How to Keep Up With Sports Car Set: Bermuda Shorts

SPORTS SEPARATES... Plaid Irish linen hooded coat lined in solid color linen to match the shorts teams with a black linen blouse — all easy to make.

Even if you can't tell a Jaguar from a Thunderbird, you'll want to acquire the sports car look this summer. It's the casual, colorful way of dressing that is sweeping the country, even among people who do not own even a kiddie car.

One of the essential requirements for sports car separates is a coat that is short enough to avoid bulk and wrinkles, with a wide collar to convert to a hood for open-top days. Shorts and sleeveless shirt in coordinating colors complete one popular outfit.

If you are one of the lucky ones who actually owns a sports car, it's important to have an outfit in colors that blend happily with the car. Local sewing center experts suggest you switch your own, so your outfit will have the same custom appearance as the car.

A gay and practical ensemble consists of hooded short coat in solid color linen to match the shorts. A black linen blouse is a smart added touch, and all can be made with one standard pattern.

The wide cowl collar of the coat is cut in one piece with the body of the coat, with a single seam joining the two sides of the collar. With the perforated pattern, fitting problems are reduced to a minimum.

For extra fun, make some walking shorts for your husband to match your own. Several pattern manufacturers feature patterns for men's wear that make tailoring seem no more difficult than dressmaking.
