Peron Resignation Demand 'in Offing'

Hints and speculation from Buenos Aires Sunday indicated a shift in power giving President Juan D. Peron less authority may be in the making in Argentina.

Fred L. Strozler, Associated Press chief of bureau in Buenos Aires, in a telephone conversation with the AP in New York stressed it was the army that had the situation in the country under complete control.

He added that according to "informed speculation" new developments might be expected.

A Montevideo dispatch from Chicago Tribune correspondent Jules DuBois quoted diplomatic circles in Uruguay as saying the Argentine army is making plans to demand Peron's resignation.

The dispatch said the reins of Argentine government under the present state of siege "are virtually in the hands of" Gen. Franklin Lucero, army minister.

El Clarin of Santiago, Chile, a tabloid-type newspaper which in the past has printed some sensational reports, declared Peron had "submitted" to the army and had agreed to annual recent measures taken against the Roman Catholic Church.

The dispatch was by the newspaper's correspondent in Montevideo, Uruguay.

"Real Power Wielder" NBC correspondent Bob Lindley in a radio report from the Argentine capital Sunday said Army Minister Franklin Lucero, who has been credited by Peron with the major role in crushing the navy revolt of last Thursday, "is emerging minute by minute as the real wielder of power."

"Peron will never again wield the extreme dictatorial power which he had when the first rebel bombs fell on Government House," Lindley added that "the government is being governed by the army" and "Peron, technically, is no longer President of Argentina."

When Lindley was questioned about Peron's status, however, his broadcast was broken off in Buenos Aires.

Argentina's constitution says the President must be a Catholic. Peron was excommunicated by the Vatican last Thursday, but he has since asserted he was still a Catholic.

News dispatches from Argentine were subject to censorship. Telephone communications with the outside world were restored Sunday for the first time since Tuesday.

Moral Strength Sought

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles called Sunday for a world mobilization of moral strength "to assure the continued vitality of the United Nations."

Dulles spoke before 16,000 people at the Festival of Faith held in San Francisco's famous Cow Palace under the sponsorship of religious groups of many faiths.

The secretary declared that the past 10 years has revealed that the power of the U.N. "was primarily a moral power, derived from the judgment of the participating nations and their peoples, as to what was right and what was wrong."

He said the religious people of the world have not always done what they could to impress moral principles on the world and make them felt.

"To recognize these facts is to accept a challenge for the future," Dulles said. "The first ten years of the United Nations teaches a clear lesson."

"The lesson is that the people of the world are committed to the moral law have a great responsibility to assure the continued vitality of the United Nations and its capacity to influence the course of international conduct."

Greater Hazard Dulles said the future "contains greater hazard than any future man have ever faced," but it also contains greater opportunity.

"That opportunity can be grasped with confident hope if men and women of faith throughout the world develop and mobilize moral strength so that moral standards will increasingly prevail in the United Nations."

Participating in the meeting were representatives of Buddhism, Christianity, Confucianism, Hinduism, Judaism and the Moslem faith.

Knifing Kills Mother, Two Small Sons

SEATTLE (AP)—Two small boys were found slain at their home here Sunday. Their mother, eight months pregnant, died several hours later.

The King County's sheriff office termed the deaths a suicide and double slaying.

Sheriff's detectives said Thomas W. Reimers, 5, and Gerald John Reimers, 4, were found slain in the older boy's crib early Sunday. Officers said it appeared both apparently had been battered with a rolling pin found in the crib and slashed with a butcher knife.

Their mother Josephine, 29, was found critically wounded on the floor of her bedroom. Police said she had been slashed on the throat, wrists and groin. A bloody butcher knife lay nearby.

The tragedy was discovered shortly before 1 a.m. by the husband and father, Charles Reimers, 30, an airplane company employee, when he arrived home after being away from late afternoon Saturday.

Detective Lieut. Harold Wieland said it appeared that the younger child had been beaten to death in his crib, then picked up and hurled into the other bed.

Pen Escapee 'Wanted to Aid Spouse'

A state penitentiary trusty Sunday afternoon attempted to flee but was caught a few minutes later across State Street near the state forestry buildings.

"Evidently, he got a letter from his wife saying she was in financial difficulties," said Warden Clarence T. Gladden. "And he thought he could leave here and give her some assistance."

Gladden identified the prisoner as Emile Elbert, 35, serving five years from Multnomah County for burglary not in a dwelling. As a trusty, it was his duty to water the front lawn.

Prison LI, Ralph E. Pribble captured him while four city police and two state police cars were ringing the area. The prison was alerted when a state policeman spotted Elbert crossing the street.

Kaye Hopping Mad At 'Honey' Charge

LONDON (AP)—A London columnist said Sunday Danny Kaye addressed Princess Margaret as "honey" in a backstage conversation at the Palladium.

The columnist, Rex North, in the Sunday Pictorial, registered indignation, as did Kaye when informed of North's jottings. "I'd like to spit in his eye," Kaye thundered. "Ask him (North) if he was there (backstage). Anyway, it's a pitifully poor way to fill a column to hop on things like that."

North said the princess and some friends walked backstage to see the American comedian after one of his Palladium shows and that things went this way: "Hello, Honey" "Hello honey," said Kaye. "I didn't expect to see you back here."

The columnist said Margaret swallowed once or twice and countered, a little limply, "Hello Danny."

The columnist commented: "In my view there are times when it is permissible to call a woman honey—if you happen to know the sort who doesn't mind this sort of saccharine sweet endearment."

Other Moments "There are other moments in history, when speaking quite personally, I would address the young lady concerned as ma'am. The moment would have been at the theater after the show."

"I should add that in America any woman of any rank who has been met socially a few times is almost automatically a honey."

Ike to Make 'Big' Policy Declaration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Eisenhower arrived here Sunday night to open the U.S.'s 10th anniversary session Monday afternoon. Informed quarters said he would make an important policy declaration.

Meanwhile, the first high-level contact between Russia and the Western powers was made at a dinner party Sunday night. There was no indication, however, whether or not the meeting was anything more than a social occasion.

The Big Four foreign ministers will hold their first business discussions Monday night at a dinner arranged by Secretary of State Dulles.

Dulles did not attend Sunday night's dinner given by the Colombian ambassador, Eduardo Zuleta Angel, but the United States was represented by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr.

Soviet Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov, British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay also were present.

The President drove directly to his hotel from international airport after his non-stop flight from Washington. He conferred briefly with Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and Mayor Elmer E. Robinson and later spent a half-hour with Dulles before retiring for the night.

Church Outing Lost 6 Hours On Mountain

PORTLAND (AP)—Fifteen children and five adults, members of a Seventh Day Adventist Church organization known as the Pathfinders, were lost for six hours Sunday in the Larch Mountain area.

Lawrence Lashier, 13, and Edward Drury an adult, both from Portland, found the party and led it back down the mountain to the Multnomah Falls Lodge.

Some of the children were hysterical by the time they reached safety. A. R. Hanson, manager of the lodge, said: "It was a dangerous trip—there was no moon, and I don't know how the adult leaders managed to keep the party together."

The group became lost when it split off from a larger group of church climbers who were in the area. The two who found the missing party were members of the group which had made its way down off the mountain safely earlier.

Mrs. Glenn, the Utah Highway Patrol reported, was driving on U. S. Highway 50-6 west of Green River when her auto slammed into a car driven by Olden Buehler, 36, Wichita, Kansas.

Man Drowns In Mill Creek

Paul E. Pearson, 21, 1157 S. 15th St., drowned Sunday in Mill Creek in the pool behind the first concrete dam south of State Street.

Pearson, who worked for Blue Lake Packers, was accompanied by Les Eitelgeorge, 21, 1935 Maple St., who ran 1 1/2 miles to the state police office to report that Pearson didn't come to the surface after diving into nearly eight feet of water. Eitelgeorge cannot swim.

The body, in the muddy water about 45 minutes, was recovered by city first aidmen using grappling hooks.

Eitelgeorge said Pearson, who had stripped down to his shorts and light shoes, urged him to accompany him into the pool and then made the dive.

Waits Minutes Eitelgeorge said he waited perhaps eight to 10 minutes before making the long run to the state police office on State Street. City first aidman Bert Iverson dived about in the pool in a futile attempt to locate the body.

Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Pearson, was unmarried and lived with his parents. Born Dec. 26, 1933, in Santa Paula, Calif., he came to Salem in 1935 and attended St. Joseph Catholic School and Sacred Heart Academy.

Boat Upsets; Grants Pass Father Dies

GRANTS PASS (AP)—A father drowned Sunday after his father-boarded boat overturned, but his five children and his brother were rescued.

The victim, in the accident on the Rogue River about three miles upstream from here, was Collis James Dolmage, 41, a Grants Pass tile contractor.

Witnesses told state police Dolmage lifted off the outboard motor to keep it from snagging in debris and the boat veered into a stump, throwing the party into the water.

Two fishermen helped Dolmage's brother, William, 29, Los Angeles, and the others to shore and pulled out Dolmage. The father did not respond to first aid, however, and was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital here.

The Dolmage children are aged 4 to 19.
