

U.S. Sees Sweden as 'Land of Low Morals, Smorgasbord, Nudes'

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—The afternoon newspaper Expressen said Saturday most Americans look on Sweden as "a small, peaceful, stable, beautiful country with smorgasbord, nude bathing and loose morals."

The big Stockholm paper reached that conclusion from a United States-wide survey it sponsored. It had asked the Associated Press to send reporters into the streets of cities in the 48 states and ask the first 10 Americans they met this question:

"When you hear the name Sweden, who do you think about?" Expressen said: "The 480 answers told quite a lot about what the Americans know about Sweden. Our main characteristics: "Movie actress Anita Ekberg — smorgasbord — nude bathing — loose morals — peacefulness — King Gustaf."

Expressen made few comments on the poll. In a double page spread, it mostly listed verbatim the quotations from Americans and let their readers reach their own conclusions.

"Big Busts" Here are some of the quotes:

"I have heard that men and women bathe nude over there. I would like to go to Sweden." — A. S. Funnell, railroad employee, Florida.

"Massages, women with big busts and flaxen hair and that song they sing in Minnesota — Ten thousand Swedes marched through the woods at the battle of Copenhagen." — An anonymous cab driver in Pennsylvania.

"I remember an English lady during the war who said the Swedes, not the Southerners, are the world's best lovers and she said she knew what she was talking about." — A. F. McGee, TV technician, Pennsylvania.

"Sweden makes me think about sin. But I always think about sin." — John White, publicity man, Indiana.

"Thick-Headed" "Most Swedes I have met seemed rather thick-headed." — Vic Barksdale, Barber, Arizona.

The poll showed Americans generally remember that Greta Garbo was born in Sweden but believe Norwegian Sanna Henie and Danish fairy tale writer Hans Christian Andersen to be Swedish.

Other quotes: "A noble and artistic people. Just look at Jussi Bjorling who makes Mario Lanza sound like an air raid siren." — Joseph P. Kelly, policeman, California.

"Nice, well-to-do, red-cheeked, blonde people." — Fred M. Staunton, publisher, West Virginia.

"They're a people we do not have to support with our taxes." — A government employe in Kansas.

"Blonde, blue-eyed girls." — Marcus George, retired Air Force officer, Arkansas.

Gunnar Myrdal, the author. And tall, cool, blonde people who have no morals." — Dorothy Holbrook, office worker, Texas.
