Cherries Take the Spotlight This Week, Strawberries on the Wane

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

Along about now fruits are crowding. With strawberries barely out of the way, cherries are upon us, and raspberries, boysens and peaches are in the offing. Then early and late fall fruits will be ripening. There'll be no letup until after pickle days in late fall. Today it is cherries.

Maraschino cherries we've written about, but here are some pointers on preserves and freezing. The Royal Annes and Lamberts are the canning cherries, the sour ones for preserves. Both freeze satisfactorily, but for different purposes. Try some of the dark cherries frozen with pits, for eating out of hand, but sweeten the pitted ones to serve as sauce. If Royal Anne's are used, ascorbic acid (according to directions on bottle) should be used to keep them from darkening.

Here is a cherry preserves, one also used in strawberries, but excellent for either.

SALEM CHERRY PRESERVES

1 quart pie cherries 4 cups sugar
1/4 cup water
Put two cups of the sugar in a kettle with the water and cook until it makes a hard crack, but just before it caramelizes or changes color, add pitted cherries, the remaining sugar and bring to a boil. Cook 12 to 15 minutes more and let stand in kettle over night. In the morning bottle.

Cherry olives are an old recipe—here we have one for your trial.

CHERRY OLIVES

Fill jars with perfect Royal Ann Cherries, leaving stems on. Cover with a mixture of 1 tablespoon salt, 2 cups cold water, 1/2 cup white vinegar and fill up jars. Seal and do not use for at least six months. May add red or green coloring.

When combined with oranges, sweet cherries can be used for a conserve.

CHERRY ORANGE CONSERVE

4 cups cherries, chopped 4 cups sugar
1 can crushed pineapple 1 lemon, shredded
1 large orange, shredded
Cook orange peel with a little pineapple juice until tender, then add cherries, sugar, well drained pineapple and lemon. Cook until thick.

If you want to jell cherries, use your favorite pectin and follow directions on the container.

Canned cherries are still a favorite with many. Some like to seed them, believing that they are more attractive. Many women however prefer to let the diners tussle with their own seeds, a detail in which we are inclined to agree—it takes a long time to seed a quart of cherries but not very long to work around pits of a dish of breakfast fruit.

The canning time for sweet cherries, whether light or dark, is 20 minutes in the hot water bath—the recommended method.

U.S. TV Singer to Seek British Lord to Deliver Commercials

By ALINE MORSEY

HOLLYWOOD UP — A Pretty blonde singer came up Tuesday with an inspiration to improve American TV commercials—she wants to hire an English nobleman to deliver the pitch.

Vicki Benet seriously announced she will audition English lords and sirs for her new filmed musical TV show when she visits London on a singing tour next week. "I can't stand some of the pressure methods used by American announcers on commercials," she said. "The so-called 'hard sell' actually is an anti-sell that defeats its purpose."

Blue Bloods Only
"I want a true lord, a personable man who speaks well. He must come from a good family, be listed in Burke's Peerage and appear cultured. He'll act as master-of-ceremonies and do the commercials for my new show."

Vicki revealed this plan to give packed her bags in her luxurious apartment. The producer of her program, Jack Elliot of Bepell Productions, paced after her to confirm he wants the English nobleman to "give prestige to her show." He admits he was impressed by the bearded Englishman who poses for gin-and-tonic ads in the American press.

Worth $1,000 Week
"The average American is impressed with a British accent and title and the savoir faire that goes with it."

"We're not going to make a fool out of this chap," he added. "We also produce filmed commercials for various companies and if he will do those he can earn $1,000 a week."

Paris-born Vicki, who began her career only two years ago here in night clubs, will conduct the auditions for her titled announcer during her engagement at the Savoy hotel in London.

Advice Fails To Save Bliss Of Marriage

LOS ANGELES (U) — A marriage counselor's wife won a divorce Tuesday and the judge commented that her husband's credo seemed to be: "Don't do as I do; do as I say."

Mrs. Arthur Globe, 39, testified her husband "would barrage me with words until 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning."

The judge asked if Globe, 37, ever struck her. "Yes, but I'd rather not talk about that."

The judge asked Mrs. Globe's daughter by a previous marriage Esther Rosenshine, 19, if she ever asked her stepfather for matrimonial advice. She said no. "Take my advice," said the judge, "and don't..."

Board to Test Portland Air For Pollen

PORTLAND (U) — A daily "hay fever report" to provide information on the amount of pollen in the air over downtown Portland, was started by the State Board of Health Tuesday.

Reports are made from information collected daily from slides located on the roof of a downtown medical building, and are provided by the board of health free as a public service.

Dr. Harold Erickson, state health officer, said a clean microscope slide is covered with a thin coat of petroleum jelly and then suspended horizontally, permitting exposure from all directions.

After 24-hour exposure, the slide is returned to the laboratory to be counted. Dr. Erickson said the board of health is particularly interested in ragweed, which has spread rapidly since it was first discovered in Oregon several years ago.

Ragweed bothers many persons not normally subject to hay fever or asthma. Oregon's present ragweed count is among the lowest in the nation, Erickson said.

The reports will be made available to Portland newspapers and radio stations.
