Highway 99 Numbering Changes Told

The Pacific Highway will be renumbered U. S. 99 north of Eugene through Portland when the Portland-Salem expressway is completed, but the designations 99E and 99W will still apply to portions of the alternative routes, State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldock said Monday.

It is hoped, he said, the expressway will be finished by fall, although cold, rainy weather has meant some delay.

The routing U. S. 99E will continue to designate the present route north of Salem through Woodburn, Canby, Oregon City and Portland to the Interstate Bridge along Union Avenue.

Falling Tree Injury Fatal to Silverton Man

PORTLAND—(Special)—William Roberts, 20, of Silverton, died here Monday in Providence Hospital from injuries he received in a road-building accident 11 days ago.

J. Wesley Webb, whose construction company bears his name, said Roberts was struck by a falling tree which was broken in two against a tractor behind which Roberts was walking.

Roberts worked for Webb's company. Webb said there was no apparent reason for the tree's falling. The canopy on the tractor saved the operator, he said.

Arrangements are in charge of the Howell-Edwards funeral home.
