"I gave up $40,000 a year on the Bendix show in order to do 'The Soldiers' exclusively," D'Andrea is moaning, "and to March it's a part-time job." The fact that March has to emcee "$64,000 Question" from New York is another thorn in D'Andrea's side. As "The Soldiers" originates in Hollywood, it is impossible to film it, as D'Andrea had planned. March's commuiting between New York and Hollywood makes it necessary to do the show live, and without too much rehearsal, due to March's coast-tocoast schedule.

To D'Andrea's further chagrin, some of the publicity that has gone out on the show has given Hal March top billing. D'Andrea is known to have taken this issue up in person with Pat Weaver, president of NBC, pointing out of plugging another network indirectly.
