

Novice Gourmet Cook Introduced To Five Important Cooking Herbs

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

New cooks as well as old are taking a wider interest in what many call "gourmet cooking." They're having fun preparing meals, and this type adventure not only makes preparation of the food more fascinating—it improves the cooking. Everyone but the old meat and potato eater who never likes a change will join with the cook in having fun with food.

Seasoning, the soul of cooking, is a fascinating subject. One can read books on herbs and spices like a novel—and many people do with as great interest as fiction.

In reading recipes, especially French, one comes across some seasonings that whet the curiosity of those who do not know them.

Beginners in gourmet cooking (many are old hands in the kitchen but new at attending to subtle flavorings) should know first about these five important herbs.

Oregano is used as an herb or spice, dried or ground. It has long been popular as a flavor for chili con carne and is mostly grown in Mexico and Italy, though becoming much more popular in the United States.

It is a good flavoring for pork dishes and is similar to marjoram in flavor but stronger. Beef stews, meat sauces and gravies omelet or boiled eggs are enhanced by a dash of oregano. Try it sometime in spaghetti sauce. (The word is pronounced with accent on the second syllable, or-a-gano, long a.)

MORE HERBS

Marjoram is a member of the mint family originally from France. The leaf is delicious combined with other herbs in stews, soups, sausage, poultry stuffings and is good with fish. Try in beef soup or French dressing. I like a generous sprinkling on stewed tomatoes.

Tarragon is slightly anise-flavored. It is used in vinegar for salad dressings. Tarragon is good in meat sauces, with eggs and poultry. Just before taking a broiled chicken out of the oven, season with salt and sprinkle with finely minced tarragon and serve with pan gravy.

Basil is also an herb which comes dried or ground. It has a distinctive aroma and flavor and is good with meats in stews and gravies. Thyme and fresh tomatoes make a fine flavor combination. Sprinkle over tomatoes on lettuce, add a vinegar and oil dressing and salt and pepper and you've a wonderful salad.

Make use of dill when fresh or dried. Combine it with fish, cucumbers or potatoes in salad or hot dishes. Good with sauerkraut or macaroni. Try some on green apple pie when the first of the crop come along.

USE FRESH

When you buy herbs or spices, say the authorities, note the purchase date somewhere on the package and discard after 6 months. Age diminishes the bouquet and flavor of herbs and spices, rendering them less desirable. Buy in small quantities, keep tightly covered because they dry out in air (slip cover over the shaker part for better keeping). Never put a spice shelf over the stove, the experts say.

Prepare mustard should be kept in the refrigerator.

One of the best ways to keep certain spices fresh for use is to grind them as used. The peppermill has taken its place along with the salt shaker as an important kitchen item and many folks have graters for whole nutmegs. Freshly ground pepper has a pleasing bite and aroma that commercially ground never has.

Next time a recipe calls for an herb which your kitchen cannot supply, get a package and know the pleasures of subtle flavoring.

Miss Harrington Became Mrs. Nightingale on Sunday

The pink and aqua flower-decked Calvary Baptist Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Norma Jean Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Harrington, to Lowell William Nightingale, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nightingale of Stayton, on June 26.

The Rev. Omar Barth performed the afternoon nuptials for which the bride wore a white organdy eyelet princess gown and a fingertip length veil with cap of seed pearls. She carried red rosebuds and French carnations.

Mrs. Harold Heinz, matron of honor, sister of the bride from Ackley, Iowa, wore a ballerina length princess dress of pastel aqua and carried a spray of pink daisies. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Randy Harleben and Miss Judy Van Zanten, wore pink princess dresses and carried aqua daisies. Miss Marilyn Blakely and Miss Carolyn Messmer were candle-lighters. Miss Jane Van Zanten was the flower girl, and is a cousin of the bride. The bride's nephew, Tommy Heinz, was ring bearer.

Burdette Rice stood as best man for his cousin, and ushers were Robert Harrington, brother of the bride, and Darrell Wright, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, from Millwaukie.

A cadet blue suit dress with white accessories and pink and white carnation corsage was worn by the bride's mother, and navy blue with white and a similar corsage were chosen by the bridegroom's mother.

At the reception in the Fireplace Room of the church, the following assisted: Miss Esther Wood, Miss Florence Wright, Mrs. Don Fulton, Miss Pamela Zam Zaw, Mrs. Charlene Osborn, and Miss Jane Van Zanten. There were many out of town guests.

For their wedding trip to Lake Louise, the new Mrs. Nightingale wore a navy blue suit with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations and rosebuds. The couple will make their home at 1349 Saginaw Street.
