Man Faces Charge of Illegal Refuse Dumping
A Stayton man, Edward James Lewin, 34, will be brought to Marion County District Court today on a charge of dumping septic tank refuse along a county road near Mill City.
Lewin was cited by sheriff's deputies who said he had dumped five or six loads of the refuse along the road during the past few months. Lewin agreed to put lime on the area to eliminate the odor, the sheriff's office said.

County Set to Pay Share of Road Expense

A warrant for $33,100, advance payment on Marion County's share in three road projects, will soon be in the hands of state highway officials so construction contracts can be signed.

Total cost of the projects will be $165,756, the county court was informed.
Work to be done includes: construction of a bridge across Abiqua Creek on Meridian Road, $22,471; improvement of the Turner-Aumsville Road, $74,115; and re-building of two bridges on Turner-Aumsville Road, as well as one near the penitentiary annex, $69,169.
Bids on all three projects were opened at the State Highway Commission meeting in Portland last week.

State Hospital Inmates to Give Dance Festival

The therapy of music and dance has been used effectively with many patients of Oregon State Hospital in recent months, and some groups have become interested and proficient enough to stage a gay spring folk festival.

This was the report from the hospital Tuesday, in announcing a dance festival will be open to the public at the hospital tennis courts Thursday at 2 p. m. If the weather is bad, the program will be held Friday afternoon instead.

Specially honored by the occasion will be Thomas Kettlewell, 89, one of the oldest patients and the one who has been a patient longer than any other—60 years. He works on the hospital library staff.
Mrs. Ruth Montgomery, recreation therapist, and Tom Larson, music therapist from Willamette University, will be in charge of the festival.
Featured will be three patient groups in a Dutch tulip time dance, a Western scottische and a valse; a folk dancing group of patients from Fairview Home and two dances by the student nurse group.

Robert C. Elgin Named to Top Appraiser Job

Robert C. Elgin, 38, Salem, became chief appraiser of the loan division of the State Veterans Department Tuesday.

DISSOLVING PARTNERSHIP

SALE STARTS WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1st, AT 1:30

AND AGAIN IN THE EVENING AT 7:30 SALE CONTINUES TWICE DAILY AT 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. until both partners are satisfied. Owners statement, "Mr. Robb has decided to retire from the furniture business. I have been in business here in Salem for myself as well as manager for a number of stores and wish to continue in business here in our Maple Shop, so we decided that the best way to raise the extra cash needed to complete the final arrangements was to hold a public auction. Therefore we have commissioned E. L. Deskines and Associates, 411 Weatherly Bldg., Portland, Oreg. to conduct an auction starting June 1, giving you the public a chance to buy this beautiful maple furniture, not for what it is worth but what you are willing to pay."
