Water Skier Turns Flier, Soars 40 Feet

PORTLAND (AP) - A water skier, aided by a 12-foot kite, soared 40 feet into the air above the Willamette River Sunday.

He is John Miller, a 42-year-old carpenter, who makes a hobby of water sports.

The kite, which cost $100, is made of airplane metal and special water-resistant canvas.

The kite was fastened to a motor boat by a 100-foot cord. Miller held the bottom of the kite and became airborne after the boat reached a speed of about 40 miles an hour.

Sea Claims Portland Angler; New York Lad Wins National 'Bug' Derby

PACIFIC CITY, Ore.—A dramatic rescue attempt failed near here Sunday when a fishing boat overturned and a Portland man drowned in the ocean.

Included in the rescue party was Earl Snyder of Salem, director of the State Aeronautics Board.

The victim, identified as Dean Ward, 25, was fishing with a companion when a wave reportedly overturned their small motorboat about noon.

The companion, Charles Post, Portland, was washed ashore with the boat and was unhurt.

Flew to Scene Snyder upon returning to Salem later Sunday, said he was attending the annual Pacific City Fly-In Fish Fry at the time of the drowning.

When report of the accident was received, Snyder and Harvey Henderson, Pacific City, took off in a plane for the scene, some three minutes away.

Ward was seen floating face down about 150 feet off shore when the plane arrived in the area.

Snyder said he and Henderson landed their craft on the beach and a lowering tide enabled them to wade out and pull the man to shore.

Artificial respiration proved futile.

Witnesses said the fishermen's boat was caught broadside by a large breaker. The boat rolled over and up again and Ward was reportedly washed out of the craft with what appeared to be a tackle box in his grasp.

Guards Quell Rioting Cons at Walla Walla; Ten Hostages Freed

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) - Guards reported to him that 10 hostages taken by some 50 convicts were freed without injury.

Dr. Thomas A. Harris, state director of public institutions, said no damage was reported other than the breaking of a few windowpanes where guards shot tear gas to quell the uprising.

Earlier Riot It was the second major demonstration at the prison in six weeks. Rebellious prisoners took nine guards hostage in another uprising July 5 but later released them unharmed.

Dr. Harris said the warden talked the group of 50 men into releasing the hostages without having to use arms or gas on them.

He quoted Delmore as telling the convicts "You're damned fools. We're moving as fast as we can to establish a program. You are going to wreck it."

At that point, the rioters turned the hostages loose, unharmed, Harris said.

One of the prisoners' complaints was that they did not want to be transferred to a mental hospital.

Dozens Ringleaders Dr. Harris said the men would not be moved to such an institution but to a "correctional institution."

There were 12 or 13 convicts considered ringleaders who were to be interviewed by Clarence Schrag, supervisor of adult correctional institutions.

Dr. Harris said Delmore reported the rioting started in the dining hall during the dinner hour. The guards had had the preliminary information that something was afoot so were partially prepared for the ensuing demonstration, Delmore reported.

Used Knives Harris said the first line of approximately 400 prisoners was fed without trouble, but some of the men in the second line sprung on the guards with knives.

They marched the lieutenant of the guards toward the control room with a knife at his back.

Harris said the officers inside the control room were alert, jerked in the lieutenant and shut the door, foiling that particular operation.

The demonstrators then tried to release some 15 men described by prison officials as leaders of last month's riot who had been returned from the Yakima, Wash., county jail only last Friday.

Tear Gas Used The attempt was broken up by tear gas.

Dr. Harris said he will fly to Walla Walla Monday if the warden requests. Otherwise interviews with the prisoners will be handled by Schrag.

One of the demands of the prisoners was to see Harris by noon Monday. The other was to talk to three newspapermen.

MOTORCYCLE crashes, one near Salem, killed three persons in Oregon Sunday.

Fatally injured on Macleay road near Four Corners was Mrs. Sherry Lee Hendricks, 31, of Philomath. She died in a Salem hospital about two hours after the accident which occurred about 1 p.m. when she swerved her machine to avoid an oncoming car.

She was struck by one of three motorcycles following her, according to state police.

Injured in the same accident were a Corvallis husband and wife riding the machine that struck that of the woman who died.

Treater and released from Salem General Hospital were John G. Taylor, 32, and his wife Alice, 24.

State police said the motorcycles were en route to the Salem motorcycle races. Mrs. Hendricks' husband and Darwin had gone on ahead. As they were rounding a sharp curve they met a car operated by Ray Allen, 1640 Tierra Dr. He stopped. Mrs. Hendricks swerved, but was knocked off balance and thrown down by the Taylor cycle.

The Taylors flew from their machine, hurtling Mrs. Hendricks and machine and landing in front of Allen's car.

FOREST GROVE (AP) - Death was instantaneous for two motorcycle riders early Sunday when their machine collided head-on with a car near here.

Near Forest Grove The accident occurred on State Highway 6 about 1 1/2 miles east of Forest Grove.

State police said the motorcycle collided with a car driven by 19-year-old Ernest Caldwell of Banks. Officers said Caldwell was headed west and passing other cars when the collision occurred.

Caldwell told the officers he did not see the approaching motorcycle.

Ike Signs Bill to End Strike-Bound Transit Franchise

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Eisenhower Sunday signed legislation cancelling the franchise of the strike-bound Capital Transit Co. in the District of Columbia.

The bill is designed to help settle Washington's streetcar and city bus strike which began 45 days ago.

In a statement, the President said he was opposed "to any attempt to settle labor disputes through legislation of the character" of the bill.

Koreans Still Demonstrate; Steam Lost

SEOUL (AP) - Koreans paraded in front of the U.S. Embassy Sunday shouting "Communist Czech and Polish spies leave Korea" No violence was reported anywhere.

President Syngman Rhee, who Saturday postponed indefinitely his ultimatum that Czech and Polish truce inspectors get out, rapped U. S. policy in Asia at a rally in Seoul.

But the demonstrations - which in eight violent days saw 44 U.S. soldiers and possibly 100 Koreans injured - appeared to have lost their steam.

Rhee told Koreans assembled to celebrate the 10th anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan that the United States now advocates a new "peace of mutual forbearance."

Rhee said President Eisenhower enunciated the policy at the Geneva conference. He urged the Free World to abandon the drift toward this and other "status quo" policies.

Instead, Rhee declared, the Free World should immediately "roll back the Iron Curtain from areas it has illegally engulfed."

Rhee said the alternative would be to give way gradually to communism - "the greatest evil force of slave conquest in the entire history of the world."

"The real problem," he added, "is not how to achieve peace but how to deal effectively with Communist aggression."

Rhee said South Korea would insist upon "the liberation of North Korea" in any future negotiations.

Pastor Dies Of Snake Bite

FORT PAYNE, Ala. (AP) - A minister died Sunday from a rattlesnake bite suffered while conducting services at the Straight Creek Holiness Church Saturday night.

Spurning medical aid during a night of agony, the Rev. Lee Valentine, 50, of Pineville, Ky., died about 10 hours after he was bitten behind the left ear.

Sheriff W. R. Evans said he planned an immediate investigation. Snake handling, he added, is in violation of Alabama law.

Valentine and two other Kentucky preachers had been leading a revival at the rural church for several days. Snakes reportedly came before Valentine brought the rattler out of his cage and wrapped it around his neck.

Soviet Rockets 'Carry Live Animals 300 Miles in Space'

MOSCOW (AP) - A leading Soviet scientist said Sunday the Soviet Union has shot experimental rockets bearing live animals more than 300 miles into space. It plans to replace the rockets in the near future with artificial satellites of the earth.

Space scientist A.G. Karpenko told a reporter for the local newspaper "Moscow Pravda" that data collected from the rockets was too fragmentary because they were only in space a few seconds.

More permanent observations from artificial satellites would be preferable, he declared.

Karpenko then went on to give the most complete picture of Soviet space research ever published here.

He said these satellites - to circle the earth from pole to pole at a height of from 125 to 1,250 miles - would be launched "in the comparatively near future." He set no definite date.

Karpenko is scientific secretary of the Soviet Union's Commission on Interplanetary Communication.

Among other things, Karpenko said, artificial satellites would take slow motion movies of surface phenomena on the sun, study the ionosphere which affects shortwave broadcasting, study ultraviolet and X-ray irradiation of the sun and stars, and study cosmic rays.

There roughly are the same aims of the American satellite program although the United States announcement did not mention movies of the sun.

"Space rockets guided by radio from the earth have already reached a height of almost 500 kilometers (about 310 miles)," Karpenko declared. "Sensitive instruments automatically recorded pressure and temperature and determined the composition of the air."

"Even certain animals have been sent up to this height in special cabins. From the earth, observation was carried out on their condition and behavior in such unusual conditions."

"The main shortcoming of the observations received is their short duration."
