CHEMOKETANS VISIT
The Chemoketans, Salem outdoor club, plan a hiking trip on Saddle Mountain near Cannon Beach. Members and guests will leave by car from the 200 block of N. Commercial St. in downtown Salem Sunday at 6:30 a.m. A practice session in rappelling will be held on the mountain. Members and their guests are to bring lunches.

Street Work Petition Lacks Signatures

Petitions seeking pavement of Vista Avenue, where residents are threatened with a cut-off of mail service June 16 unless road improvements are made, fell short of required number of signatures, County Surveyor A. D. Graham reported Thursday afternoon.

Graham's report to the County Court said petitions were signed by 50 per cent of the owners representing 42 per cent of the owner footage. Seventy per cent of the owners' signatures are necessary.

The street is in such bad condition that the post office has said it would be forced to cancel mail service unless it is improved. Postmaster Albert Gragg has suggested that if residents will at least grade the road mail service will continue.

The surveyor's office is also checking signatures on petitions seeking pavement of Peace street from 12th street east to 13th street and Arleta avenue. If they qualify, an estimate of costs of paving is to be prepared.

The county court received a second petition Thursday seeking pavement for Peace street from 13th street to Pringle road. Both petitions will be handled separately.

The city has leased 10 acres of airport property to Salem Shrine Club for development of picnic grounds, it was announced Thursday.

The site is located in the extreme southeast corner of the airport and will be in operation this summer. Cooking facilities, tables and a comfort station will be erected by the club.

Consolidated Clubs, Inc., a Salem Shrine Club-sponsored group, filed articles of incorporation this week. The corporation, a non-profit one, was formed to secure the grounds.

Incorporators are W. R. Newmyer, 4230 Shoreline Dr.; John T. Graybill, 2117 Jelden Ave.; George Rhoten, Pioneer Trust Bldg.; Harold A. Rosebraugh, 5250 Liberty Rd., and Edward D. Potter, 2090 Court St.

The incorporators state that the grounds will be for use of all Masonic bodies and their youth organizations. The lease, although not yet signed, has been approved by the City Council.

County Allows Assessment Adjustments

A $10,000 downward adjustment on valuation of the building occupied by the Metropolitan store on Commercial street has been granted by the Marion County Board of Equalization.

The assessment adjustment had been requested by the Pioneer Trust Company. The valuation was reduced from $50,000 to $40,000.

A slight reduction on the assessment of buildings and property at Breitenbush Mineral Springs was also approved.

Petitions for adjustments from William E. Moses, Robert T. Morris, John Jelden, Edith Harle, Virgil Holland and H. E. Rohland were denied.

Further study on adjustments requested by three other property owners will be made to determine what portion of the deductions will be made on buildings and on land, County Clerk Henry Mattson said.

The board, consisting of County Judge Rex Hartley, Pat McLaughlin, Ray J. Glatt and Mattson will meet again briefly at a later date for action on these petitions.

Early-Day 'Speed Cop' Starts 31st Year as State Policeman

By VINITA HOWARD
Staff Writer, The Statesman

Capt. Walter Lansing, who this week celebrated his 30th anniversary of work as an Oregon state police officer.

Capt. Walter Lansing, one of Oregon's early "speed cops," began his 31st year Thursday as an Oregon state police officer.

A senior captain, now assigned to the Secretary of State's office as director of the traffic safety division, Lansing might be called Oregon's No. 1 Lifesaver.

During his 30 years with the department, most of his time both on and off the job has been aimed at preventing the fender-bending duels which too often mar the state's streets and highways.

Full-Time Job
With Lansing, trying to educate, persuade and, if necessary, force people to drive safely is a 24-hour-a-day job.

Lansing first entered law enforcement work in 1923, when he was 26, as a deputy sheriff in eastern Oregon. He had been on his own since his early teens and had already worked as a ranch hand, journeyman mechanic, apprentice pressman, and a mining straw-boss in Idaho at the ripe old age of 19.

He was forced out of the mines by silicosis and for brief periods was a contractor, trucker and railroad before landing the deputy sheriff job.

After two years, a new political wind blew into the county and Lansing joined the newly organized traffic division which was later to emerge as the State Police.

No Guns
That was in 1925 and, in those days, highway patrolmen carried no guns, an equipment item that often would have been welcomed.

On more than one occasion, Lansing recalls that traffic miscreants would pile out of their cars with the comment, "Maybe I can make you like the way, I drive." What happened then would make present-day state

Druggists Move To New Location In West Salem

Carl Person and Carl Wellman, Salem druggists, have moved into new quarters at 905 Edgewater St., it was announced Thursday.

The store is known as Person and Wellman, Drugs. Floor space is 60 feet long, 22 feet wide on one floor.

Both men are former owners of separate drugstores. Wellman for 27 years operated the Market Drug Store at the corner of N. Commercial and Marion Streets. Person operated another drug store for eight years on Edgewater Street.

Indian Guides Schedule Trip

Some 200 fathers and sons, members of the Salem YMCA's Indian Guide program, will make an overnight trip to Camp Silver Creek Saturday.

One group will leave at 9 a.m. Saturday to prepare the camp, the remainder will leave at 1 p.m. for the site. Saturday night festivities will include a camp fire, story telling and Indian movies.

Sunday's agenda includes softball, fishing and hiking. The delegation will return at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Assistants Transferred By Thornton

Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton announced Thursday the shift of several of his assistants.

The shifts, he said, were made necessary by legislative acts which impose more duties on his office.

Thornton said that Roy K. Terry, attorney for the industrial accident commission in Portland, would head up the new public welfare fund and non-support division. The legislature ordered Thornton to put five lawyers in this division.

Terry will be replaced by George S. Woodworth, now attorney for the liquor commission.

Taking Woodworth's liquor post will be Francis T. Wade, now attorney for the unemployment compensation commission.

E. Nordyke, now on Wade's staff, will be moved up into Wade's position.

CORVALLIS MAN CHOSEN

Cleo H. Jenkins, Corvallis, was appointed by Gov. Patterson Thursday to the state board of architect examiners. He succeeds Howard R. Perrin, Klamath Falls.

police manual writers cringe; suffice it to say, verbal exchanges sometimes did not end the episode.

In 1927, Lansing was beginning to see the need for safety education. In addition to his patrol duties, he organized the state's first schoolboy patrols—today there are several hundred in the state—and formed a traffic safety movie in his spare time.

Salem Transfer
By 1930, his accident prevention efforts earned him a promotion to sergeant and a transfer to Salem.

When the Department of State Police gained separate status a year later, Lansing was transferred to it, retaining his rank. He became a captain in 1935 and was placed in charge of the six-county District 2, headquartered at Salem.

In the years that followed, he had a role in some of the state's more notable criminal cases, including investigation of the Rose murder case in 1939 and the Layton murder case in 1943. When mass food poisonings occurred at the State Hospital in the 1940's, Lansing was named by the then Governor, Charles Sprague, to head the investigation. In 1949, he returned to full-time safety work.

Lansing's speaking assignments—his speeches often combine a safety "sermon" with what he calls "rim rock philosophy"—keep him busy hopping around the state appearing before civic and service clubs.

Views Definite
His views on traffic safety, which may not always coincide with those of national safety experts, are definite and anyone who has ever heard him expound on what he considers the speed-goats of traffic safety—alcohol, liquor or mechanical defects—will not soon forget them.

Most of his time is now devoted to filling speaking engagements, attending safety meetings, promulgating school bus standards, supervising the school patrol program and generally directing state police and state department safety promotion programs.

But he still occasionally takes the wheel of a special division recording car and goes out on patrol to record what happens when drivers fail to obey traffic laws. In 30 years as a state police officer, Lansing has worn out 17 state cars but he has yet to exhaust his own enthusiasm for the work.

Independent Phonemen to Gather Today

Linemen and leaders of independent telephone companies throughout the state will come to Salem today for a day-long plant forum.

Demonstrations and "practice work" will feature the program planned by Oregon Independent Telephone Association. All events will center at the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. garage building, 1225 S. 22nd St., beginning at 9 a.m.

About 60 companies are sending men to the meeting, according to word from association leaders including Leon L. Roome, Halsey, program chairman. Demonstration topics will include cable and open wire construction, locating lines trouble, drop wire transmission. Two movies will be shown.

Pacific Telephone engineers and telephone supply company representatives also will meet with the group.

Greek Quake Relief Week Designated

Gov. Paul L. Patterson Thursday designated June 12-19 Greek Earthquake Relief Week, during which Oregon citizens may contribute to the reconstruction of areas devastated by the quakes of 1953, 1954 and 1955.

The governor, in his statement, observed that Greek World War II reconstruction efforts were impaired by the 1953 quake in the Ionian Islands and the 1954 quake in Thessaly and the Peloponnese, and that the more recent quake at Volos has left 60,000 persons homeless.

Gov. Patterson Notes National Rose Week

Next week is National Rose Week, Gov. Paul Patterson said Thursday.

The purpose, he said, "is to attract attention to the many public parks and gardens in our state which reach the height of their beauty during the rose season."

Polk Bridge Contract Let

A $70,530 contract for constructing a 265-foot concrete bridge over the Luckiamute river on the Burns Corner-Suwer Road in Polk County was awarded by the highway commission Thursday.

The bridge replaces an existing bridge. Tom Lillebo, Reedsport, won the award.
