

Negro Leaders Map Desegregation Plans In 2 Southern States

WASHINGTON — The spotlight focused Wednesday on a pair of rural counties in South Carolina and Virginia as Negro leaders worked on strategy for winning an end to segregated schools in the South.

Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel

British Union Heads Fail in Rail Mediation

LONDON — Top British trade union officials failed Wednesday night to end a nationwide railway strike that is slowing the country's booming industrial machine and threatening millions with unemployment.

The president of the striking rail-roads' union, A.A. Hallworth, walked out of a conference with a six-man Trades Union Congress committee and said:

"We have explained our position to them now that the strike is on. No further meeting has been arranged but our executive will continue its daily meetings tomorrow."

Freight deliveries by rail were running an estimated one-fifth of normal. Factory stockpiles of raw materials slowly dwindled and threatened to shut down some key industries such as the steel mills by the week's end.

The government authorized independent bus companies to operate in and out of London to help move workers from the congested capital.

Scotland Yard appealed to motorists to stagger their journeys home after work in an effort to relieve traffic chaos.

British Team Climbs Peak In Himalayas

NEW DELHI — Himalayan climbing circles reported Thursday that a British team has "in effect" climbed 28,168-foot Mt. Kanchenjunga, the world's highest unclimbed peak.

Sources here said the climbers, led by Dr. Charles Evans, had stopped a few feet short of the peak because they had promised the Sikkim state government "not to set foot on the sacred summit."

"But in effect Kanchenjunga was conquered," these sources said. (A report published in the London Times said the British climbers stopped five feet short of the summit.)

Kanchenjunga, on the undefined border between Nepal and Sikkim, is the world's third highest mountain. It is topped by Everest, 29,002 feet, and K-2, 28,520 feet.

Rock Blast Blocks Rail

THE DALLES — A construction blast brought down more rock than expected, and blocked a rail line more than six hours near here Wednesday.

A bakery window also was broken in The Dalles, but no other damage was reported in the Spokane, Portland & Seattle rail line until 4:30 p.m. A passenger train and several freight trains were delayed, a railroad spokesman said.

The blast was touched off in relocating the line because of construction of The Dalles Dam on the Columbia River.

Senate Approves Postal Pay Raise

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted 79-0 Wednesday to give 500,000 postal workers a pay raise averaging 8 per cent.

The raise, described by Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) as acceptable to President Eisenhower, would be retroactive to March 1. There is a chance the House will act next week, sending the bill to the White House.

Eisenhower on May 19 vetoed a bill to make the raise an average 8.6 per cent.

The cost of the measure the Senate passed Wednesday was estimated at 164 million dollars.

REICH CRASH KILLS 18

LIMBURG, Germany — Eighteen German women tourists were killed and 18 others were injured, most of them seriously, when their bus went out of control Wednesday in the Westerwald Mountains near here and hit a tree.

WEST. TITO TALKS SOUGHT

WASHINGTON — The United States, Britain and France are reported ready to propose a formal conference with Yugoslavia to review a wide range of military, political and economic problems.

PIX THEATRE

WOODBURN, ORE.

Thurs.-Fri.-Sat.

In Color

"Ten Wanted Men"

with Randolph Scott

ALSO

"Cannibal Attack"

with Johnny Weissmuller

Adlai Seeks More Liberal Immigration

NEW YORK — Adlai Stevenson Wednesday night called the nation's immigration law a "misguided policy" which requires quick revision.

The last Democratic candidate for President put himself behind President Eisenhower to the extent of saying he hopes a proposed revision of the immigration act will succeed in liberalizing it.

Stevenson, a leader among potential Democratic presidential candidates in 1956, told a 300th anniversary celebration of Americans of Jewish faith:

"When I hear people who sound as though they regretted the fact that anyone dared come to this country after 1776, I often wonder how different the history of the world might have been if the nearly 40 million people who did come to America between the Revolution and the last war had remained in Europe — how much greater Europe would have been in science, in art, in industry, in moral might and influence; and how feeble and undeveloped our own dear land would be."

"A misguided policy has of late not only prevented us from helping to heal the world's grievous wounds, but has strangled this flow of new talent and energy. We all hope that our current immigration laws will soon undergo an urgently needed revision and that the steps recently and at long last announced will succeed."

Eisenhower on May 27 asked Congress to make 10 liberalizing changes in the 1953 Refugee Relief Act. The original act authorized admission of up to 214,000 refugees to this country. To date only 22,000 have actually entered.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

But the first action will be in the cases involving Clarendon County, in the east central part of South Carolina, and Prince Edward County, in Central Virginia.

Marshall said Wednesday.

The court, in amplifying its original decision Tuesday, handed to U.S. District Courts the task of bringing school segregation to an end "as quickly as practicable."

Marshall indicated it is likely the NAACP will institute suits in other states practicing segregation in order for the issue to get into the courts quickly.

Elected

Frank M. (Scotty) Washburn, Salem YMCA boys' work director who Wednesday became president of Oregon section, American Campers Association, represents private, public and agency-type camp programs. Group promotes high camping standards.

Udall's Mayor Thankful for Tornado Aid

UDALL, Kan. — Udall's young mayor gave his town's thanks Wednesday to the people of the United States "and the world" who have come to its aid since it was leveled by a tornado May 25.

"I'm old enough and young enough to go someplace else to start over again," 36-year-old Earl Rowe told a news conference.

"But God saved my life, there is some reason that some of us was left. We're going to rebuild the city for that reason."

Rowe said the high school, built two years ago at a cost of $328,000 will be replaced at a cost of $129,000 plus $250,000 insurance; and the grade school at a cost of $300,000, of which $54,000 will come from insurance.

As soon as utilities are restored, he added, "50 to 60 new homes will be started immediately."

A few permits for homes or repairs already have been issued, and a new building code is being written.

Adenauer Plans June U. S. Visit

BONN, Germany — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is expected to fly to the United States June 13, government officials said Wednesday night.

The chancellor has accepted an invitation to lunch with President Eisenhower on June 15. The ostensible purpose of his trip is to receive an honorary doctorate from Harvard University.

Informed officials said it was quite probable that Adenauer would meet with the Western Big Three foreign ministers in New York on June 16.

Portland Youths Steal Wheat on Gigantic Scale

PORTLAND — Four boys, 14 to 17 years old, have admitted stealing "thousands of tons" of wheat from a railroad siding at a North Portland grain terminal over the past several weeks, police said Wednesday.

The boys, whose names were withheld, have been released to parents, pending juvenile court action.

Police quoted one of them as saying they averaged 800 to 1,000 pounds of wheat per theft. They said the boys told them they once sacked 1,100 pounds and sold it to a feed store for $28.

Rule May Affect Conscientious Objector Cases

PORTLAND — Draft cases involving several Oregon conscientious objectors may be affected by a March 15 U.S. Supreme Court decision.

In a memorandum filed in federal court here Deputy U.S. Atty. James W. Morrell said the defense for Richard I. Faxon made a good point in a motion to set aside Federal Judge Claude McCulloch's finding that Faxon violated the selective service law.

Morrell said Faxon, son of a Toledo, Ore., minister, had not received a copy of a Justice Department recommendation turning down his appeal from a 1A classification by the Toledo draft board.

According to Morrell the high court ruled in the March 15 decision that a copy must be delivered. He added that the opinion might lead to reversal of findings against Faxon and several other conscientious objectors.

Dallas, Texas Building Falls; Three Killed

DALLAS — At least three persons and possibly more were killed when a building collapsed and crushed a second building Wednesday night with 11 known persons inside. Some informed estimates said 15 might have been inside.

At midnight, workers had removed 10 victims, three of them dead as they were removed or dead on arrival at hospitals.

One man at that time remained in the wreckage but was alive.

How many might still be in the rubble was unknown.

A wall of a three-story building which was being razed toppled and crashed on top of a story-and-a-half-structure housing a music store and a beer tavern-quick lunch place.

The wall crushed the smaller structure, trapping patrons. Brick cascaded into the street.

At The Theaters Today

ELGINORE

"THE MAGNIFICENT MATADOR" with Maureen O'Hara and Anthony Quinn.

"TREASURE OF RUBY HILLS" with Zachary Scott and Carole Mathews.

CAPITOL

"STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND" with James Stewart and June Allyson.

"VISTAVISION VISITS MEXICO"

GRAND

"THE BRIDGES AT TOKO-RI" with Grace Kelly and William Holden.

"FAR COUNTRY" with James Stewart, Corinne Calvet and Ruth Roman.

NORTH SALEM DRIVE-IN

"MA & PA KETTLE AT WAIKIKI" with Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride.

"SMOKE SIGNAL" with Dana Andrews and Piper Laurie.

HOLLYWOOD

"JUPITER'S DARLING" with Esther Williams and Howard Keel.

"OVER AFRICA" with Maureen O'Hara and MacDonald Carey.