street traffic below: the pushcarts, the sidewalk displays, the crowds. Kids were seen playing in the streets and hanging onto the fire escapes, and washings were always in evidence.

A similar view though of shorter length may be had from New York Central trains after they emerge from the tunnel into Grand Central station and course through Harlem, but travel will be quite different for those who long have been patrons of the old El. Of course if they are too much aggrieved they might move to Chicago where the Elevated is still firmly established, now under municipal ownership along with the street cars and

By STEWART ALSOP

President Eisenhower will run

again in 1956 is sure to be him-

by taking a one-man poll.

In a long day on the tele-

"Will Ike run?" broke down as

Flat, confident no: Two Dem-

Hesitant no: One Democrat,

Flat, confident yes: Seven

Republican, one Democrat, five

cans, four Democrats, eight cent "yes," 22.5 per cent "no,"

four newspapermen, still no

debated endlessly, until the self gives the deciding word.

Pending that time, this reporter has attempted to put the debate on a slightly - very slightly - more

scientific basis,

Republicans.

Republicans.

newspapermen.

newspapermen.

One newspaperman.

Republican.

President

WASHINGTON - Whether

Stewart Alsop

Changes on State Board

Two recent changes in the membership of the State Board of Higher Education call for comment. Edgar Smith, of Portland, after serving 16 years as board member, much of the time as president, declined reappointment. In his place Governor Patterson named Charles Holloway Jr., Portland business man. Last week G. F. Chambers of Salem offered his resignation for personal reasons and Bernard Mainwaring, editor and publisher of the Capital Journal, Salem, was appointed as his successor.

A word should be said by way of appreciation of the service rendered by the retiring members. Edgar Smith took his duties with great seriousness and devoted a large measure of his time in performing them. He was genuinely devoted to the cause of higher education and sought modifications in the original system setup which would make the institutions serve better the youth of the Salem's Ted Chambers is a graduate of OSC (Smith attended the UofO for several years but took his degree at Cornell). Those who thought that Chambers would be partial to his alma mater were fooled for he never let loyalty to it qualify his judgment on system matters. A man of clear judgment with ripe business experience he proved a valuable member. His recent assignment as chairman of the building committee was a recognition of his qualifications.

The successors: Holloway is a graduate of the state university, is one of the younger group of Portland businessmen (fuel and ice), and has been very active in civic affairs. Bernard Mainwaring is an OSC graduate but one who will bring no partisanship to his work on the board. He has had experience on boards of church-related colleges in Oregon and Washington. The energy and ability he has shown in the publishing field and his active support of education and civic progress qualify him well for service on this important board.

One of the most shocking incidents in the career of foreign correspondents is that reported from Singapore where Gene Symonds, United Press manager for Southeast Asia was beaten and kicked to death by rioting students. The mob dragged him from a taxi, beat him with stones and clubs and left him lying in the street. The police appear to have been guilty of gross negligence. Symonds had served as correspondent through most of the Korean War and was doing his job as a reporter trying to cover a strike-riot situation in Singapore when he was set upon.

Editorial Comment

A FAMILY OF MOUNTAINS

Out of a battle organization has developed Friends of the Three Sisters Wilderness, Inc. It is a group originally formed to fight the move by the U. S. Forest Service to reduce the wilderness area from 246,000 to 196,000 acres. Strong testimony in behalf of retention of the area at its present size and along its present boundaries was developed at a hearing in Eugene

That testimony is now being reviewed by forest officials and a decision may be expected by mid-year.

But in the meantime the group that spearheaded the fight to retain the present boundaries of the area-which has as its central feature the Three Sisters and the Cascade skyline, finds itself free to join in other activities.

Friends of the Three Sisters Wilderness formally incorporated at a meeting in Eugene this past week and named a veteran Oregon mountaineer and educator, Karl W. Onthank, as its president and charted plans for extensive scientific research in the virgin land.

One of the objectives of the group will be to educate the public in the proper use of this and other wildnerness areas.

But more generally Friends of the Three Sisters Wilderness will be concerned with studies that will bring to the attention of Oregonians that in the Three Sisters country is a region of park-like beauty-a region formed by volcanic action and sculptured by great glaciers.-Bend Bulletin.

Time Flies

FROM STATESMAN FILES 10 Years Ago

. . . . . . .

May 15, 1945 winter plot to assassinate Gen Eisenhower, one of the European theatres' top military secrets for months, was disclosed with the capture of a giant professional political kidnaper, Lt. Col. Otto Skorzeny.

Maj. Stephen A. Stone, Jr., reported missing in action when he failed to return from a flight over Austria, in February, returned to military control, his parents Mr. anad Mrs. Stephen A. Stone, Salem, were notified.

Lt. Wilson Siegmund arrived in Salem to spend a 30-day leave with his wife, the former Margaret Savage, and two and a half year old son Jimmy. Before entering the service he was an auditor with the Secretary of State.

25 Years Ago

May 15, 1930 In Berlin Max Valier, German pioneer in experiment and research with rocket motors, was injured fatally while working on a model of a new liquid oxygen rocket.

The eighth anniversary party of the Salem Lions club was held at the Elks Temple. William Mott, who was the second president of the club, was chairman of the committee and Frank Neer the toastmaster.

Construction of a two-story concrete addition to cost $60,000 was announced by the Oregon Pulp and Paper company with the filing of papers asking that property owned by the S.P. and Oregon Electric companies on Trade Street be vacated to allow the erection of the new building.

40 Years Ago May 15, 1915

An interesting meeting was held by the parent-teacher circle the Lincoln school. Mrs. Luther Chapin, president of the association, presided. Taking part in the program were: Macyl Hunter, Ruth Jones and Mabel Marcus.

On Court Street from front to Cottage the Browning Amusement concern put up its tents, the attractions being part of the Moses tractions being part of the Moose

All England was ringing with the name of Miss Muriel Thompson, British nurse with the Belgian soldiers, who had been decorated by King Albert with the order of Leopold. She went into the trenches under the fire of German guns and carried out wounded Belgian soldiers.

Literary Guidepost By W. G. ROGERS

THE HERO OF SAINT ROG-ER. By Jerrald Tickell. Double-

The little Caribbean island of Saint Roger longs desperately for the return of tourists scared off by a hurricane, and hardheaded local businessmen come up with a scheme: Lure them back with a tale of a dead hero and, in the flesh, the very pretty girl supposed to have been his fiancee. Prefect Jules Latour has mightly little difficulty finding in Paris the girl for the principal role. The synthetic hero is made up of Jacques de Robot, a long-vanished island ne'er-dowell. Paris news photographers do right by red-head Gabrielle, and British, Russian and American government hasten to claim a piece of Jacques for their hon-

Though the story turns a bit lugubrious at the end, when Tickell has one more hero than we counted on, it's otherwise a popular wintertime vacationbright vacation-piece from a united us into a family of interdependent nations.' Twenty-nine lines in warm espousal of the United Nations on these particular pages were reduced to seven lines, cold and non-committal. In the 100,000 Handbooks sold since the 'corrections' of last August, there is in this section a completely blank page (page 229) representing the thirty lines cut out

(From this it looks as though we should revise our geographies, too, and confine maps

and references to the USA, per-

We shouldn't scold the executives of the Girl Scouts. They were panicked when a critic, particularly one as powerful as

the Illinois American Legion

got their Handbook in line of fire. (The national American Legion took no note of the matter.) The Girl Scout is dependent on very general support. It cannot afford to fight battles

over ideology with any group.

ure of the fear that has gripped

many in America. It is the end result of McCarthyism. The illustrations given of the vigorous effort to purge the Girl

Scout Handbook of any taint of

"internationalism" are enough to make an intelligent person laugh; and that gives hope that a balance of judgment will be restored. But how long are we to take counsel of our fears rather than our strength? If we become so timid that we refuse association with folk of other lands and so craven that we blanch when the word "international" is used, then are we in danger of collapse from sheer fright. Fortunately the signs indicate that the climate is changing. Maybe in a year or two the Girl Scouts can be told there are other countries

than our own, and that we do

The affair serves as a meashaps with Canada added.)

of 'My World.'"

(Continued from page 1.)

without any trespass on patriotism, and the Handbook and the organization through the years emphasized this purpose. The 1947 edition of the Handbook paid this tribute to Mrs. Low: "The concept of 'One World' had taken shape in her lively

LABORS OF HERCULES

PROSPERIT) HIGH

mind many years before the phrase became common. She was one of the first true internationalists." A pamphlet put out in August, 1954, ordered numerous changes in the Handbook, and this was substituted for the "The concept of 'international friendship' had taken shape in her lively mind long before the phrase became familiar to everyone."

Other changes have been noted between the 1947 and later editions. For instance: Description of the insignia. 1947: ". . . the trefoil rests on a flamelike base, the flame of love of mankind, symbolizing the highest thoughts of international friendship." The 1953 edition ends the sentence with

Doing a good turn is expected of Girl Scouts as well as Boy Scouts, but between 1947 and 1953 the range of sympathy seems to have narrowed. The former edition said: "Scouts and Guides all over the world are known for their willingness to help other people." The 1953 version omitted the phrase "all over the world." Helping other people now is to be selective, it would seem.

Even the 1953 revision was not deemed adequate. For the instruction it contained: "Service is your way of making this a better world in which to live,' was later ordered changed to "Service is your way of making a contribution to your commu-

(An immediate call would seem necessary for a revision of the New Testament, making Mark 16:15 read: "Go ye . . ' and preach the gospel . . .").

Evidently the League of Women Voters is suspect, for when in the 1953 Handbook it was mentioned three times as a source of information on government in the August pamphlet reference to the League was deleted.

Quoting Bagdikian:

"A section devoted to 'My World' (formerly 'One World') in September contained 65 lines. In August it was cut down to 35 lines. What came out were such things as the fact that coffee comes from Brazil, olives from Spain, toys from Japan, wool from England, watches from Switzerland. Gone were such sentences as 'Cablegrams, telegrams, radiograms have also

oregon Diatesman

Phone 4-6811 Subscription Rates

By earrier in cities: Daily and Sunday $ 1.45 per mo.
Daily only ______ 125 per mo.
Sunday only _____ .10 week

By mail Sunday only: in advance) Anywhere in U S 2.50 per mo. 2.75 six mo. 5.00 year

By mail, Daily and Sunday:

(in advance)

$ 1.10 per mo. 5.50 six mo in Oregon

$ 1.45 per mo. Member Audit Bureau of Circulation Sureau of Advertising ANPA

> New York Chicago San Francisco Detrott

Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association Advertising Representatives: Ward-Griffith Co.. West Holliday Co. 605 S. Commercial St.

Satety

(Editor's Note: Letters for The Statesman's Safety Valve column are given prior consideration if they are informative and are not more than 300 words in length.
Personal attacks and ridicule, as well as libel, are to be avoided, but anyone is entitled to air beliefs and opinions on any side of any question.)

School Taxes To the Editor:

For the sixth year straight running the people of the Mar-ion County Rural School District (so-called) have voted down the part of their budget outside the 6 per cent limita-tion. This should convince our tax equalization friends that we do not for one moment accept the idea that the property tax levy should be uniform regardless of the income of the taxpayer or of the services provided by the local school.

We want local control of our schools and should be willing to raise half of our budget by local taxes. But the property tax is most unfair in a district, or county, where there are many people with adequate income and little taxable property and where there are also many people with inadequate income but much taxable property.

The local district should be allowed to collect half of their local tax from income and half from property. The county could do the same. We in Oregon could have it that way if we would. A state fund from income alone or from income and sales could provide half the operating costs of all our schools and also give substantial aid to any districts unable to provide housing.

More money for schools is a must. Anyone know how to 'bell the cat"? Will we keep on asking our neighbors to pay our bills? Or will we do for ourselves according to our income instead of according to our property assessment?

Those responsible for the increased enrollment should be allowed to pay at least part of the increased costs.

W. R. Baker Rt. 5, Box 482 - Salem, Ore.

No More Power Cuts Expected

PORTLAND W - No more cuts in interruptible power need be ex-pected through the summer. Bon-neville Power administrator William A. Pearl has reported.

On Thursday night Bonneville ended interruptible power cuts which were put into effect earlier this spring because of high electricity consumption and low water

> Earlier this year interruptible power-dump power which is sold to aluminum companies-was reduced 75 per cent. Warmer weather has improved the situation, reducing electricity consumption and increasing stream flows, Pearl reported.

> If You Sit In the Boss's Chair - - -

Be Sure It's A

Durable Plastic Upholstery Over Foam Rubber

Wide Choice of Color Combinations Priced From-

NEEDHAM'S Stationery-Office Supplies

465 State Street

A CORNER OF CONVENIENCE

soon we will have a corner of banking convenience with . . .

Chemeketa St. | Church St.

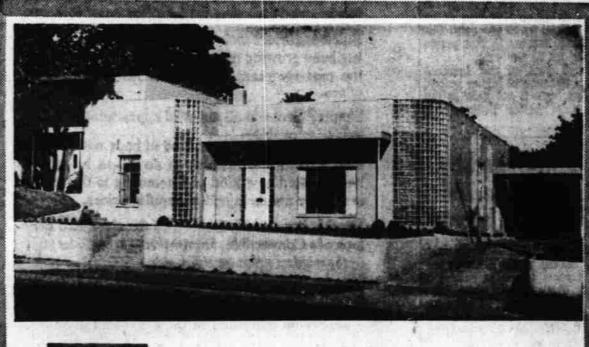

ample parking drive-in windows sidewalk windows day & night depository safe deposit boxes

Now we will be pleased to meet and serve you at 320 N. Church

320 NORTH CHURCH STREET

Serving Salem and Vicinity as Funeral Directors for 25 Years

Convenient location-S. Commercial Street-on a bus line-direct route to cemeteries-no cross traffic to hinder services. Salem's most modern funeral home with seating capacity for 300. Services within your means, always.

Virgil T. Golden Co.

FUNERAL SERVICE

own genuine inclinations?

phone, 20 Senators and 20 newsself been spoken of as a White paper reporters were reached House possibility: -an adequate sampling, according to polling theory. There seemed to be more Republicans "For the first time, just in the past two or three weeks, than Democrats with their noses I've begun to think he might not to the grindstone, so the final go. But I still just can't see how proportion among Senators was anybody we put up he'd knock his head off, and if they put any-12 Republicans to 8 Democrats one else up, we'd knock his head All interviews were "not for attribution," to promote candor.

The answers to the question ocrats, two newspapermen, no Hesitant yes: Four Republihe's never shirked a duty yet."

Unupsettable fence-sitter: One Stern refusal to participate: This works to about 72.5 per and 5 per cent no answer. The t the kind of guy, at least about poli- genius retire.' President will run was perhaps tics—look at the '52 and '54 cam-not very surprising. Yet the paigns. They'll really hold his pulse-feeling did develop some

'Scientific' Poll Indicates Eisenhower to features worth remarking. Except for one cynical newspaperman who thought the President's supposed reluctance was an act, everybody assumed that the President really did not want to run. Why should more than seven out of ten think he would run, despite his Part of the answer is found in another very general belief. Two Democratic Senators and a couple of reporters thought that the President might be beaten. But almost everyone else agreed in substance with a Democratic Senator who has him-off. So the Republicans just can't let him go to Gettysburg."

Over and over again, in one form or another, came the phrase: "He can't resist the pressure." The Republicans naturally tended to put the matter on a high plane. "Ike's a soldier," said one Republican who spoke for the rest, "and he's got a tremendous sense of duty. He knows he owes it to the country and the Party to run, and

The reporters and the Democrats tended to be more cynical. One literary Democrat compared the President to the reluctant lady in Byron's "Don Juan," who, "whispering 'I will ne'er consent,' consented." A reporter, no admirer of the President, had this to say: "Ike's really a pliant

Seek Reelection in Face of GOP Pressure feet to the fire this time, and in the end he'll go." One of the two Democrats who flatly predicted that the President would not run had an odd explanation: "Shucks, I like golf too, and I'm up in '56. Suppose I'd already made up my mind not to run again, why, I'd be out on the course half the time. But I want it, and here I am up here running myself ragged. Ike's not running himself ragged, not by a long shot." If women's intuition is worth anything, the majority is wrong. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith has publicly voiced her doubts about the Preseident's running, and one reporter's wife who answered the telephone agreed: "All the women I know say no."

Yet her husband, a brilliant White House reporter, spoke for the male majority: "Ike really does love that farm, and he really does hate Washingtonhe says so openly - and Mamie really does want him to retire. But what can he possibly say when the men he admires most tell him: 'Mr. Preseident, you've got to run, or everything you've stood for is lost."

The results of this pulse-taking were, obviously, even more inconclusive than usual, since the one person who could give a really authoritative answer was not available for questioning. But the interviews did suggest the amazing extent to which President Eisenhower now dominates the American political scene. "The man's a great political genius," one roported remarked. 'He does what no politician in American history has been able to do-he makes hardly any enemies, only friends. And the Republican party's not going to let its one and only political

(Copyright 1988, New York Herald Tribune, Inc.)